Earnings of Americans stand still past 5 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau confirmed on Saturday what many American families have suspected — that their increased earnings in recent years have not made them any better off.

American families in 1974 had about the same real income as they did in 1969, even though the dollar amount of earnings rose substantially, the Census Bureau said in a study.

It also said the number of American poor, about 24.3 million in 1974, was virtually unchanged from 1969. The percentage of the population that is poor did decline, however, from 12.1 per cent to 11.6 per cent, it added, as the total population grew.

The study of 1974 income is based on a nationwide survey of 47,000 households conducted in March of last year. A similar study of 1975 income will be conducted in March of this year.

Some of the information in the study was released in an advance report in July, including the addition of 1.1 million Americans to the poverty category in 1974, which partially offset gains of previous years.

The poverty income level, which is linked to the inflation rate, was increased to $5,038 in 1974 from $4,540 in 1973 for a non-farm family of four.

About 9 per cent of whites were below the poverty level, 31 per cent of blacks and 23 per cent of the Spanish origin population, the agency said.

But one of the most striking features of the study was the small gain that most American families have made in their real income in the five-year period. Real income means income discounted for inflation.

The study said median family income, measured in terms of 1974 purchasing power, was $12,840 in 1974, compared to $12,690 in 1969, a difference of $150. Median income means there are as many families below that level as above.

The income measure is made before any taxes are paid or withheld, so increased taxes between 1969 and 1974 would further cut family income. Income includes money from earnings, Social Security, welfare, pensions, unemployment, rent, interest and the like.

There was a 4 per cent drop in real income in 1974, the biggest single drop for any year that the Census Bureau has been keeping records, starting in 1947. The drop was attributed to the two-fold cause of the recession and high inflation.

But even prior to 1974 gains since 1969 had been fairly flat, the Census Bureau said. The average annual growth rate during the five-year period was near zero, it added.

The experience of the recent period contrasted with the annual gains from 1947 to 1969 when real median family income increased by 90 per cent, from $6,690 to $12,690.

Roger A. Herriot, chief of the bureau's Family and Individual Income Statistics Branch, who supervised the report, said he didn't want "to shoot from the hip" and draw conclusions about the results.

He said the slide in family income probably came to a halt in 1975. "I wouldn't expect a large decrease like we had in 1973-74," he said.

But Herriot also said it probably would be some time before the losses in 1974 family income are fully restored.

127 Picasso paintings stolen

AVIGNON, France (AP) — Police said thieves stole 127 paintings by the late Pablo Picasso from an exhibition here Saturday night. It was one of the biggest art thefts of all time.

Police would not say whether they had any leads in the theft.

The masked thieves overpowered three guards at an exhibition at the Palace of the Popes, which opened a few days before Picasso's death April 8, 1973.

Over an hour and a half the men carried the 127 paintings to a car parked in the courtyard, leaving 17 other canvases at the foot of a stairway.

Officials said it was impossible to estimate the value of the paintings, all done in the last years of Picasso's life, because the market for Picassos from that period is unknown.

Lack of signatures on the works detracted from their value, officials said.

The paintings, made between September 1970 and June 1972, show the erotic couples, bullfighters and distorted faces that made Picasso one of the giants in the history of art.

The works were personally selected by Picasso for the exhibition.

An official of the Avignon Arts Festival which organized the Picasso show said the paintings were "a recapitulation of everything he had done over the years, as if it was a reflection of a whole career in a short time, not just a segment."

Previous large art thefts included the robbery by armed men of 36 impressionist paintings valued at more than $3.2 million from Milan's museum of modern art last May. It was the second time the same Gauguins, Renoirs, Cezannes and Van Goghs had been stolen from the same museum.

Police said a collection of 47 paintings worth more than $1 million was stolen from the Paris apartment of Jacques Cartier, an American architect and landscape painter, in December 1974. The paintings were recovered four months later.

Three priceless paintings — considered among the 10 most famous Renaissance works in Italy — were stolen from the Ducal palace in Urbino last February.

Those paintings were "The Mute Girl," a portrait by Raphael, and two paintings by Peiro della Francesca, "The Flagellation of Christ" and "The Madonna of Senigallia."

Ernesto Miranda
Key figure in landmark decision knifed to death

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ernesto Miranda, whose name was on a landmark court decision requiring police to inform defendants of their rights, was stabbed to death Saturday night in a fight over a card game in a Skid Row bar, police said.

Miranda, 34, was dead on arrival at a Phoenix hospital after being stabbed once in the upper left chest and once in the abdomen. He was stabbed by one of two men he had beaten in a fist fight minutes earlier, said Patrolman Gordon Costa, on the scene at the La Amapola bar.

One of the men, described by witnesses as an illegal Mexican alien, was taken to police headquarters for questioning, officers said. The killer, also believed to be an illegal Mexican immigrant, fled the scene and was being sought by police in the area of a downtown housing project.

"Ernie beat both of them up, but Fernando slipped the other guy a knife and he stabbed him," said Mary Ann Estrella, 21, barmaid at La Amapola. "They were playing cards. They tried to get his money."

Fernando, one of those with whom Miranda had been fighting, was not otherwise identified by witnesses or police.

"Ernie went to the restroom to wash his hands because they were bloody from the fight," Miss Estrella said. "Fernando gave the other man a knife, and then Fernando's girlfriend left with him (Fernando)."

When Miranda returned to the barroom, "the guy pulled the knife and went after Ernie," she said. "Ernie tried to take it away. He stabbed him twice. Ernie just fell down."

The knife, described by the barmaid as a collapsible weapon with a six-inch blade, was not found.

The decision involving Miranda was issued by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1966 after the justices overturned his conviction for rape and kidnap on grounds he was not advised of his rights at the time of his arrest.

Miranda was later retried, convicted and resentenced to 20 to 30 years in prison for the 1963 crimes. He also served a consecutive term for an unrelated $8 robbery of a housewife.

Miranda was paroled in 1972. In July 1974 he was arrested on a charge of possession of a firearm while on parole. The arrest came after he was stopped for a routine traffic violation. That charge was later dropped.

TONS OF MARIJUANA SEIZED

Coral Gables park foreman George Dimitros sits atop a truckload of marijuana, part of over 13 tons that was seized by officers in a night-time raid of two boats in Biscayne Bay at Miami early Saturday. Police said the weed had an estimated street value of $8.3 million.

Pro-west mercenaries form big Angola force

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — At least 1,000 white soldiers of fortune have joined pro-Western factions in Angola to form what could be the largest mercenary force in Africa since the civil war in the Congo, the Sunday Express reported.

"An undisclosed number of Vietnam veterans are also reported making their way from the United States to Angola," the Johannesburg newspaper said.

Both the Sunday Express and the Evening News of London wrote that Western-armed Angolans were preparing for an early counter-offensive into northern Angola against the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA). More than 10,000 Cuban soldiers reportedly are leading the MPLA units.

The Sunday Express quoted military sources in Kinshasa, Zaire, and Johannesburg as saying the drive against the MPLA would be mounted next week.

Series starts Monday on filing tax returns

Starting Monday, the Progress Bulletin will publish a series of articles detailing tax return information for 1975.

The new returns are more complex and the instructions are longer than last year's. But most of the 84 million persons who will file an income tax return will get some good news. Taxes will be less than a year ago.

The author of the series, Ray De Crane, is business editor of the Cleveland Press. He points out that there was a drastic overhaul in the tax laws for this year.

New things to look for include a change in filing requirements, a credit for personal exemptions, an increase in standard deductions, expansion of tax tables, a tax credit for low-income workers and a housing credit for those who bought a new home in 1975.

Basketball player knifed after game

Pomona police are seeking two youths in connection with the stabbing and beating of a Damien High School basketball player after a game at Garey High School.

Officers said Dennis J. Sullivan, 17, of Claremont, a reserve player on the Damien team, was assaulted by two youths as he left the Garey-Damien game late Friday night.

One youth kicked the victim three times, police added, and he later was attached by the second youth. Other boys who were at the scene then began assaulting him.

During the struggle, Sullivan was stabbed in the ear with either a knife or metal comb. He suffered a one-inch cut and was treated and released later from Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The youths, described as 17-year-old blacks, fled the scene in a car after the struggle was broken up by a priest.

Fire damages Pomona market

Fire broke out in a small Pomona market Saturday night, causing damages estimated at $2,500.

The blaze at Morton's Market, Second Street and Hamilton Boulevard, apparently was caused by faulty electrical wiring, firemen said. Flames broke out in the southeast corner of the market about 7 p.m. and caused extensive damage to the roof and ceiling.

GM profits bounce back

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., which saw its earnings sag to anemic levels during most of 1974 and 1975, bounced back in last year's fourth quarter with one of the best year-end profit performances in its history, Wall Street analysts say.

The world's largest auto maker releases its 1975 financial report this week, and analysts predict the giant corporation will produce fourth-quarter earnings of between $550 million and $610 million.

That would be a 10 to 20 per cent gain over year-earlier levels and the firm's second best showing ever for the quarter. GM earned a fourth-quarter record $667 million in 1972.

Despite the company's expected robust performance in the final three months of the year, GM's earnings for the full year would still be relatively weak.

Analysts predicted 1975 profits of about $1.2 billion for the firm, up about 25 per cent from $950 million the year before, but off 50 per cent from a record $2.4 billion in 1973.

With the exception of 1974 — when the energy crisis depressed profits — and 1970 — when GM was hit by a lengthy strike — the 1975 results would be the weakest in 13 years.

Nevertheless, analysts described GM's expected fourth-quarter profit as a "phenomenal" performance and a bullish indication that the auto industry had recovered from its worst slump since the great depression.

"It all comes out of corporate cost reductions and better operations."

Because of its traditional emphasis on full-size cars, GM was particularly hard hit in 1974, when consumer fears over fuel shortages created an overnight demand for small autos.

GM has added more than a half-dozen small cars to its product line since then — including the Chevette, Detroit's first minicar — and will be the first of the Big Three to replace its entire big-car lineup with smaller and lighter models.

A 76-year-old woman was seriously injured Saturday afternoon when her car collided with another auto at the corner of Indian Hill Boulevard and Sixth Street in Claremont.

Ethel Williams of Los Angeles suffered a collapsed lung and fractured ribs in the 4 p.m. accident. She was admitted to the intensive care unit at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Driver of the second car, Joe Burkle, 52, of Claremont, was uninjured.

Political spouses becoming working women

Bored, want own identity, making ends meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — With one eye on the dollar sign and the other on avoiding conflicts of interest, many of the capital's better known women are taking jobs.

The problems of conflict of interest were accented earlier this week when Marion Javits, wife of Sen. Jacob B. Javits, R-N.Y., resigned her $67,500-job as publicity agent for Iran's national airline after being criticized for possible conflicts. Her husband, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is involved with a number of U.S. foreign policy activities affecting Iran.

These working women, most of them wives of prominent politicans, joined the workers' ranks from motives that encompassed boredom with the tea-party bandage-rolling ladies'-luncheon syndrome, or a desire to establish their own identities or contribute to the family income.

The jobs also are varied. Joyce Rumsfeld, wife of the secretary of defense, helps out in a Georgetown boutique. Lou Tower and Antoinette Hatfield, senators' wives, are in the real estate business.

Perhaps the most successful businesswoman of them all is Betty Talmadge, wife of the senator who's chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. She runs a multimillion dollar meat brokerage business.

For many, it's the first time they have had a job. Most have waited for their children to at least grow old enough not to be met after school. Usually the women try to keep their schedules flexible to allow for official or social obligations.

Most say they couldn't live on their income alone.

"It was once said that I am making ends meet by working," said Mrs. Rumsfeld, a chic woman of 43, mother of three, who works two days a week in a friend's clothing store. "That is certainly overdoing my contribution. It does help. But I'm not a business giant in the community."

Other Washington women who have entered the business world include Ellen Proxmire, wife of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who runs a catering business for weddings and conventions; Mrs. Walter F. Mondale, wife of the Minnesota Democrat, who works as a tour guide; and Joan Lynn, wife of President Ford's budget director, who works in a gift boutique as a saleswoman.

Like Mrs. Tower, 55, who went to the University of Maryland for her real estate license and started a real estate firm with two partners last fall, most of the women have had little background in business.

"But I wanted to make some money," said Mrs. Tower, the mother of three college-age daughters. "Without outside income or independent wealth, it's hard to keep a house in Washington and another somewhere else." Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and his wife own a house in Texas and an apartment in Washington.

Many VIPs boost their income with high-priced speeches. But their families are quick to point out that much of the money goes back into the general campaign fund or to finance extra trips to the home state.

Almost all the women interviewed said they deliberately chose jobs that would pose no conflicts of interest for their husbands.

Marvella Bayh, 42, wife of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said she decided she couldn't take a job that put her on the government payroll.

"And that closes a lot of doors in this town," she observed.

She has held a job as a reporter on Bicentennial events for Washington's NBC-owned television station for more than a year and is careful not to comment on political affairs. She said she decided to keep working rather than work on her husband's presidential campaign "because I've campaigned for 20 years. I can't campaign and keep my job."

Antoinette Hatfield, 45, wife of Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., has worked for a large Washington real estate business for three years. She recently made a $1-million sale to the Saudi Arabian government. Her husband denied that his close ties to a former Kuwaiti ambassador influenced the deal.

Betty Talmadge, wife of Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., turned her husband's money-losing ham business into a $3-million operation. She sold the business a few years ago and became a meat broker. This month she is in Japan, selling chicken wieners.

Mrs. Talmadge told Myra MacPherson, author of "The Power Lovers," a recently published book on political wives, "I've done one thing all my life, and that's stop and think what the political impact would be.

"But my mind's made up. I see no reason to subjugate my entire life to his political ambitions. I don't want to take his thunder because I can't. But if there's some of my own, I want to get it."

Ann Stevens, wife of Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, started a plant store about a year ago in the Capitol Hill area now being renovated. She and a partner bought a row house for the store and did much of the remodeling themselves.

"We have five children, four of them in college, and it's hard on the pocketbook," Mrs. Stevens said. "When we lived in Anchorage, I did a lot of volunteer work. This is a different phase."

Political wives aren't the only ones who try to avoid conflict of interest charges. The husbands of some of the capital's politically active women have had to chose their jobs carefully — and no one expects the men not to work.

The husband of Rep. Yvonne Burke, D-Calif., who is in the medical business, has had to sever some business associations. Mrs. Burke says, "He can't work with someone who may have a federal contract, and that conflict has come up. There is no question there are financial sacrifices he has to make."

James Schroeder, husband of Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., turned down jobs with consumer and lobbying groups to avoid any potentially embarrassing situations. Instead, he works in a traditional law firm.

When Joan Braden, wife of a newspaper columnist, recently took a $37,500-a-year job as a consumer affairs consultant for the State Department, many political eyebrows were raised because Mrs. Braden is a close friend of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Wife held in mate stabbing

James F. Doiron was taken to the hospital shortly after midnight Saturday by his ex-wife Lupe Duron Doiron, 30, of Alta Loma.

She later was arrested in the waiting area at the hospital and booked at the West End Sheriff's substation on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Ontario police received a phone call about 12:40 a.m. about a stabbing in the apartment complex at 1265 W. B St.

Officers found no one in the apartment where the stabbing had occurred, but a next-door neighbor told police that Doiron had knocked on her door, and when she opened it she was surprised to see the man with his bare chest bleeding profusely.

"Will you help me? My old lady stabbed me," Doiron reportedly told her. The neighbor got a towel and Doiron put it to the wound from which blood gushed.

Doiron said that he was in the kitchen where he was writing a check for child support when he suddenly was stabbed in the upper right chest.

Doiron said he received no warning of the impending attack.

Slump continues for State GOP

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Republican registration in California dropped to 36.9 per cent of all potential voters in January as a decade-long GOP slump continued, state officials said.

Secretary of State March Fong Eu reported Friday that Democrats had widened their registration lead since last January, and the number of voters without party affiliation continued to climb.

She said Democrats had increased from 56.4 to 56.8 per cent of the total in a year, while Republicans dropped from 38.4 to 36.9 per cent. Democrats led in all but three of the state's 58 counties.

The percentage of voters who declined to state party affiliation increased from 4.4 per cent in January 1975 to 5.4 per cent this year.

In 1967, when Ronald Reagan became governor, Republicans numbered 42.4 per cent of the registered voters.

Total registration increased from 6.4 million a year ago to 7.7 million this year, with Democrats gaining nearly 900,000 of the potential voters to fewer than 400,000 new Republicans.

The total is well below the California record of 10.4 million for the 1972 presidential election.

The report said Republicans outnumber Democrats in only Orange, Alpine and Mono counties. San Francisco, at 68.1 per cent, is the state's most heavily Democratic county.

However, the registration figures are frequently not reflected in election results, because California traditionally has had many registered Democrats who vote Republican.

The other two parties that qualify for the California ballot continue to show registration of less than one per cent of the total. The American Independent party had 27,931 members, the Peace and Freedom party 19,132.

Last January the Republicans posted a 2.6 per cent gain following the purge of non-voters from the registration rolls in the previous November general election.

That gain may have been the last of its kind. Last year the Democrat controlled state legislature passed a law eliminating the semi-annual registration purge.

Death toll at 5 in cold wave

A cold wave, blamed for at least five deaths in two days, spread ice across Western Europe on Saturday, with only Rome, Athens, Lisbon and Madrid recording above-freezing temperatures.

The coldest major city overnight was Berlin where the thermometer dropped to 12. It was 14 in Brussels, 23 in Paris and 28 in London.

In Wales a young climber slipped on ice above the Llanboris Pass and fell 200 feet to his death, making the third cold weather death in Britain.

On Friday a 75-year-old mental hospital patient froze to death on the grounds of a Birmingham hospital, and a 9-year-old boy drowned when he fell through ice on a pond south of London.

In France two men were reported frozen to death — an army captain who died while sleeping in his car and a retired miner out gathering firewood.

Man found dead in car—drugs?

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the death of a 28-year-old Alhambra man, whose body was found in his car parked at a gas station at 2600 Pellisier Road in Industry.

Deputies theorized that Larry Halpert probably died of a drug overdose.

His body was found late Friday night in the gas station. Deputies indicated he was fully clothed.

Use of electricity rises 13 per cent at the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford often preaches energy conservation, but in 1975, his first full year in office, White House electrical usage rose 13 per cent.

This compares with a drop of 13 per cent in usage in 1974 compared with 1973.

White House sources say much of the increase in 1975 was caused by new electronic security devices installed on the White House grounds to help detect intruders.

Despite these devices, one intruder managed to get over the White House fence last November and roam the grounds for 90 minutes, at one time approaching within a few feet of Ford's daughter, Susan, before he was caught.

A White House spokesman also noted that there was an increase in electrical usage last summer when more than 1½ million tourists walked through the White House. "It was a very hot summer and their trooping in and out cost a lot of electrical power" for cooling equipment, he said.

He said the President's new electrically heated swimming pool did not add appreciably to the bill, but that new lighting on the White House grounds did add to the cost.

A check of several thermostats in the White House this week showed most of them set at between 70 and 75 degrees, higher than the 65 to 68 degrees the Federal Energy Administration has recommended for government buildings in winter.

Officials hope this year to rewire the White House electrical system, and $1.2 million has been requested in the fiscal 1977 budget to do the job.

The spokesman said the wiring has not been redone since the renovation of the White House in the years 1948 to 1952.

"We just want to bring things up to date to take care of the additional electrical load," he said.

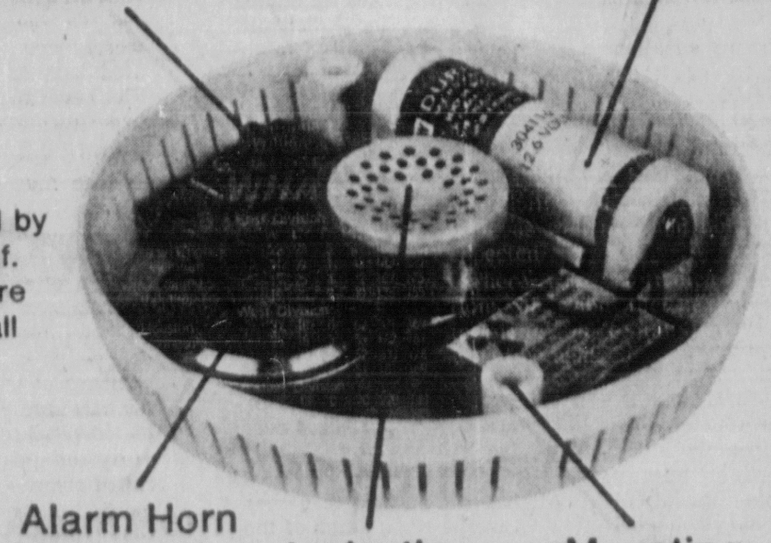
New 355 Early Warning Smoke and Fire Alarm



Residential fires kill more than 12,000 people a year in North America.

The real pity is, so many of those lives could have been saved if the people had been alerted in time.

That is what Kwikset's new Early Warning Fire Alarm has been designed to do.

The ionization principle in the Kwikset Alarm can detect the particles of combustion smoke or flame — before most people have any idea a fire has broken out.

If fire begins when your family is asleep (most fire fatalities occur between midnight and dawn) the 355 Fire Alarm will detect the particles of combustion in the air and set off a loud piercing horn. This kind of protection for your home and family can be less than you think. Ask to see the 355 at HUNTINGTON HARDWARE.

WE HOPE YOU NEVER HAVE TO HEAR IT!

'Student and the Law'

S.D. High tries new class

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The "Student and the Law" program beginning Monday at San Dimas High School will not only provide information on law and law enforcement agencies, but will also "solidify the relationship between the sheriff's department, the school system, the deputy sheriff and the student."

Deputy Bob Mirabella, crime prevention officer at the San Dimas sheriff's substation, will teach the new elective course from 7:45 to 8:40 each morning.

The impetus for the program stemmed from community and deputy sheriff's recommendations in meetings following a summer 1975 conflict between sheriff's deputies and local teen-agers.

The program was implemented in 1967 by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department primarily because of drastic increases in juvenile crime and drug arrests, riots and demonstrations, and officer injuries and deaths. Oak Avenue Intermediate School in Temple City was the target school in the pilot program nine years ago and it soon became one of the most popular classes at school, second only to football.

"Student and the Law" within Los Angeles County now operates in 33 school districts which includes 20 junior high schools, 41 senior high schools and 17 adult schools. Other police departments throughout the state had used it as a basis for adopting similar programs.

In 1968, the program received the "government unit activity" award from the Freedom Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa. It has been endorsed by civic officials, educators, parents and businessmen.

"By informing the students through this educational program, it will not only provide information on law enforcement, but on what a crime is," said Mirabella. "If they can recognize a crime, they might not commit it. So it's crime prevention.

"It will help outline some of the consequences of crimes that are often committed by juveniles," he added.

Mirabella has also been holding informal rap sessions during the Friday lunch period at San Dimas High School for more than three months. Many of the approximately 30 students taking the new class are from these sessions.

The deputy said the students taking part in the informal talks were divided into camps of those antagonistic and anti-police, supportive of law enforcement and fence straddlers.

"Such diversity and exposure stimulated discussion that was necessary," Mirabella said. "It opened up the avenues of communication."

Another deputy from the San Dimas substation will take over the rap sessions as Mirabella takes charge of the "Student and the Law" program. The new officer, said Mirabella, will "expand the exposure of the students to different officers."

Students will also be able to interact with guest speakers from law enforcement agencies in the new class. A textbook will not be used and the emphasis will be on guest speakers, newspaper and magazine articles, lecture and field trips. Mirabella also has the option of beginning a "ride along" program in which the student accompanies an officer in his rounds in a patrol car.

Understanding and cooperation are the objectives of the class.

"The student must realize that policemen are just people, and people are people. They must be able to communicate with a person in a uniform," Mirabella said.

Mirabella, 31, has been with the sheriff's department for six years. He was formerly a counselor with the Torrance Recreation Department. A native of California, he attended John Muir Junior High School in Los Angeles and Torrance High School. He holds a bachelor degree in sociology and behaviorial science and an associate in arts degree in police science.

CANCER'S SHADOW OVER INDUSTRIALIZATION

$600,000 for equipment

State college budget includes Poly project

Cal Poly Pomona is allocated $600,000 for equipment from the 1976-77 governor's budget for California State University and Colleges. The budget must be approved by the legislature which is now in session.

If granted, the funds will be used to purchase equipment for the new science building due to be completed this spring. Funds will be used also for equipment in the computer and audio-visual departments at the university, according to a campus spokesman.

In announcing the allocations proposed to the legislature, Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke said "It is another tight budget, one that reflects the country's present economic circumstances, but is generally supportive of the ongoing requirements of the CSUC.

"The budget presented to the state legislature this week conveys a thoughtful consideration of fundamental requirements of the university and colleges."

Approximately $576.3 million is proposed for support purposes, $23.2 million for capital outlay and $27.4 million for salary improvements.

"Provisions are made in the support category of the governor's budget for the equivalent of 293,410 full-time students an increase of 9,405 from that budget in the current year," said the chancellor.

"The cost per full-time equivalent student would be $2,407, or $60 higher than in 1974-75. This continues to represent one of the lowest costs among comparable colleges and universities in the United States," Dumke said. "Increases in the totals are due chiefly to inflation and increased enrollment."

Planetarium will depict doom theory

A theory of how a cloud of interstellar matter could engulf the sun, disrupting its light and threatening the earth's population, will be advanced this month when the Mt. San Antonio College Planetarium presents "The Black Cloud."

"Our goal is to present quality science fiction which is both educational and entertaining," Planetarium Director Ronald Hartman explained.

The presentation is based on a book by Sir Fred Hoyle. It is an example of entertaining, scientifically accurate and plausible bit of science fiction about the mysterious cloud formation which causes the Earth to become frozen.

Presentations will be at 7 and 9 p.m. on Fridays, Feb. 6 through April 9, with additional programs scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 29 and March 28.

Walnut board hears public comment on proposals by employe council

Public comment on proposals made by the Certificated Employe Council will be heard by the Walnut school board Monday night in the Walnut High School Choral Music Room. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m.

Among proposals are the following in regard to school policy:

"The personnel office will notify each employe whose credential is to expire within six months before such expiration. However, obtaining of certification is the responsibility of the individual applying for the credential.

"Every employe will be notified of and allowed to examine any critical material to be placed in their file and to have attached to such materials their reply. Such materials will be signed and dated by the originator. Every employe and their authorized representative has the right to inspect and copy personnel file materials on request, other than at a time when they are actually required to render services to the district. The district personnel file shall constitute the only records involved in a disciplinary or dismissal action against the teacher.

"Certificated staff members who wish to terminate employment at the close of the school year are requested to submit their resignation to the superintendent before April 1, but such resignation will remain the property of the teacher until officially acted upon the board. The governing board will not accept a resignation after July 1, unless a qualified replacement is available."

The board may act on the proposals following public comments.

Study session sought for Pomona schools

Acting Schools Supt. Sidney G. Moses will propose to Pomona school board when it meets Tuesday that a study session be scheduled Feb. 21-22 in San Bernardino to pursue the two broad subjects of discipline and educational excellence in Pomona's public schools.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in City Council chambers.

"Most everyone has some thoughts and suggestions regarding these areas," Moses wrote in agenda materials. "Two groups have many ideas and a vested interset, the school board and the superintendent's staff.

"Seldom do these two groups have an opportunity to take part in non-structured, free-wheeling discussions pertaining to important educational subjects."

Moses is proposing the study session "to develop understanding of both a personal and professional nature." "The expected outgrowth, though somewhat intangible, would contribute to a more effective educational team," he said.

Cost to the district of such a study session would be about $900. Topics to be discussed would include staff development, the secondary proctor plan, the realignment of administrative staffs at the high schools and the helping teacher program.

The board will be asked to authorize a second study session on Feb. 24 for the purpose of reviewing the State Management Team's report on the operation of the district. Team chairman Mel Powell and other team members could be in attendance, Moses said.

Bicycles tested in Claremont

Approximately 200 Claremont youngsters will participate in bicycle safety programs Monday designed to curb bike injuries and encourage greater driver responsiveness.

Lance Morrison, acting district office manager for the Automobile Club of Southern California, said the Auto Club's "Bicycle Safety Lane" will be at Oakmont School, 120 W. Green St., and Condit School, 1750 N. Mountain Ave. Testing will begin at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., respectively.

Using a modified dynamometer, similar to those used in checking automobiles, the unique Bicycle Safety Lane tests such important bike safety features as wheel and frame alignment, spokes, bearings and brakes. Handlebars, grips, lights and reflectors are checked visually at the same time.

"Provided annually to more than 56,900 cyclists in Southern California, this free Auto Club service stimulates an awareness of safe cycling and alerts students and parents to needed repairs and-or desirable safety accessories," Morrison added.

2 boys sought for grass fire

La Verne police are seeking two 13-14-year-old boys for questioning in connection with a grass fire that apparently was the work of arsonists.

Officers said the fire, which burned a half-acre of grass at 1246 Oakmead Lane in Mountain Springs Estates Friday, was deliberately set.

Police are also seeking a man who apparently reported the fire to county fire station No. 104, as a witness. The man was driving a blue Volkswagen, according to Officer Tony Foti.

Cancer: there may be no place to hide

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

For centuries in the eastern Mediterranean, the long robes and headgear of the people protected large areas of their skin from the intense rays of the sun.

Now this traditional clothing is giving way to modern European dress. One result may be more skin cancer from greater exposure to the sun, says Dr. N.T. Racoveanu, regional adviser in radiation health and cancer for the World Health Organization.

The changing clothing trend cited by Dr. Racoveanu is just one more item on the growing list of environmental causes or suspected causes of cancer. In the United States, there is wide concern about the safety of a number of chemicals with which millions of people have contact.

A recent report by the National Center for Health Statistics in Washington heightened this concern. The center issued figures indicating that the death rate from cancer in this country was five times higher than expected during the first seven months of 1975.

One of the organizations working to identify environmental carcinogens in the United States and abroad is the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) at Lyon, France, an arm of the World Health Organization. Dr. Walter Davis, the chief of research, training and liaison for IARC, discusses the problem in the current edition of the WHO publication World Health.

"At the present time we know little about the actual cause of most human cancers, but statistical analyses of data collected from many different parts of the world indicate that it is highly likely that more than four-fifths of all human cancers are caused directly or indirectly by toxic substances in man's environment," Dr. Davis wrote.

Laboratories throughout the world are testing chemicals for carcinogenicity by administering the chemicals to experimental animals, usually rats and mice, to see if they produce cancers in the animals.

"Even if all the laboratories available were doing this work, probably no more than 400 substances could be tested in this way in any one year. Therefore, efforts are now being made ... to develop a rapid and standardized screening test, which will deal with more substances more quickly."

Thus far, no such rapid test is in wide use. One being developed by Dr. Bruce Ames, a biochemist at the University of California at Berkeley, is based on the belief that nearly every substance known to produce cancer in animals also can cause changes in the genetic behavior of bacteria.

A major aim of many American groups concerned about exposure to carcinogens is to secure passage by Congress of a toxic substance act that would require pre-market testing of chemicals for carcinogenicity.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Public Citizens Health Research Group in Washington, says there are no indications that a strong bill will be passed soon. Spokesmen for industries opposed to such a law say the cost of pre-market testing is prohibitive. Dr. Wolfe replies that the health costs of chemicals with carcinogens are higher.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond and Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, longtime specialists in environmental medicine, say this:

"The air we breathe today contains gases and particles that never before entered the human lung. Our food has chemicals designed to improve its taste, freshness, appearance — but which are strange to our intestines, livers, kidneys, blood."

Cancers related to the workplace have been increasingly recognized over the past 50 years.

In recent years, asbestos has been linked to a rare cancer of the lining of the chest and abdomen, called mesothelioma. It also has been linked to cancers of the esophagus, stomach, colon and rectum. The cancer and lung damage appears to spread beyond the factory gates. In a continuing study of the families of 354 asbestos workers in Paterson, N.J., Dr. H.A. Anderson and a team of researchers at Mount Sinai found that 35 per cent of the wives and children showed lung abnormalities in x-rays, abnormalities similar to those found in the men who worked with asbestos. They also uncovered four deaths from mesothelioma.

And in a new study, Mount Sinai investigators recently found high levels of asbestos fibers — from fireproofing materials — in office buildings in New York, Boston, San Francisco, Berkeley and Chicago. Dr. William J. Nicholson, who directed the Mount Sinai study, said the levels of asbestos are dangerously high in some cases.

With millions of workers possibly exposed to hazardous chemicals, many labor unions have become involved in the search for carcinogens; among them unions in the rubber industry, roofing, paint manufacturing, textiles, printing, oil, petrochemicals, atomic power, paper, shipbuilding, steel and autos.

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health published last June a one-inch thick list of 1,500 chemicals that are "suspected carcinogens." But so far only some chemicals have been listed as definitely cancer-causing in man or animals. The National Cancer Institute lists 32 and a detailed study by the International Agency for Research on Cancer lists 196. Of the 196, only 17 were found to be associated with cancer in man. The rest caused cancer in experimental animals.

What seems to run through much of what is being learned about cancer-causing agents is the irony that technical advances often bring with them hidden hazards. And it sometimes seems as if no one is safe. The convenience of the spray can for hair sprays, for example, depended on the stability of the chemicals called fluorocarbons. Now many scientists believe that fluorocarbons are drifting up into the atmosphere and destroying the protective layer of ozone, which screens out ultraviolet rays that can produce skin cancer.

Iron ore mining became more dangerous with the introduction of the pneumatic drill, because more dust was produced.

And the hormone diethylstilbestrol, or DES, was given to pregnant women to prevent miscarriage, but has since caused more than 250 recorded cases of rare reproductive cancers in their daughters and has caused abnormalities in the sex organs of their sons.

The press and the American Revolution

The American privateers

It was an attractive business to New England seafaring men during the American Revolution, going privateering. In some ways it was much like fishing — no regular pay usually, but a share of the catch or part of the spoils. Many a seaman, and even landlubbers, were drawn into privateering — risky but often profitable adventure.

Danger has not often stopped Americans from seeking quick profits. For seamen, who faced death regularly in their work, danger was no great consideration.

And conditions during the Revolution pointed to the logic of privateering. Fishing was mostly cut off and normal trade stopped by British warships; seamen were idled and ships rotted at wharves. Why not arm a fisherman or merchantman, get a license (letter of marque) from the Continental Congress or the state, and go out looking for prey? The value of captured enemy ships would be divided among the owners, officers, and crew of the privateer.

What if the British did call them pirates? A man might be killed in action, perhaps hanged if caught. But hadn't sailors often drowned in offshore fishing or been lost on voyages at sea? With a little luck a man could come back safe from privateering, and a good deal richer, too.

Sailors generally preferred this to duty in the Navy. The "Militia of the Sea" were much freer, with less military routine to put up with, and the chance for profits was greater. Here was quick action, too, as idle ships were speedily armed and sent to sea. It took time to build and outfit a large frigate. The Continental Navy might struggle to get men, but privateers had little trouble in putting a crew together.

Capt. William Coas of Gloucester, Massachusetts, a daring, resourceful sailor, was one who saw the prospects of privateering early. He armed a fishing schooner with a few guns found nearby and made her ready to sail almost overnight. The small ship, named the WARREN (in honor of Dr. Joseph Warren recently killed on Bunker Hill), put out to sea and was immediately successful. Within a month Captain Coas had captured three unsuspecting enemy merchantmen and sent his prizes back to Gloucester.

Imagine the excitement as townspeople watched the men unload the cargo of the 400-ton PICARY, 325 Hogsheads of sugar, 161 bales of cotton, 168 pipes of wine, and lesser items.

When the WARREN came upon the SARAH AND ELIZABETH on a dark night, the captain surrendered his 500-ton ship without firing a shot. A crewman wrote, "The captain's wife and number of women were on board, who were greatly terrified under the apprehension that, if any resistance was made, they might be murdered by the Yankees, whom they supposed to be Indians." At daybreak when the captain saw that he had given up his fine ship to a small fisherman, he "gave vent to his mortification and regret in tears."

What a fine catch! The SARAN AND ELIZABETH had a cargo of 394 hogsheads of sugar, 180 puncheons of rum, much indigo, cotton, mahogany plank, silver plate, and even cash. Boys of Gloucester could hardly be blamed for asking, "How old must you be to ship on a privateer?"

It was not long before David Pearce, member of a Gloucester merchant family, decided to go into privateering in a bigger way. He was nearly bankrupted when his first privateer, the big GLOUCESTER, went down with her 180-man crew in a raging tempest on the Grand Bank. But Pearce now built the GENERAL STARK (mounting twenty guns and shipping a crew of 136) and got Capt. Bill Coas to command her.

Daringly hovering off the coast of England and Ireland, Coas captured a brig carrying a large quantity of salt beef, pork, butter, and other provisions; and the ship with its cargo were sent back home. To the south several other English merchantmen were taken.

After refitting at the Spanish port of Bilboa — where some of the Stark's crew caught yellow fever and died — Captain Coas captured an armed British lugger that was lurking nearby and brought her into Bilboa for a prize.

Heading homeward after a year at sea, the GENERAL STARK took a large ship "with a great spread of sails" after a stiff fight. Next Coas ran across a brig loaded with fish sailing from Newfoundland to Lisbon. It looked like a well-armed ship; the captain counted 14 guns through his glass. The brig surrendered without a fight and it was found that 10 of the 14 cannons were "Quaker guns" — wooden.

Bill Coas was by now tired of it all, but Pearce talked him into one last voyage. The STARK was out of port only one week, however, before she was captured by a British warship off Nova Scotia. And Coas never did get back home: the ship on which he and other prisoners were being brought to Boston went down in a storm off Cape Sable.

The adventures of Bill Coas were only one example of the career of a privateer. It is estimated that in all about 20,000 men sailed on privateers during the American Revolution, most of them from New England and other northern states. So popular was this business, that more men went into it than were at any one time under General Washington's command in the Continental Army.

Newspapers frequently carried reports of the outfitting and sailing of privateers; or carried accounts of the prizes brought back to port. Enterprising owners sometimes publicized voyages in broadsides such as the one reproduced here.

What profitable adventure it was! Owners of privateers made fortunes; sailors sharing in the loot did well; merchants marketing the captured goods made profits; commisaries, taking a percentage of goods sold to the army, also made money.

Without a doubt Continental soldiers benefitted from the huge quantities of goods taken from the British. The American cause was helped a great deal and would have been more so except for unscrupulous profiteers.

Perhaps more important was the damage to Britain. Losses to privateers were great: 2,000 vessels, 12,000 sailors captured, and thousands of pounds in damages. The ravages of American privateers did great damage to enemy shipping, and undoubtedly hurt the British war effort badly.

El Sr. Wallick, 50, cita motivos de salud causantes de su decision. Se dice que viene sufriendo de dolores de angina y de presion alta de la sangre.

La renuncia fue enviada a las casas de los senores concejales el martes por la tarde. En ella ruega por el continuo apoyo del Departamente de Policia.

El alcalde, Sr. Ray Lepire, dijo que la renuncia sera presentada para su aceptacion en la sesion municipal del lunes. En consecuencia, dijo, solicitaria el nombramiento de un comite discernidor para encontrar un substituto "abierto a todos".

Esto significa que la posicion estara abierta a todos los candidatos de dentro y fuera del Departamento de Policia. El Sr. Lepire dijo que ello asegurara a la ciudad la oportunidad de obtener el mejor candidato para la posicion de $27,000 anuales.

Sin embargo, dijo el Sr. Lepire que el jefe habia celebrado una consulta con su medico a principio de mes. Como resultado, el Sr. Wallick ingresara en el hospital Kaiser de Fontana el mes proximo para un anginograma, los pasos preliminares para determinar donde esta el fallo arterial.

El Sr. Wallick ha estado en las fuerzas policiacas durante los pasados 27 anos, comenzando como policia. Ascendio a sargento en 1954, a teniente en 1958, y a capitan en 1965, siendo nombrado jefe-asistente en 1970. El substituyo al jefe Ralph Parker cuando este se retiro tres anos despues.

El Sr. Lepire dijo que siempre habia reconocido al Sr. Wallick "como un oficial recto aplicador de la ley sin considerar quien la infringio. Lamento su decision para retirarse, pero ciertamente que comprendo sus poderosas razones."

Cuando la lista este completada, se realizaran ensayos para desarrollar los programas de interes a la comunidad. El proposito del programa musical es integrar a padres de diversos antecedentes etnicos y raciales para desarrollar sus talentos y aficiones en actividades placenteras.

Los grupos se reuniran por la tarde o de noche en lugares adecuados de Pomona, en las escuelas del distrito. Los padres interesados pueden llamar al telefono 621-5027 para mas informacion.

Book describes 12 Disciples

Books

By SAMUEL BELLMAN

THE TWELVE APOSTLES. By Ronald Brownrigg. Macmillan. $12.95.

In keeping with the fascinating material in this beautifully illustrated, 248-page book on the twelve men who followed Jesus, the author is an interesting man in his own right.

An author of other works dealing with Christian Scriptures, he is an ex-general staff officer in the Middle East, a committee member of several church societies, and the rector of a progressive parish in the county of Surrey.

Brownrigg begins his colorful narrative with an odd description of another religious leader, the Teacher of Righteousness of the Essene community of Qumran and his 'Council of Twelve,' whose work carried significant implications for a somewhat later period:

"The familiar pattern of the teacher and his school of disciples was to reappear a century later, heralded by a desert prophet whose name 'the Baptizer' reflected the initiation rituals of the water channel at Qumran. For Jesus of Nazareth, as for the teacher at Qumran, the group of twelve personal disciples and founder-members was essential to his purpose."

(Samuel Bellman currently is visiting exchange professor in the Department of Historical and Literary Studies at Portsmouth Polytechnic, Portsmouth, England.)

Tracing the concept of 'twelve followers' from its Jewish roots in the minyan or quorum of ten, required for religious worship in a male-dominant society, and quoting and illustrating from all available sources to present his argument all the more forcefully, the author then sets out to answer the question, "Who were the Twelve?"

There were Andrew and Peter, brothers from Bethsaida (literally "fisher-home") on the north shore of the Lake of Galilee.

Then James and John, sons of Zebedee. Again Brownrigg goes into the cultural and even socio-economic aspects of their background, referring even to the Arabic term for the fishermen's drag-net which sweeps the bottom of the lake: "The partnership of the brothers of Bethsaida and the sons of Zebedee was as necessary for their safety as their success. One of the most powerful factors in the lives of the Galilean fishermen is still the prevailing west wind, which seems to reach the lake from the Mediterranean in the early afternoon."

Next, Phillip and Bartholomew, who give Brownrigg the occasional for an elaborate (but very interesting and effective) study of name-relationships and etymologies. Considering the scant amount of biographical information available Brownrigg's placement of each apostle is provocative enough to suit even the casual reader. "There is no further reference to either Philip or Nathaniel Bar-Tolmai within the four Gospels (beyond the significant factual details in the fourth Gospel). In the Acts, however, the figure of a Philip is to be found in three separate chapters . . ."

After them, Brownrigg describes the publicans or tax-gatherers (as he assumes them to have been), Matthew and James, the sons of Alphaeus. Then Simon the Zealot and Judas the son of James.

The problems of identification, considering name similarities and scant or ambiguous Bible references, are sorted out in a scholarly yet highly readable manner: "It is . . . possible that the last four on the lists of apostles had something specific in common, for which they were regarded as a group." But Simon the Zealot brings up the matter of political uprisings and possible insurrections.

After these come Doubting Thomas (called Didymus, the 'twin'), Judas Iscariot (and much is made by Brownrigg of the very many legends, accretions, and fabulous accounts of his motives for his betrayal of Jesus, and his bad end), and Matthias the Substitute.

Gilbert & Sullivan

You don't have to like co-worker to succeed

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

Did you know that the man who wrote the tune to "Hail, hail, the gang's all here" also wrote "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "The Lost Chord"?

This and a thousand other interesting (and uninteresting) facts about England's Odd Couple of comic opera, William S. Gilbert and Arthur S. Sullivan, are contained in this witty, informative and somewhat self-indulgent work by British theater critic and writer, Caryl Brahms. It tells us a great deal about Gilbert and Sullivan and rather more than we care to know about Miss Brahms, who identifies herself throughout with irritating frequency as "the present writer."

This is the hundredth anniversary year of "Trial by Jury," the first joint effort by Gilbert, a vain, irascible barrister with a penchant for cartooning and writing light verse, and Sullivan, the low-born but high-rising composer, darling of the Victorian Establishment and considered by many, including himself, England's Haydn.

Actually the two had been brought together by impresario John Hollingsworth earlier to do "Thespis, or The Gods Grown Old," but it bombed after a month at The Gaiety, and the two men shook hands and went their ways, Gilbert to write skits and operettas, Sullivan to compose "serious" music — oratorios, anthems, cantatas and sentimental songs that were the rage of gaslit English parlors.

Some years later impresario Richard D'Oyly Carte, who was to play such an important part in the careers of both men, brought them together for "Trial by Jury," and the one-act juristic comedy knocked proper London proper flat. It was such a funny, irreverent, charming frolic, with brilliant lyrics, spritely melodies, and an over-all sense of fun — underscored by sharp satire — that it opened a new era of comic opera to England and the world.

Growing rapidly wealthy and famous, the two men never got along well — the gracious, gentlemanly composer with his lofty ideals, the feisty ex-barrister who battled over cab fares and restaurant tips — but the suave, long-suffering (and prospering) D'Oyly Carte kept bringing them back together for the long string of hits that have enriched the stage and brought a thousand enchanting melodies into the bathrooms and bar rooms of England and the world.

"HMS Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance," "Patience," "Iolanthe," "Princess Ida," "The Mikado," "Ruddigore," "The Yeoman of the Guard," "The Gondoliers" — the two men wrote 14 comic operas in their 25 years of stormy association, some moderately successful, some turkeys, but most wildly successful on both sides of the Atlantic.

Both men were knighted by a grateful sovereign. Sullivan died of chronic ailments that had made his life a misery; Gilbert dies of heart attack trying to save a young lady who had fallen overboard boating in a lake on his country estate.

Miss Brahms' book, while not the very model of a modern major biography, is a rich, authentic documentation of the lives of William Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, and an authorative resource for all G & S scholars.

Scripps sets ceramics show

A reception sponsored by the Galleries at the Claremont Colleges and the Scripps Fine Arts Foundation will open the exhibit at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend the opening free of charge. The exhibit may be seen from 1 to 5 p.m. daily and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays through March 10.

Scripps art professor Paul Soldner, internationally known potter, has organized the show. He personally invited 10 promising ceramists from all over the nation to exhibit. Soldner also asked six artists who have shown in the exhibit before to each invite a ceramist doing outstanding work. As a result, 16 of the nation's promising new talents will be exhibiting.

Their works reflect the current techniques in American ceramics. Construction methods include not only the traditional means of forming pots on a wheel but such processes as slab construction, coil building, casting and impressed molds. One entry consists of drawings on clay slabs contained within large wood panels.

A variety of decorating and firing methods have also been employed, ranging from unfired piles of clay to high-fired glaze ware. Some pieces have been made by high-fire slating in which volatalized salt fumes are used as the glaze; others have been done by raku firing where smoke is used to color clay with a black film and, in still others, low fire lusters, fumed glazes and impressed decorations are used. Porcelain and white talc bodies and low fired red clays are prevalent.

Guild to hear artist

Printer and printmaker Ernest Lacy will demonstrate watercolors at a meeting of the Diamond Bar Artists Guild at Golden Springs School, Diamond Bar, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The public is invited.

Lacy attended Chouinard Art Institute, Kansas Institute of Art, Otis Art Institute and UC Berkeley. He later taught at Chouinard, Cal State Los Angeles and Whittier College. He has had 19 one-man shows and exhibited in 41 invitational shows.

His work is in collections at the Liberty of Congress, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Oakland Art Museum, Pasadena Art Museum and other museums and galleries. He will have a one-man show at the Heritage Gallery, Los Angeles, in May.

FOLK ART — Martha Bowen, a La Verne College graduate turned scrimshander, displays some of her work during a visit to Claremont last week. A scrimshander is one who does scrimshaw, carving or scratching designs and figures on bone, ivory and shells.

Martha Bowen

Artist busy at scrimshaw

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

Martha Bowen is a scrimshander.

The 1969 La Verne College graduate, who makes her living at the recondite art of scrimshaw, visited her alma mater last week and displayed samples of her work for friends in Claremont.

Scrimshaw is carving or scratching figures and designs on bone, ivory shells and wood. It was a favorite pastime of crews of the whaling ships and windjammers of the past to while away the time on long voyages. The major tools of the nautical scrimshanders were a jackknife, a sail needle, shark skin, lamp soot and tobacco juice.

A native of Massachusetts, Miss Bowen took up scrimshaw after graduating from La Verne College with a degree in humanities. She does her work on whale teeth and jaws, walrus tusks, elephant tusks, cow bone and vegetable ivory, a hard nut that resembles ivory.

She carves nautical designs, sailing ships, whales, dolphins, birds, flowers, cowboys and "sun fantasies," impressionistic designs featuring the sun. Some of her pieces are in traditional style, others are impressionistic.

She has exhibited her work at the Peabody Museum in Salem, Mass.; the Gloucester Fair and the Winds of Change in Gloucester, Mass., at the Scrimshaw in Sausalito, where she now lives, and other places. She frequently demonstrates her art and conducts workshops.

The problem today, says the attractive, dark-haired artist, is that recent laws protecting endangered species have taken whale products off the market, Scrimshaw artists are still permitted, however, to use walrus and elephant tusks and cow bone.

The first step in scrimshaw is to polish the bone to a high degree of smoothness. The design is then sketched out and cut into the bone with an Xacto-knife, a very sharp tool. India ink is rubbed over the completed design and brushed off with tissue.

"Scrimshaw is an international folk art," Miss Bowen says, "but Americans like to think it is native to America."

A Scrimshaw Protection Act has been passed by the U. S. Senate and is now before the House. Sen. Edward Kennedy, one of the sponsors, was in San Francisco last spring and Miss Bowen presented him with a sample of her art, a chunk of elephant tusk with a Western scene scrimshawed on it.

After a brief visit in La Verne and Claremont, Miss Bowen returned to Sausalito where she lives on a 32-foot sloop anchored in San Francisco Bay.

Groups plan joint concert

Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring" and Howard Hanson's "Song of Democracy" will highlight a Bicentennial concert by the Claremont Symphony Orchestra and the Louis Ronfeldt Choir in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 4 p.m. next Sunday.

George Denes, founder-director of the orchestra, will conduct "Appalachian Spring," which was commissioned as a ballet for Martha Graham in 1944. Originally scored for 13 instruments, it was later arranged for a full orchestra by the composer. It has received the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Music Critics Circle Award.

Ronfeldt will conduct the orchestra and chorale in "Song of Denocracy," set to a Walt Whitman poem. The two groups will also perform selections from Lerner and Loewe's "Paint Your Wagon."

Pianist Daniel Bridston will accompany the chorale in selections from Copland's "Tender Land" and Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story."

Tickets at $1.50 general, $1 for students, are on sale at the Claremont Chamber of Commerce, the Pomona College Memorial Gymnasium, and the Frances Paul Travel Service, Claremont.

The concert is sponsored by the Claremont Bicentennial Performing Arts Committee.

Theater to offer musical

The Diamond Bar Children's Theater will present a musical version of "Cinderella" in city auditorium adjacent to the Azusa City Hall at 3 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

The program is sponsored by the Children's Room of the Azusa Public Library.

The Diamond Bar Children's Theater, formed in 1972, is made up of youngsters 7 to 12 directed by Ross Clark, a veteran actor, director and script writer. Clark holds a master of fine arts degree from USC and is employed as theater arts specialist by the county Parks and Recreation Department.

Artistic director and choreographer for the group is Christine Champagne, who has worked in children's theater for many years. Her specialty is jazz, ballet and tap dancing.

Church slates art fete

The 16th annual Hillcrest Festival of Fine Arts will be held at the Hillcrest Congregational Church, 2000 West Road, Whittier, Feb. 26-29.

The invitational exhibit will be open from 5 to 9 p.m. Feb. 26, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 27 and 28, and 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 29. Admission is free.

On display will be oils, watercolors, sculpture, graphics, jewelry, ceramics, stitchery, macrame and weaving.

"Songs of Americana," a musical program by baritone Roger Ardrey and soprano Sue Harmon, will be held at the church at 8 p.m Feb. 28. They are former soloists with the Roger Wagner Chorale.

Sandpainting exhibit set

"Tapestries in Sand," an exhibition of sandpainting by Glendora artist David Villasenor, will open in the Citrus College art gallery with a reception for the artist at 6 p.m. Feb. 9. The public is invited.

Villasenor, part Otomi Indian, was raised among students of many tribes at an industrial school in Hermosillo, Mexico. When he was 16 he first saw sandpainting by a Navajo medicine man at a "sing," a sacred ceremony performed for a sick person.

Later he originated a technique for permanently protecting sandpaintings. He uses natural sands and minerals on a plastic, adhesive-covered plyboard, thus preserving examples of the ancient Indian art.

Villasenor has lectured extensively in the United States. He has exhibited at the American Museum of Natural History, New York; Los Angeles County Museum of Art; Southwest Museum; Legion of Honor, San Francisco; Downey Museum of Art; and the Los Angeles County Fair. He continues to share his knowledge of Indian life and philosophy with school children and many youth groups in the area.

U.S. attitudes reversed on marijuana, drinking

NEW YORK (AP) — Since 1969, Americans have reversed their attitudes about the seriousness of smoking marijuana and drinking alcohol, a Harris poll shows.

A survey of 1,394 adults showed that 71 per cent view the problem of "heavy drinking" as very serious, while only 58 per cent feel that way about marijuana.

"This is a complete reversal of public attitudes since 1969, when 73 per cent viewed pot smoking as 'very serious' compared to 53 per cent who felt the same way about heavy drinking," the polling organization said.

Most Americans still oppose legalizing the sale or use of marijuana but increasingly believe that possession of small amounts should not be a criminal offense, Harris said.

Probation officers getting 'Quick Draw' against crime

Helping juvenile offenders as soon as possible

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

Juvenile offenders in the West End of San Bernardino County are getting quick attention from probation officers under a program tagged as "Quick Draw."

These officers want to counsel with the offenders and their parents as quickly as possible and seek a rehabilitation program that can possibly bypass the court system.

"We work primarily with youngsters involved in their first or second offense," said Joseph C. Jimenez, probation director. "If we feel a problem can be solved by counseling from a Quick Draw officer, this is done immediately.

"But if a family needs more help, the Quick Draw officer may refer it to various community agencies such as the Fire House in Montclair or the Family Crisis Center in Ontario," he added.

"The program's main objective is to get the juvenile help as quickly as possible."

Before Quick Draw was started in 1973, juveniles arrested faced a long detention in Juvenile Hall before they could see a probation officer and a rehabilitation program was instituted.

Officials then began seeking a method whereby a counseling staff was readily available to work with the juveniles and their parents and offer appropriate rehabilitation programs outside the juvenile court system.

Under Quick Draw, probation officers were assigned full time to police stations in Chino, Ontario and Upland to work closely with police officers in handling juvenile offenders.

"We are involved with juveniles up to 18 years of age," said Jimenez. "Some start pretty young, even 8 years old."

Police play an important role in the program since they determine if an offender can best be served by going to Juvenile Hall or being referred to a Quick Draw officer.

"We don't get involved in the custody decision," he said. "If a police officer refers a case to a Quick Draw officer, that officer will then review the police report and contact the juvenile and parents to meet with him."

The probation officer will evaluate the incident, determine how the juvenile is getting along with his family and in school and if any outside agencies need to be involved.

"Should the probation officer determine that the situation can be handled with counseling, he will meet with the family up to three times. But if additional help should be required, he may refer the family to outside community agencies such as the Family Crisis Center," he added.

Not all juveniles referred to the Quick Draw program are accepted. "We have certain guidelines we follow, such as if a person is on probation, he is referred to his probation officer. And if a case is severe enough, an application for a petition is filed and the person goes through the court process. He then may be placed on probation or some other rehabilitation plan."

Restitution plays an important role in the Quick Draw program as officers seek to make the juveniles accountable for their actions.

In cases where damage is done, the probation officer will work with the juvenile, his parents and the victims to have the damage corrected.

An example involved some youngsters who sprayed paint on a wall. As part of their rehabilitation program, the juveniles were required to clean and repaint the wall.

Several other youths who did malicious damage in Chino were assigned to cleaning up around the city's fire station and also washing and waxing some of the police cars.

"We will try every solution possible within the community to get the problem corrected," said Jimenez.

Aside from the personal motive, the diversion program is saving taxpayer dollars by preventing these offenders from being placed in Juvenile Hall.

"For each juvenile sent to Juvenile Hall, this costs the county about $30 a day," said Stewart C. Smith, chief county probation officer. "And when a child is processed through juvenile court, this costs the county from $50 for every appearance he makes."

Since the program started, there has been a remarkable reduction in the number of juveniles processed through the court system, he added. "And the juveniles are getting quicker and more efficient service now."

Officers assigned are experienced in both juvenile and adult work and have several years of experience with the Probation Department, said Jimenez.

And since they have been involved with Quick Draw, they have received specialized training and have been sent to various seminars.

Those youngsters referred to the program are involved in a "gamut of offenses" and represent a wide range of ages. They also come from families of varying incomes.

"There appear to be more boys than girls involved," he said. "Most of the girls in the program are referred for incorrigibility."

Quick Draw was funded its first two years by the state. When this funding was dropped last July, the county Board of Supervisors was so impressed by its record they voted to finance the cost this year.

Supervisor Robert Townsend, however, said he will again seek state funding for the next fiscal year.

HEALTH CHECK

School nurse Dorothy Jenkins takes the blood pressure of Jon Holden, program chairman for Pomona High School PTSA, while Nannette Lieva, publicity chairman, sits calmly with thermometer in mouth. The two will be among the students, faculty and parents taking part in Pomona High's Health Fair Monday night at 7:30 in the school gym.

'Damages issue' in Kolar death case will be retried

A Pomona Superior Court judge's ruling in 1974 which ordered a new trial of a jury's award of $25,000 to the family of a young man who died in the San Dimas sheriff's station after his arrest in 1971 has been affirmed by the appellate division of the Superior Court.

The three-judge court ordered retrial only of the issue of damages and rejected any retrial of the original issue of wrongful death. The new trial has yet to be scheduled.

The case involved the death of Dell Wayne Kolar, 20, who died in the sheriff's station after being taken there as a prowling suspect. The wrongful death suit was filed by Martin Kolar, the young man's father, and was tried before a jury in the court of Judge Carlos M. Teran. The result was the jury's award of $25,000 against Los Angeles County in favor of the Kolar family, a judgment Teran set aside.

In granting a motion by county attorneys seeking new trial of the issue of damages, Teran wrote that the judgment was excessive and that there was no evidence of financial contribution by young Kolar to his family prior to his death.

On the contrary, the judge's ruling stated, evidence indicated that from the time he was 15 he had been in one state correctional institution after another and that he had been an added expense to his family.

In addition, Teran's ruling stated, although Kolar was in the Army at the time of his death he had made no provisions for any allotments of his pay to his parents, and his ingesting LSD and other dangerous drugs the day of his death showed "a continuing pattern of delinquency from which it could reasonably be inferred that he had not changed his style of living and that there was no reasonable expectancy that he would contribute any procuniary benefits to his parents in the future."

After the judge's ruling setting aside the $25,000 award, Claremont attorney William Shernoff, the Kolar family lawyer, said he was confident that the appellate court would reinstate the jury's award.

Shernoff maintained during the trial that Kolar died as the result of "crushing force" applied to his throat by sheriff's deputies en route from the scene of his arrest in Glendora to the jail in San Dimas.

Sheriff's deputies maintained that Kolar had taken drugs and was extremely violent during the ride and had to be restrained.

County attorneys claimed he died as the result of a heart ailment, the combined use of drugs and alcohol, and extreme exhaustion which resulted from his struggles with the deputies.

Kolar suddenly collapsed in his jail cell and died shortly after being taken there by deputies that night.

Pomona Council discusses it

Demolition project proposed

The Pomona City Council Monday night will consider a proposal to demolish some 60 vacant or substandard structures in south Pomona and pay for the costs of the demolition with federal grant funds.

If approved by the council, the structures — many of which are old garages and sheds — would be razed at only a nominal $50 cost to the property owner. The remainder of the cost would be funded under the federal Community Development Block Grant — $5,000 of which was set aside for such purposes last year.

The structures are located generally on West First, West Second, West Third, East and West Fourth, East Seventh, West Ninth, West Tenth, West Eleventh, and West Center streets, and Mission and Hamilton boulevards, and a number of other streets in the area.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting will include a request for financial support for preservation of the Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Kindergarten Bungalow, and proposed salary raises for department heads and other management employes.

Pomona High PTSA plans Health Fair

Pomona High School PTSA will hold its first Health Fair Monday night at 7:30 in the school gymnasium.

A film on breast self-examination will be shown at the beginning of the program. The special booths at the fair will feature various organizations which will present their demonstrations, answer questions and distribute literature. Pomona Health Center will provide free blood pressure tests.

Local organizations taking part include Tri-City Mental Health Authority, Pomona Health Center, American Cancer Society, Seventh-day Adventists, Alcoholics Anonymous, Adoption Agency, Firehouse, Open Door, Pomona Community Crises Center, Young Mothers' Education Class, and the safety division of Pomona Police Department.

The physics class will sell paperback books on different health subjects. The Pomona High Key Club has charge of refreshments.

S.D. Library to show films

The February program of children's films at the San Dimas Library will be shown Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

The program will feature "The Case of the Elevator Duck," "Blue Dashiki," "Fabulous Harlen Globetrotters" and "Anansi The Spider."

The free program last about an hour.

Police looking for a witness

Officials said the man drove a blue, late model Volkswagen and stopped at the Los Angeles County fire station on Wheeler Road to report the blaze.

The fire, in Mountain Springs Estates, burned about a half acre of hillside before being extinguished by firemen from the city, Los Angeles County and U.S. Forestry Service.

ESAA committee meets Tuesday

A special meeting of the Pomona Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) District Advisory Committee will be held on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m., in the Education Center board room.

Copies of the 1976-77 project proposals will be distributed to committee member for review and comments.

An open public hearing on the ESAA project proposals for 1976-77 will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room. Members of the public are invited to attend the hearing and give recommendations and comments relative to the ESAA basic, pilot and bilingual project proposals.

YMCA will offer class for tots

A combination swim, gym and craft class for toddlers will be offered by the Pomona Valley MCA beginning Tuesday.

The class, for youngsters from 3 to 5, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 to 11 a.m. for a period of four weeks. Cost is $15.

THAYER SOULE

Soule will talk on Yugoslavia

"Yugoslavia" will be the subject of photographer Thayer Soule's film narration before the Pomona Forum audience Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium.

Soule is a former Marine Corps photographer. He has been lecturing 26 years for the National Geographic Society.

Yugoslavia is different with very friendly people, he said. "It is a land of Moslem and Christian, mountains of Macedonia, sparkling waters of the Danube — and exciting mixture of the old and the new."

It has three languages, three religions and two alphabets.

Wedged between the East and the West, it has borrowed from both, Soule said.

Chaffey school board asked to okay contract

The Chaffey school board will be asked to award a contract for remodeling the district administrative offices building to business education classrooms when it meets Monday at 7 p.m. in Ontario.

Bids for the project were opened Wednesday. K. L. Neff Construction of Ontario submitted the lowest of seven bids received in the amount of $474,000.

Administrators are recommending that the board award that firm the contract. The Neff bid is $21,357 below the architect's estimate for the project, and $9,990 below the second bid submitted.

Administrators will ask the board to authorize a special news release to alert students and parents to the fact that Chaffey district schools will be open Friday, Feb. 13, to meet the minimum 175-day yearly state requirement.

Some other districts in the area will make Feb. 13 a school holiday, allowing a five-day weekend for students and teachers. Thursday, Feb. 12 is the Lincoln's Birthday holiday, and Monday, Feb. 16 is being observed as Washington's Birthday in all the schools.

The board will consider a request made by one board member that minutes of executive sessions be recorded so they may be referred to in later discussions.

Administrators will ask board members to authorize them to develop specifications for the purchase of data processing equipment and to employ a data processing operations supervisor and a programmer analyst.

Upland City Council

Cable TV on agenda

A progress report on the upgrading of cable television will be presented at the meeting of the Upland City Council at 7 p.m. Monday.

The franchise of International Cable Television Co. to operate in Upland has been protested because of claimed poor service by many residents in the northern section of the city.

International Cable TV was granted an extension of the franchise to allow the firm to work out some type of an agreement with Theta Cable TV which operates in the remainder of the city.

Eating lesser of two evils

The latest man-made substance banned by the Food and Drug Administration because it has induced cancer in laboratory animals is Red Dye No. 2, used for decades in a host of products as a coloring agent.

Actually, if the Delaney Clause of the Food and Drug Act, which prohibits the use of food additives known to produce cancer, were applied to natural substances, no foodstuff could be legally sold or consumed. Or so contends Russell S. Adams Jr., a professor of soil science at the University of Minnesota.

There are many natural substances in the environment, he says, which are among the most powerful toxins and carcinogens (cancer producers) known to man and which are often present in the soil at much higher levels than pesticides. What is not yet known with certainty, however, is whether these chemicals are taken up by plants and translocated in biologically active form to the human diet.

Further complicating the matter is the debate over whether carcinogens can produce cancer at any dose level or whether there are "thresholds" below which they are safe. According to Adams, the normal laboratory rat or mouse is highly susceptible to cancer, even when not experimentally exposed to cancer-causing chemicals.

Also, as laboratory techniques improve, what is considered to be a "zero" level of danger today, which the Delaney Clause demands, may not be a "zero" level tomorrow.

"In a practical sense," says Adams, "we must establish finite tolerances for substances we wish to avoid. Rarely will we be presented with clear-cut decisions. Usually a choice must be made between the less hazardous of two alternatives."

Most Americans, however, have come to expect certainty from scientists and clear-cut decisions from those charged with protecting the public welfare. Thus we seem to be on our way to developing the healthiest rats in the world, if nothing else.

"I THINK IT'S TIME WE FOUND ANOTHER LINE OF WORK, PHILBRICK...."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

"It's a neat trick if you can do it," says a tourist who has just returned from motoring up and down the highways of California.

"One section of the California vehicle code states: 'Any person who drops or throws destructive or harmful material on a highway is required by law to immediately stop and remove it.' Another section of the code points out that it is unlawful to stop and get out of your car on a freeway except at designated turnouts."

"So, since you are damned if you do and damned if you don't, I think that from here on out, just to be on the safe side, I'll try to find a Philadelphia Lawyer who would be willing to share the ride with me."

The panic of the liberals

WASHINGTON — "I think it is correct to say," admitted liberal U.S. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., "that the optimism which we brought in 1958, that whatever the problem was, we could get a handle on it — we don't have that kind of optimism anymore."

Hart admits that liberalism has lost its bloom. After 17 years of supporting budget-busting spending programs, Hart is retiring this year, filled with bitterness over the failure of the liberal philosophy that "government could solve most problems."

The financial ruin of New York City is the most telling testimony that this failure is true.

Public opinion polls continue to substantiate in hard, cold statistics that the electorate is rejecting liberalism in massive numbers. In fact, the world "liberal" is coming to be regarded with the same contempt that was once reserved for the word "conservative."

In the face of this growing political hostility to the liberal philosophy, congressional liberals have unleashed a counterattack hardly consistent with the liberal claims of tolerance, respect for dissent and differing points of view and the need for open political dialogue and diversity in the electoral process.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress, for example, was once a leading force for electing liberals to the House and Senate. In the last 12 months it has been challenged by a conservative counterpart, The Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress.

NCEC has reacted to this challenge by labeling its challenger a sinister radical right wing plot allied with big business that is "exploiting a loophole in the new federal election law" — which was written and passed by congressional liberals whom the NCEC either supported or elected.

This campaign by congressional liberals has all the earmarks of political panic. Their panic is confirmed by a memo circulated by the liberal Democratic Study Group (DSG) in Congress and signed by Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. In the memo the DSG acknowledges that 50 of the most vulnerable Democrats in Congress are among those 75 freshmen liberals elected in 1974 in the immediate aftermath of Watergate.

The Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress had singled out many of these freshmen for defeat, much as NCEC has spent decades trying to defeat conservatives. But the liberals are now crying foul and labeling the CSFC a menace to the free and democratic political process.

Congressional liberals are apparently so worried that their campaign has taken a decided ugly turn. Prior to the congressional Christmas recess, for example, liberal congressional members began decrying to their conservative colleagues in the House the latter's support of CSFC, labeling CSFC "name-calling radical rightists." CSFC congressional supporters were pressured to publicly disassociate themselves from the conservative political action group.

Many freshmen liberal members of Congress facing defeat are themselves seeking to escape being identified as such. With public opinion polls showing a growing hostility toward liberalism, freshmen, like Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., have sought to lay claim to being conservative. Rep. Spellman's voting record clearly indicates she votes liberal and yet she is talking as a conservative to the press and to her constituents.

Fresh evidence of liberal panic was provided prior to the return of Congress in late January with a statement by Sam Fields, staff member with the liberal Americans for Democratic Action. Fields revealed a number of vulnerable freshmen Democrats called begging not to be listed on the liberal ADA rating.

"A lot of freshmen," Fields said, "are nervous about the ADA ratings.

"They see that as a cross to bear this year, particularly if they won in a normally conservative Republican district. They read the Harris polls that say the country is going conservative and they think the ADA rating can be used against them to identify them as a liberal big spender."

It is, therefore, curious to watch as liberals in Washington seek to convince the voting public they are conservative while engaging in a secret campaign against conservatives.

A valiant fighter

Dear Editor:

The death of Paul Robeson brings to a quiet end the life of a valiant fighter.

Paul Robeson was a black. He was an American. He was a citizen of the world.

Some people said he was a communist. The Los Angeles Times wire service says that his communist ties ruined his career. Accusations were hurled at him from the halls of Congress, from the sidewalks of New York, and from the swamps of Mississippi.

It was not for communism that evil men tried to destroy him.

Paul Robeson worked for full freedom for black people in America and for the welfare of all people. He also joined in the struggles of colonized Africans and of poor whites along Tobacco Road and in Appalachia and of starving peasants in Europe and Asia. He worked for peace and for justice and for the rights of man.

It was for his stand above and in spite of his detractors that he was hated.

In the first half of his life he was honored. In the second half he was reviled and persecuted.

As a college student he was named an All-American football player and he was graduated Phi Beta Kappa. As a singer and actor he was cheered around the world. In 1944 he won the Donaldson Award for the best acting performance and the American Academy of Arts and Science gold medal for the best diction in American theater.

At the height of his success he did not forget his people. He could not close his eyes — or his mouth, and so he was condemned by the powerful and rich.

The name of Paul Robeson was removed from the list of All-American players. In 1950 the federal government forbade him to travel outside the United States. Acting roles were withheld. Concert halls were closed to him. At an open air concert in Peekskill, N.Y. he and those gathered to hear him were attacked by a howling mob while police officers looked on.

In 1957 he wrote:

I speak as an American negro whose life is dedicated, first and foremost, to winning the full freedom, and nothing less than full freedom, for my people in America.

Robeson was not so viciously attacked because he had communist ties. They wanted to silence him because they hated and feared this strong man who was using his abundant talents to cry his bitter protests and his prophetic warnings. — Lorenz Graham, Claremont.

Veto variables

Congress has pigeonholed the common situs picketing bill, following its veto by President Ford, and if history runs true to form it will not be resurrected during this administration.

From George Washington to Richard Nixon, American presidents cast 2,257 vetoes, and only about six per cent of them were overridden by Congress, says John R. Lee, a political scientist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Among Lee's other findings, as reported in Human Behavior magazine:

The use of the veto has been on the increase since the Civil War.

—Democrats use it more than Republicans (Grover Cleveland and Franklin D. Roosevelt have been the biggest veto-wielders).

—Presidents who are elected with substantial electoral vote majorities use the veto more often than others.

—Congress tends to override vetoes more often when times are bad.

Also, the study indicates that presidents who spent many years in Congress before rising to the chief executive's office were generally less inclined to veto, perhaps as a result of the respect they gained for that body.

This last bit of veto lore, as well as some of the other statistics, will have to be updated in light of the Ford administration's record.

Gerald Ford, a Republican, not only spent 25 years in the House of Representatives, but as our first unelected President had no electoral vote majority at all and certainly has presided over bad times.

Yet in his first full year in office, he used the veto on some 16 bills, only three of which were overridden by Congress.

Defense contract racket

WASHINGTON — No sounding trumpet stirs the hearts of weapons makers quite like a call for more military spending. President Ford's request for a $112.7 billion defense budget, therefore, brought joy to the board rooms of the top defense contractors.

Now the great scramble for military contracts begins anew. Each weapons system is supported by a formidable lobby, composed of the military brass who want it, the contractors who manufacture the component parts, the workers who put them together and the Congressmen whose districts enjoy the economic benefits.

The Navy's caustic Admiral Hyman Rickover is one of the few who not only have resisted the pressure but have spoken out about it. "It is almost subversive," he once snorted, "not to want to spend government money. The real pressure we got is to undertake more projects to spend more money." The pressure, he said, "is generally in the nature of urging me to undertake new projects which we consider not worthwhile."

The pressure is social as well as political. The giant contractors, such as Northrop Corporation and Rockwell International, court Pentagon officials assiduously. The way to many a defense contract has been greased by a mixture of booze, blondes and barbecues.

The brass hats and the industrialists shoot together in duck blinds. They ski together on the Colorado slopes. They drink together and play poker together. And invariably, the tab is picked up by some smiling corporate executive.

The relationship is so cozy that many Pentagon officials, upon retirement, go to work for the companies that had come to them for contracts. The last time we counted them, we found 715 former Pentagon bigwigs scattered over the payrolls of the top defense contractors.

It's a rare contractor that doesn't employ a few retired generals and admirals who are on a first-name basis with the Pentagon's big brass. Northrop Corporation, for example, has 64 ex-Pentagon officials on the payroll. This may help to explain how Northrop has managed to wangle a whopping $620.3 million in military contracts.

Boeing Corporation, which is doing a $1.56 billion business with the Pentagon, has 48 former Pentagon bigwigs on the staff. And Rockwell International, with $732.3 million in defense contracts, has 36 ex-officials in key jobs.

From Pentagon files, here are a few examples:

— Vice Adm. Robert Lee Townshend was chairman of the selection advisory council, which recommended Grumman for the multi-billion-dollar F-14 fighter plane contract. One month after he retired from the Navy, he joined Grumman International.

— Capt. Richard W. Anderson used to represent the Navy at the General Dynamics plant in Pomona, Calif. He was entrusted to see that General Dynamics met government standards. Now he has switched allegiances to General Dynamics, which has hired him as a consultant. Anderson told us he had not violated the public trust.

— Col. Albert M. Lehner was the Air Force representative at a Boeing plant. When he resigned from the Air Force, he joined Boeing. "If I didn't think it was ethical," he told us, "I wouldn't have done it (gone to work for Boeing)."

— As an Air Force officer, Lt. Gen. Glenn Kent prepared and reviewed analytical work for the Pentagon. Now he does the same thing for Northrop, Westinghouse, Boeing and Lulejian and Associates.

— A senior Navy project officer, J.J. West, of the Naval Material Command, handled eight consecutive procurement requests involving SEACOR as a contractor. Some were dated after he told the Navy he was retiring. A week after West retired from the Navy, he accepted a job with SEACOR. He told us that SEACOR was only one of several firms that offered him a job before he left the Navy and that there was no conflict of interest.

— Fred J. Buzhardt had been the Defense Department's general counsel. Then he moved over to the White House to become one of Richard Nixon's Watergate defenders. Now he has gone back to private practice, with Raytheon, Inc., as one of his clients.

The defense contractors also slip their own people into Pentagon procurement offices as secretaries, clerks and even engineers. They are called "contractor personnel" and are loaned to the Pentagon ostensibly to help the overloaded bureaucrats.

But in fact, the borrowed workers have access to secret information concerning their own companies. On occasion, they even write procurement requests for their firms.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

Of all the things from which we take comfort, is there anything more serene, more or greater a symbol of strength and courage than a tree? The deep bark on an ancient oak has absorbed so much warmth and light from many suns. In Spring its limbs cradle the bird's nest and gives the way of the squirrel privacy. Its broad glossy leaves filters shafts of early morning sun and shades the earth beneath. In winter moonlight it stands like a graceful sculpture silhouetted in a remnant of black lace on the white earth.

Within a tree, circle after circle gives it strength from the years of layering and growth. Each circle could take us back to times beyond even our ancients' memories — and yet it can tell us nothing but to stand firm, bear the forces that would blow us this way and that, give what we can, be as beautiful as possible and above all, inspire someone beyond their natural ability to just be.

A bitter pill for labor

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — In early January labor leaders on the special labor-management construction industry collective bargaining committee took "their bat and ball" and went home.

Why? President Ford's veto of the controversial common situs picketing bill, that's why.

In retrospect those actions raise at least two important questions. First, should a president's word be binding on criticial national issues? Second, is organized labor playing its proper role?

Mr. Ford definitely broke a promise to labor and Mr. Dunlop when he vetoed the union's pet bill.

It was a bitter pill for organized labor to swallow. They have been trying to pass a common site picketing bill for nearly three decades which would allow a single grievance to shut down an entire construction site.

While walking out on the special committee labor leaders promised "unmitigated hell" in construction contract negotiations this year, but Mr. Ford's decision to change his mind more than likely averted just that.

The President's mistake was making the promise in the first place. He was perfectly justified in making the best decision for the country.

The second question is not so easily answered.

The role of organized labor, as perceived from this political city, is that of a major political force.

The impact of labor unions is immense. One of the first things a political observer looks for is where union support lies. A candidate with union backing is instantly credible.

The union political impact is, in fact, far out of proportion to its actual strength. Only about one-fourth of the nation's workers are union members, yet presidents and congressional leaders bend to labor's whim.

Robert Georgine, head of the AFL-CIO building trades department unwittingly characterized the role of most unions today.

"For us, it is sheer futility to meet with organizations which oppose the concept of collective bargaining, "Georgine said as he resigned from the collective bargaining committee.

His words shed considerable light upon the union leadership's concept of itself. They feel they are right and three-fourths of the workers are wrong. Georgine's words also belie a strong will to exist simply to exist.

We have all profited by the efforts of organized labor, but we also profited from the labor of horse and mule trains.

It is time the unions started thinking about long-range future of their members and less about self-proliferation.

Ann Landers

Different kind of Yule letter

Dear Ann Landers: Since you and Herb Caen of the San Francisco Chronicle are against mimeographed Christmas letters I thought you might consider quoting something from Herb's column which my husband and I enjoyed immensely. Here it is:

"I don't care for Christmas Letters, but Bruce Bliven's are different. Now 86, the one-time editor of The New Republic (for 30 years) lives with his wife at Kingscote Gardens, Stanford. He wrote:

" 'At 86 Rosie and I live by the rules of the elderly. If the toothbrush is wet you have brushed your teeth. If the bedside radio is warm in the morning you left it on all night. If you are wearing one brown shoe and one black shoe, you have a pair like it somewhere in the closet. Try not to mind when a friend tells you on your birthday that a case of prune juice has been donated in your name to a Retirement Home.

" 'I stagger when I walk and small boys follow me, making bets on which way I'll go next. This upsets me. Children shouldn't gamble. Like most elderly people, we spend many happy hours in front of the TV set. We rarely turn it on.' "

Sweet, isn't it? — Your Friend Blondie In Reno

Dear Blondie: Right you are! That's a Christmas letter that warms my heart. Not a word about Jim's promotion, the children's stellar achievements, the dog's litter of puppies, mother's arthritis, or the new Mercedes Benz. I hope Bruce and Rose see this and put me on their list for next year.

Dear Ann Landers: A certain woman who works in this office despises me because I have a spectacular figure, can eat anything I want and never gain an ounce. She is on a perpetual diet and looks like a baby elephant.

This miserable dame tries every which way to undercut me with the department head. If I am a few minutes late, she reports it. If I leave early to get a ride with friends in bad weather, she lets me know. Same for lunch hours. Of course she exaggerates everything. Ten minutes becomes "half an hour."

I'm not bragging when I say I am twice as efficient as she is and turn out top quality work. How should I deal with the problem? — S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: The best way to protect yourself against Miss CIA is to beat her to the draw. Inform the department head of your tardiness or early departures before she does. Also, make up the time you owe the company and keep records.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married seven years and have been wanting desperately to have a baby.

Yesterday I went to my doctor (hoping and praying) and he verified it. I am pregnant! My husband is so thrilled he wants to tell everybody. I'm only in my second month and don't want it known because my pregnancy will seem like forever. Do I have the right to insist that he keep quiet? — Tra La La

Dear La: You are the one who will be carrying the load and who people will be asking, "When, already?" Therefore he should keep his lip zipped until you can no longer zip your skirt.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed (13 cents now) envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dr. Miller

Limping puppy needs attention

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband accidentally stepped on our puppy's foot. They both cursed a little, and he's been limping ever since. How long can you wait to see if it's going to be all right before you should have a foot like that looked at? — G. C.

DEAR G. C.: A painful paw (presuming we're talking about the puppy, not your husband?) should be looked at as soon as possible, certainly within hours. If there's continued pain or swelling, the very fact that the puppy continues to favor a foot indicates there is pain somewhere. If right after the accident the foot is used progressively more and more and everything appears normal except for the (lessening) limp, then a wait-and-see attitude may be justified. Otherwise, an early checkup is definitely indicated.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've found cock sage grouse are usually twice the size of the hens. Are there any upland game birds where the hen is larger? — B. R.

DEAR B. R.: With many species, both sexes weigh about the same but only the hen woodcock will frequently outweigh her mate.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Yesterday we were in a pet shop picking up a chew toy (for our dog) and we saw these fantastic saltwater fish called blue-faced angelfish. They are so beautiful, we've just got to have some. The only thing is, by the time we buy some of these fish, get a big fish tank for them and all of the stuff we're supposed to need, it's going to cost us a not-very-small fortune. The store owner assures us these fish will live, with proper care, for many years. He acts so casual about this, I'd like some reassurance from a third party before we invest so much. I wouldn't be so nervous about it except he won't guarantee the fish at all once they leave his shop. He's not taking any chances. How big a chance would we be taking? — R. D.

DEAR R. D.: The chances are slim for beginning saltwater aquariasts to keep blue-faced angelfish for one year, let alone several. Successfully keeping these fish, and many other of the breathtakingly beautiful saltwater varieties, requires skills the beginning aquariast simply doesn't possess no matter how deep the initial plunge is, financially speaking. To avoid bitter disappointment and considerable financial loss, start a saltwater aquarium hobby slowly, with a shop that aims to build long-term, satisfied customers.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What a time we have had. Our two children got sick, our cat got sick, and our parakeet got sick and died. It turned out they all had that intestinal infection called salmonellosis. I guess we will never know now whether our poor bird or our cat had the bug first. — M. B.

DEAR M. B.: The doctors on the case would be the best ones to try to answer your question. However, in all fairness, when you're considering who had salmonellosis first in the family, you'll have to include your children as possible "suspects." Salmonella can be transmitted from humans to pets as well as from pets to humans.

Letter writing now for rich

The high cost of postal service is not only prompting some of the biggest users to seek cheaper means of delivering the mail, it's creating a new status social class: letter writers.

During the last ten years as I've watched the price of a postage stamp more than double, I've seen letter writing go from a lower middle class form of communication to a rich man's sport.

It was the 13-cent stamp that really tipped the scale and separate the haves from the have-nots. The other day as I pushed my way through the parking lot of luxury cars, I stepped inside the post office and came face to face with polo players, philanthropists, heiresses and jet setters.

There wasn't one familiar face in the line. I casually mentioned this to the man in front of me who snuggled in his chinchilla coat and said, "They're probably all at home making phone calls. Oh, it's cheaper and faster to phone, but like I told my son, 'I know it's expensive to write, but a couple of times a week just pick up the pen and let us hear from you.' You can't imagine what our postage bill is. The other week, he wrote for 20 minutes."

"But I can't imagine . . ."

"Don't you just love the post office now?" he gushed. "Now that the rates have gone up, you meet such a better class of people. Hello Rocky!" he yelled to a man near the front of the line. "Oh, you get a few in here who buy the postcards — you know, the climbers — but generally you meet your own kind here.

"It's not official yet, but I heard the Nieman-Marcus Christmas gift catalogue is coming out next year with a three-ounce letter sent from Juneau, Alaska. Wouldn't you like to be able to afford that little baby."

"Aren't you exaggerating just a bit?" I said. "I mean the postal rates can't mean that much of a class distinction."

"Are you kidding?" he asked. "See that man at the counter? He wrote letters and played tennis before it was fashionable. Not your Nouveau letter writer." (A first class stamp fell to the floor and the man didn't even stoop to pick it up.)

"Now that's class," said my companion. At the window, the man in the chinchilla ordered 50 first class stamps, sent an insured parcel to Chicago and registered a letter to Iowa. He whipped out his checkbook to await the bad news.

"Gosh," I said. "How much is all of that going to cost?"

He gave me a withering look. "If you have to ask, you can't afford it."

Special stack for robbers

Was long the custom in some Himalayan communities for a wife to show a special request for certain of her husband's guests by going topless during their visits. Elsewhere, the women of Naga traditionally covered only their breasts, nothing else, when visited by family guests. Don't know the theory behind the topless performance in the Himalayas and am afraid to ask, but the Nago people reasoned simply that there was no shame in revealing the parts of the body with which a person was born, only some reluctance in showing off the later developments.

ACTOR'S PAY

Q. "Which makes more money, a typical working stage actor on Broadway or an average actor on one of the TV soap operas?"

A. It's a toss-up. About $35,000 a year is predictable pay for both.

The White House lawn is not getting the animal action that once it got. President Zachary Taylor pastured his horse there. Mrs. William Howard Taft put her jersey cow on it to graze. And Mrs. Woodrow Wilson cropped it short with 20 sheep.

Our Love and War man points out that the Latin stem word meaning "challenge to combat" gave us both the words "wage" and "wedding."

Were you aware that bank tellers are required by federal ruling to keep a stack of marked money at hand to be given only to robbers?

ODD LAWS

In Nortin, Va., it's illegal to tickle a girl. In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, it's illegal to kiss anybody the kisser hasn't previously met. In Montgomery, Ala., it's illegal to swear within earshot of a woman. And an unscrupulous householder can be jailed just about anyplace in Florida for hiring away the neighbor's cook.

Say it costs $34,000 to put a scholar through a university. But what if that citizen didn't want to go? What if that lively thinker invested the $34,000 in a savings account that paid 7.5 per cent interest compounded daily? By age 64, that money-minded soul would be worth $1.1 million.

No doubt residents of Nebraska eat less than people elsewhere. One study suggests that elderly citizens owe their longevity to the fact that they don't put away as much grub as others. Another study proves that Nebraskans have the longest average life expectancy with 71.95 years.

Dr. Lamb

Tired? may be depression

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing this letter to you about my wife. She has been to the doctor about being always tired and run down. She can sleep through the night until 10 or 11 the next morning and get up and says she is tired. During the day she is dragging herself. She looks tired and worn. She will lie down for an hour or so and get up. About an hour or two later she is all tired out.

She has had the doctor check her over, blood test and all and he finds nothing. Can you please tell me anything the doctor may be overlooking or not checking for?

DEAR READER — Fatigue can be caused by many things. Most of the causes of fatigue from disease or abnormal functions would be picked up by the doctor on his examination. Since he found nothing and combined with your description I would be suspicious that she is having a depression.

Depression is common. It will certainly sap a person's energy level. The depressed person may be just barely able to cope with the day's demands.

Unfortunately the person doesn't always realize that he or she is having a depression and others around the person may not fully be able to separate this problem from the normal ups and downs of living. A depression can be caused by loss of a loved one or more suble factors in life. The person is not able to shake off this feeling spontaneously. It does no good to say "snap out of it" or insist on "getting hold of yourself."

What is needed is good professional help and perhaps your doctor will consider referring your wife to a psychiatrist for evaluation of the role of her emotions in causing her fatigue.

Some depressions are short lived. They offer a unique opportunity to the person to find out what factors in their life need changing or managing. In this sense they may help a person develop a much better life for the future.

Not all depressions are swings between manic over-active behavior and deep depression. The plain simple depression that is so common may never be associated with a swing to manic behavior. Often a skilled professional can get at the cause of the depression fairly soon, and with a limited number of sessions provide enough support to work through the problem.

Not all professionals handle a depression properly. It is not a time for a silent uncommunicative doctor. The doctor must take a more positive approach and provide some meaningful support to bring out the problems and allow the patient to work through the cycle. If a patient with a depression gets an unresponsive uncommunicative person he or she cannot relate to, the best approach is to find a doctor one can relate to.

The presence of modern drugs makes it possible for patients to receive some relief rather early in treatment, when that is indicated.

Now I don't know that your wife really has a depression but it is certainly the one thing that is often missed. While focusing on the possibility of cancer, anemia, thyroid disorders and the countless things that structurally go wrong with the body, the doctor may not always give proper weight to the influence of the emotions in creating real pain and exhaustion in a patient. So it is at least worth considering.

Oil for lamps easy to make

By NORMAN STARK

In the stark (no pun intended) realities of our time, making ends meet becomes quite a challenge. Our homes should be havens where we can relax and "recharge our batteries" for the next day's struggle. And few things contribute as much to the atmosphere of serenity as the old-fashioned oil lamp. I hope you'll forgive me for a few minutes of nostalgia.

When I was a young boy, my grandmother had a farm overlooking a lake just a few miles west of the city of Milwaukee. My Uncle Phil stayed at home to run the farm and take care of his widowed mother. I spent many a happy hour there with "Uncle Phil" — my hero — who taught me to hunt, fish, and even managed to get a little work out of me on occasions. One of my fondest memories is of the evenings when the smell of rabbit or pheasant frying on the wood range filled the old country farm kitchen which was lighted with oil lamps.

Most hardware stores now sell lamp and patio oil that's quite expensive. But you can easily make your own at a fraction of the store price. You'll need three ounces of ordinary agricultural lime (if you don't already have some for your garden, any building supply or garden shop will have it), one gallon of kerosene, (from a filling station), a few drops of oil-soluble dye (from a paint store), and several layers of cheesecloth.

Pour the kerosene into an open top vessel and add the lime. Stir mixture continuously for at least two minutes. Because kerosene is flammable, an electric mixer should not be used. An ordinary egg beater works fine, and of course, mixing must be done in a well-ventilated area away from any flames.

Next, stir in the oil-soluble dye to obtain the color you want. The mixture should now be strained through cheesecloth to remove any undissolved particles and stored in a sealed glass, metal or plastic container. Remember, kerosene is toxic as well as flammable and should be kept well out of the reach of children.

The cost of making your own lamp and torch oil is approximately two cents per ounce.

To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then compare the per-ounce cost — you'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little effort.

Note: Material costs are based on the prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic area. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any chemical product you use at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.

Opening lead — K ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

At first glance Judy (Mrs. Jim) Jacoby was unhappy with the dummy. Here she was in a conservative six diamonds and it looked as if seven diamonds, seven spades, or six notrump would make easily. Then she remembered something we have been stressing for years.

Make sure of your contract before you worry about other contracts. She cashed dummy's ace of diamonds at trick two and was delighted to see that there was a sure diamond loser. How could she protect against a spade loser in the event that spades failed to break?

Her first step was to lead a diamond to her king. Then she ruffed her last club and came back to her hand with the king of hearts. It seemed safe to assume that hearts would not break 8-0.

Then came the key safety play. She led a low spade toward dummy's queen. West couldn't ruff since Judy would play a low spade from dummy. So he discarded. Now Judy cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart and threw West in with the high trump to force him to give her a ruff and discard and a top score.

Note that by leading that spade to the queen Judy guarded against all bad breaks in spades.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know the correct response to partner's one-notrump opening when you hold:

♠ J x ♥ x x ♦ x x x ♣ A K 10 x x x.

Assuming you are playing standard notrumps, the correct response is three notrump. Don't waste any time experimenting with clubs and go after the notrump game.

Joyce Brothers
Searching for love

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 17 and I think something must be wrong with me. Everyone else in my school seems to be hung up on somebody but I can't kid myself into thinking that I'm in love when I'm not. Two of my girl friends are pregnant and I wish I were. At least it would show that I'm human and not some kind of freak.

Boys like me for one date and then they move on to someone else. I don't even like them for one date. What's wrong? Am I abnormal? — C. W.

Dear C. W.: People develop emotionally and physically at different rates of speed. Normally, this is no problem but in a society that places so much emphasis on acceptance, popularity and uniformity, the individual often does not allow himself the freedom to be different, to grow at his own pace.

I'm sure there is nothing wrong with you. You obviously have not yet met the one with whom you can share yourself or your feelings. Loving is giving. And, I don't mean physical giving because this is probably the least important. Many people, as you know, give of themselves physically when they don't love, or even care for the other person involved.

Any girl who is physically healthy and of a certain age can have a baby. Pregnancy proves nothing and is a cruel way to try to establish identity or to prove a point. Unfortunately, many young and confused girls today use pregnancy to try to gain status. What they prove is how immature they are. It is the babies who pay the price for their mothers' insecurity and thoughtlessness.

Children whose needs for food, clothing and love are neglected by parents suffer nearly as much psychological damage as youngsters who are beaten or abused by their parents. Parents who have children for selfish reasons almost always abuse the children in one way or another.

The teen-ager's need for love can become like an addiction, and this is bad for mental health. A person who needs so desperately to experience love is often someone who is insecure, feels inadequate, lacks self-respect by using another person. Using people is not love and it is unfair to the person being used. Until we can love and appreciate ourselves, we can't truly give love to anyone else. We can only give a kind of counterfeit emotion, a cheap imitation of love.

It is a strange thing but often one of the best and quickest ways to find love is to forget all about it. Sometimes concentrating on a subject of special interest or a hobby attracts other people. The person who has a vital interest is like a kind of magnet that draws others to him. The really exciting individual is one who has interests outside himself.

School years are a time for learning. Take advantage of the educational opportunities around you now and you may find that there are many kinds of excitement you never knew existed. If you become fascinated and excited by some new subject in school, if you begin to probe its depths, you may find that others are drawn to you and you will soon have something of interest to share with them. Love is sharing and if you have nothing to share or bring to a relationship it may never be very fulfilling or rewarding.

Nothing is wrong with you and probably there is very much right with you. Try to use your time to develop new interests so you can grow as a person. And stop worrying about finding love.

"STOMACH ULCERS DON'T BOTHER ME"

Says Bert DeMeter, Printer, 2619 Alvira St., L.A., "I have been suffering from an ulcer for many years and spent lots of money for treatments and all kinds of diets, but it keeps coming back. In 5 weeks under Dr. Wing, I felt like a new person. I did not lose any time from work. No more poached eggs and milk, and I can eat all my meals in restaurants. It is a blessing to order regular meals again. It has been over 6 years and I am still feeling fine."

Yogurt store

The world's first yogurt emporium has opened in New York. The store features frozen yogurt served in a variety of flavors with toppings of nuts, honey and granola. It is also served mixed with fruit juice or frozen between two natural honey wafers. What can be done in a store to make yogurt special can be done at home. One cup of any flavor yogurt contains as many nutrients as a glass of milk.

'Perfect' sewing seminar charted

Erma Hall's Perfect-Fit Pants Seminar, a two-hour lecture demonstration on sewing and fitting pants will be sponsored Monday and Tuesday by Indian Hill Village and House of Fabrics in the Jewel Bug at 10 a.m. and again at 6:30 p.m. There is a $3 admission fee for the two-hour seminar.

The presentation is a totally new approach to making and fitting pants, with emphasis on quick and easy professional methods. It includes classroom tested answers to many of the pants fit problems that plague those who sew. Many of Mrs. Hall's tips and techniques apply to other sewing projects, as well as pants.

Mrs. Hall studied design at Washington University and has spent more than 20 years as a custom-designer, consultant and sewing teacher. She is widely known for her expertise in pattern alteration and adjustment.

Her unique no basting methods eliminate hours of sewing time and give the professional ready-to-wear look one wants to achieve. Her lecture and demonstration will explain how to spot and correct fitting problems, alter a pattern, ease onto a waistband, press like a pro, and design and make a variety of outfits from one basic pattern.

Love gifts

Valentine's gifts need not be elaborate or very expensive. In fact, the gift that is useful and practical, as well as special, is one to be truly cherished these days!

Scented bath products, particularly soap, make charming Valentines. The individually wrapped bars which can be bought singly in the bath size, or three to the box in hand size, not only look pretty, but like the sachets of yesteryear, they can be used to scent a closet or drawer as well as the body.

Refugee doctor faces problems in new country

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Nghiem Dao Dai says he's luckier than most of the 126,000 refugees who fled to the United States last spring after the fall of South Vietnam. But he says he often feels discriminated against in America, and his wife is unhappy and lonely.

With his pregnant wife and 2-year-old daughter, he escaped from Saigon last April three days before the city fell to the Communists.

Dai, 34, said his family had 45 minutes to pack and reach the home of an American friend who had desperately arranged their evacuation.

Left behind in Vietnam were Dai's mother, two sisters, two brothers, a four-story home, a teaching position at the University of Saigon and a future as one of Vietnam's best surgeons.

All they brought with them, he said, were a "few clothes, my documents to show I was a doctor ... and a determination that my children wouldn't be raised by the Communists."

"I was luckier than most," he said. "I know English, I have skills and I'd been to America before. I knew everything here is different — the culture and the languages."

Dr. Henry Bahnson, chief of surgery at the University of Pittsburgh — where Dai had studied for 16 months in 1973 and 1974 — located Dai at the Camp Pendleton, Calif., refugee center and helped him find a job as a resident at the University of Arkansas Medical Center.

Discrimination is the biggest problem he has encountered in this country, Dai said.

"People just are uneasy when I'm around," he said. "Maybe it's just because I don't speak English so well. But I think it's more than that."

His wife is "not very happy," he said. "At home (Saigon) she had a big house and friends and maids. She doesn't speak English so it's hard for her to get along by herself."

Dai fled to Saigon from Hanoi in 1954 after the Communists defeated the French. He said that move was easier than the one to America because the culture and language were the same.

Despite difficulties in America, Dai says he's glad he left Vietnam.

"The ideology is just different under the Communists — they like to separate family members and teach them about the party," he said.

British romantic

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Are the British traditionally austere, reserved and unromantic? Not when it comes to Valentine's Day, avers Hallmark researcher Flora Mears, who specializes in old English folklore.

Valentine's Day was celebrated in England as early as the 15th century, when the custom was for the girls in a community to write their names on a slip of paper and put them in a jar. Each young man would then draw out a name and pin the paper to the sleeve of his coat. This indicated whom he would escort during the Valentine's Day festivities — and also gave rise to the expression "he wears his heart on his sleeve."

It also is believed in some parts of England that the first bachelor a girl sees through her window on Valentine's Day morning is the man she will marry within a year. Another old British legend, according to Miss Mears, has it that if a girl puts a handful of bay leaves sprinkled with rose water under her pillow on Valentine's Eve, her future husband will appear in a dream.

Bruins too much for USC in the end

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — It was a typical UCLA-USC game. Bitterly contested down to the wire.

Down by 13 points, 41-28, at the half, Southern Cal came back in the second half to draw within two points twice in the closing two and one-half minutes.

The Trojans didn't have as much of either and, in the end, they didn't have enough time. So it ended, UCLA 68, USC 62.

Both coaches changed their starting lineups.

Gene Bartow of the Uclans started freshman David Greenwood in place of Ralph Drollinger. Troy's Bob Boyd had freshman Neil Arnold in the backcourt in place of Casey Jones, who had been getting the nod since Earl Evans injured his heel.

Greenwood scored 11 points and had six rebounds. Nine of the points and five of the boards came in the first half. The points all came in the first 10 minutes. Drollinger played less than five minutes, all in the first half.

"We feel, very, very happy," said Bartow. "I had a good feeling today. I felt we would play well. Despite the flu (Drollinger and Washington missed practice one day) I thought we played just about as well as we can play in the first half."

Two eight-point spurts in the first half gave the Bruins their lead. Greenwood played a key role. With the score tied 6-6, the 6-10 freshman hit a basket and two free throws to make it 10-6.

Andre McCarter threw up a one-handed prayer that was answered to make the score 12-6. A half minute later, McCarter stole the ball and scored on a layin to make it 14-6.

Then it was Marques Johnson and McCarter. Johnson hit on 14 and 15-foot jumpers. Greenwood connected on a 15-footer and McCarter threw in a 17-footer to make it 25-11.

In the remaining 9:33 of the half, USC managed to cut the margin by only one point.

"I haven't seen UCLA play as well as they did in the first 12 minutes," said Trojan coach Boyd. "After that, I was very happy with the way we played."

Troy ripped off 10 straight points early in the second half. But it was in the last four and one-half minutes that USC made its bid. Trailing 60-50, Marv Safford hit on three shots and Greg White put in a pair of free throws. Safford came back with another bucket.

He was the leading scorer in the game with 24 points, 16 of them in the second half.

UCLA's only answer was a pair of free throws by Johnson. White was fouled and sank both charity tosses to bring the Trojans to within two, 62-60, with 1:15 remaining.

Gavin Smith, assisted by McCarter, scored on a layin. But Mark Wulfemeyer put USC back within two on a 21-footer.

But UCLA had the lead and Troy needed the ball. Wulfemeyer fouled McCarter at the 53 second mark and Safford fouled Washington with nine seconds left, as USC missed chances of its own to score. The four UCLA free throws accounted for the final points of the game.

"It was a good game," sighed Boyd, "but the bad guys won."

"I'm just glad it's over," sighed Bartow.

UCLA, 4-1 in the PAC-8 and tied with Oregon State and Washington for the conference lead, travels to Washington Thursday night and Washington State Saturday.

USC, 0-5, reverses the order.

Drag era will begin today

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

Southern California drag racing fans who witnessed the end of one era in the sport's history last October at Ontario can see in the beginning of another today at Pomona.

The 16th annual renewal of the National Hot Rod Association Winternationals at the L.A. County Fairgrounds will mark the first major drag racing event since the retirement of the legendary Don Garlits some three months ago at the NHRA Supernationals. Garlits, the Florida veteran who pioneered the NHRA's glamor category, Top Fuel, hung up his helmet last Fall after running the lowest elapsed time and fastest top-speed ever en route to a Supers victory and a clinching of the 1975 World Championship.

With Garlits out to pasture, the question of top dog in Top Fuel has been thrown wide open, and taking the title in the National season-opener would do much to boost the claim of any pretender to Garlits' throne.

The gentleman whose credentials seem most in order is 1974 Winternationals champion Gary Beck of Edmonton, Alberta. Beck, whose bitter rivalry with Garlits made it to the courts last year, is qualified in second spot for today's eliminations with an e.t. of 5.793 with a top speed of 243.90 m.p.h. Beck won the Top Fuel World Championship two years ago, and was barely edged out of a repeat performance by Garlits in '75.

Another former Winternationals champion, James Warren of Bakersfield, has been mentioned as a possible successor to Garlits. Warren, who won the Pomona Top Fuel title way back in 1968, is qualified sixth in the field with an e.t. of 5.922 and top speed of 242.58 m.p.h. Warren distinguished himself one week ago by beating Beck in the finals of the NHRA's prelude to the Winternationals, the inaugural Phoenix Winter Classic.

A full day of qualifying Saturday failed to unseat Top Fuel's leading qualifier, Dale Funk of Radcliff, Kentucky, who will enter eliminations in the topseeded spot in the field. Funk set a new track record Friday when his Milodon-powered dragster roared to an unheard-of elapsed time of 5.780 at 241.93 m.p.h. Funk is hardly an intruder, having won the NHRA Gatornationals last March en route to an eighth place finish in the World Championship Series.

NHRA officials were mildly disappointed when Saturday's qualifying failed to produce the first-ever all five-second field in Winternationals history. As it is, 11 of the 16 qualified dragsters ran e.t.'s of under six seconds, and the five who missed didn't miss by much. The slowest qualifier, if that term seems appropriate, was Jim Murphy of Irish Hills, Michigan, who powered his Donovan to a mere 6.041 at 229.00 m.p.h. Frank Bradley, the veteran from Napa, holds third-best qualifying position with a 5.886 at 235.60. Culver City's Tom Toler, still fighting for recognition despite a fifth-place finish in the World Champion race last year, ran comfortably in fourth with a 5.896 at 238.72. Last year's top qualifier, Paul Longenecker of Arcanum, Ohio, has qualified seventh this year with a 5.942.

All in all, the 1976 Top Fuel field is the quickest in the event's history, and second only to last October's field at Ontario as the quickest ever. Despite the loss of its patron saint, Top Fuel is alive and kicking.

Much less pre-eliminations speculation surrounds the Funny Cars. Don "The Snake" Prudhomme again heads the field, and this time he has a shot at establishing a new National record. Prudhomme, the Granada Hills veteran who is the only competitor in Winternationals history to have won both Top Fuel and Funny Car titles, brought Saturday afternoon's near-capacity crowd to its feet with a sensational run of 6.026 at 238.09 m.p.h. Prudhomme, who made the first five-second run in Funny Car history at Ontario last year, will have to run within ten percent of that time today in order to establish the record.

Prudhomme is back to defend not only a '75 Winternationals title, but a World Championship and five other NHRA National titles. "The Snake" easily won the Phoenix Classic a week ago. Prudhomme's Saturday run upstaged the Friday performance of Tripp Shumake's '75 Monza-shaped Funny Car at 6.137 and 228.42 m.p.h. A pair of veterans figure to give Prudhomme the most trouble as Fresno's Ed "The Ace" McCulloch (6.245 and 225.56) and Forth Worth, Texas veteran Gene Snow (6.275 and 223.88) qualified seventh and ninth, respectively.

Pro Stock is led by yet another NHRA living legend, Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins of Malvern, Pennsylvania. Jenkins, going for an unprecedented fifth Winternationals victory, qualified his '76 Monza at 8.777 and 154.63. The winningest NHRA professional driver since 1970, Jenkins has won the Winternationals in even-number years three straight times.

Eliminations in Sportsman categories yielded Class championships for a number of Pomona Valley drivers. Former World Champion Jerry McClanahan of Pomona edged Eugene, Oregon's Larry Peterson for the R/Stock Automatic title. McClanahan's '66 Impala ran a 14.37 at 86.95 to top Peterson's '66 Chevy at 14.52 and 91.64. McClanahan will seek his first-ever Winternationals Stock championship today.

Broncos win eighth straight

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Cal Poly Pomona's basketball team has a lot of soul.

That was the opinion of Bronco Coach Don Hogan after his team defeated archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, 68-62, here Saturday night.

"This team has what it takes," Hogan said. "It comes right from the heart."

The win gave the Pomonans eight consecutive victories to extend their season record to 11-6.

More important, the Broncos are 4-0 in California Collegiate Athletic Association play with six to go — four at friendly Kellogg Gym.

"We've still got a long way to go," Hogan addressed his team after the victory, which climaxed the Broncos' first weekend sweep ever of Cal State Bakersfield and SLO on the road.

"You showed me what you guys have inside," Hogan continued. "You played very well in a difficult situation here tonight after a tough game in Bakersfield last night. You make me proud every time we go out on the court."

If anything, Saturday's win here was tougher than Friday's 87-83 win at Bakersfield.

As expected, SLO (0-4) in CCAA, 10-8 overall) used its deliberate offense and tough defense to set the pace of the game.

The Mustangs enjoyed the lead throughout the first half but Pomona was able to rally to gain a 30-30 deadlock at the intermission.

After Brian O'Flaherty gave the Mustangs the lead to open the second half, the Broncos came back to gain permanent possession of the lead with six straight points.

Pomona built an 11-point lead with 9:16 to go but SLO was able to hang in there to make it shaky.

Veteran guard Joe Sills, Pomona's All-America candidate, came through with the big baskets when the Broncos needed them the most.

SLO standout Gerald Jones gave the Mustangs a lot of hope when he sank a 20-foot jumper to close the gap to four (61-57) with 2:02 on the clock.

Sills retaliated by driving to the basket for a layup to take the momentum away from SLO.

Jones hit an 18-foot jumper with 37 seconds left to cut the difference to three at 65-62 but Sills put the victory away when he again drove for a basket, making a twisting layup and getting fouled. The guard from St. Louis sank the free throw for a big three-point play and the final score.

"We had to have those baskets," Sills said. "We kind of relaxed when we had that lead and let them get back in the game. We did a good job this weekend. These were two real physical games."

Sills tallied 25 points to give him a total of 49 for the weekend. He made 11 of 20 field goals and three of five free throws.

Senior forward Paul Newton enjoyed a big night with 17 points and 14 rebounds in making five of ten field goals and all seven free throws.

SLO shot 50 per cent in making 28 of 56 from the floor while the Broncs hit on 48.2 with 27 of 56. Pomona won the game at the foul line in making 14 of 18 while the Mustangs had six of nine.

Both teams had 32 rebounds with SLO charged with 20 turnovers to Pomona's 15.

Pomona returns to Kellogg Gym Monday night to host San Francisco State in a nonconference game. Azusa Pacific plays at Poly in another nonleague game Thursday night, followed by Cal State Los Angeles next Friday in a key CCAA battle. CSLA is in second place with a 3-1 record.

Kings blitz Canadiens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defenseman Ab DeMarco's second goal of the night ignited a four-goal Los Angeles explosion as the Kings shelled Montreal 7-3 Saturday night to snap the Canadiens' 42-game consecutive victory streak on the West Coast.

The Kings were the last team to defeat Montreal on the West Coast, 6-3 on Feb. 6, 1971. It was the first West Coast loss ever for Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman.

The second-place Kings, who still trail the league-leading Canadiens by 21 points in Norris Division, erupted for three goals in a 57-second span of the second period to shock the Canadiens and goaltender Ken Dryden, the NHL's leading goalie.

Bowman replaced Dryden in the nets with Michel Larocque to start the third period.

DeMarco, acquired by Los Angeles 15 days ago from Vancouver, fired the Kings into a 32 lead on a power play goal at 11:08 of the second period on a 55-foot slap shot.

His first goal of the night, which also came on a Los Angeles power play, was a 40-foot drive which eluded Dryden.

Demarco also picked up an assist on Vic Venasky's goal in the first period to make his scoring debut with the Kings.

After Yvan Lambert tied the game 3-3 at 15:23 of the second period on a power play goal, the Kings' Bob Berry drilled one in from five feet to give Los Angeles a 4-3 lead.

Seventeen seconds later, Don Kozak connected on a rebound to make it 5-3.

Veteran Bob Nevin added the fourth goal of the period at 16:40 as he tipped in a pass from Mike Corrigan.

Knox going to Philly?

They made no public announcement of Saturday's trip, but informed sources said the two might be interviewing Los Angeles Rams Coach Chuck Knox, a native of Pennsylvania.

It was reported earlier that Knox's contract expired this month and that he was seeking a better deal with the Rams.

Tose and Murray met with Restic on Friday, but none of the parties involved has commented on the interview.

Knox, who joined the Rams in 1973, has led his team to National Conference titles in all three years, compiling a 33-9 record.

During his tenure, the Rams have gone 2-3 in playoff games, having lost in the first round in 1973 and in the division championship the past two seasons.

Before joining Los Angeles, Knox was offensive line coach of the Detroit Lions for six years and an assistant coach for the New York Jets for 10 years.

The 44-year-old coach is a native of Sewickley, Pa., and attended Juniata College in Huntington, Pa., where he was co-captain and a three-year letterman as an offensive lineman.

After graduation in 1954, Knox spent one season as assistant coach at his alma mater before going into Pennsylvania prep coaching for four years. He was line coach at Tyrone High for one season and head coach for three years at Elwood City High.

Knox also has held coaching jobs at Wake Forrest and the University of Kentucky.

Also reportedly still under consideration by the Eagles is Norm Van Brocklin, the former Minnesota Vikings and Altanta Falcons coach, who quarterbacked the Eagles to their last NFL championship in 1960.

MSAC downs Mesa

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College held off a late charge by visiting San Diego Mesa Saturday night to post a 44-37 basketball victory in a South Coast Conference tilt.

The win enabled the Mounties to stay tied with Santa Ana atop the SCC standings. Both teams are sporting 5-0 conference marks following wins Saturday. Santa Ana thumped Fullerton 72-53.

The Mountie-Mesa encounter was a rather bizarre one from start to finish. In addition to the unusually low score, the game was stopped for some 15 minutes when the scoreboard clock decided to go on the fritz. The final six and one-half minutes were finally played out, as the officials used a hand-held stop watch to time the game.

MSAC broke on top in the slowly paced game early and never trailed, but a determined Mesa rally in the closing moments almost spelled disaster for the hosts. Mesa, playing a deliberate-style game, didn't score until over five minutes had elasped in the opeing 20 minutes. The Olympians were behind 17-12 to MSAC at the half.

The two teams speeded up the tempo a bit in the early going of the second half and MSAC built up what looked like a safe 29-16 advantage with about 10 minutes remaining.

At that point Mesa finally began to hit from the outside and used an effective full-court press to whittle the Mounite lead to 31-29.

Coach Gene Victor's troops built that advantage back up to 34-29 but Mesa wouldn't quit and closed the margin to 38-35 with just a minute left.

At that point MSAC center Duaine Harding was called for an offensive foul as the Mounties were trying to run out the clock, or rather stop watch. Harding compounded the infraction by protesting too violently and was hit with a technical foul as well on the play.

Mesa, with a golden chance to at least tie the game up, had John Davis miss the free throw resulting from the "T." The Olympians retained possession, but Angelo Branch missed a 20-footer and Brad Wise controlled the rebound for the Mounties.

Two free throws by Jeff Cox and a couple hoops by Angel Santiago in the final minute then iced the win for the Mounties, their 16th of the year against only four losses.

Santiago led all scorers with 14 points, but Harding overshadowed Santiago's effort with a domineering 16-rebound, 10-point evening.

Center Jim Hoffman topped Mesa (now 0-5 in the SCC and 9-11 overall) with 10 points.

The win sets up a big showdown between MSAC and Santa Ana for first place. That game will be played Wednesday night at the Dons' gym starting at 7:30 p.m.

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Third-round scores Saturday in the $230,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament on the 7,215-yard, par 72 Waialae Country Club course:

Ben Crenshaw	70-69-65—204
Al Geiberger	68-70-66—204

Irwin likes wind

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — "I was happy to see the wind come up," Hale Irwin said. "There were too many guys up there too high. We had to have something, a little wind, to make it interesting."

The gusty, whipping trade winds came up—following morning showers—as Irwin was playing his back nine Saturday in the third round of the $230,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament. There was a massive jam of players at the top when the winds started, and Irwin was there alone when the round finished.

He fashioned a scrambly, hard-won, six-under-par 66 and established a one-shot lead over hot-putting Bob Murphy with a a 54-hole total of 201, a distant 15 under par on the wet, soft and soggy Waialae Country Club course.

But it was a fight, a struggle, for Irwin, a three-time winner last year who is rapidly moving into the front rank of the game's performers.

He and all his family have heavy colds. He's sniffling and coughing and gulping medication.

"We've been working pretty hard just trying to get healthy," he said. "Luckily, we're under the care of two very good doctors. But we've all been down and out all week.

"I'm just glad I was able to play a good back nine."

He played that side in 32, four under par, and moved to the lead alone with birdies on three of four holes at one stretch.

Murphy composed a 67—including a birdie on the final hole after the national television cameras had cut away— and was alone in second just one shot back at 202.

Five different men led or shared the lead before Irwin's late burst put him in front, but it's still very tight. Besides Irwin and Murphy, nine other players were in strong contention going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $46,000 first prize. Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer were well back, six and seven strokes, respectively, despite matching 69s in the third round.

Ben Crenshaw, winner of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am last week, had a brilliant 65 and was tied for third with Al Geiberger at 204. Geiberger shot a 68. Crenshaw didn't make a bogey, didn't miss a green and he didn't have a "5" on his card.

Veteran Billy Casper, whose 64 ranked as the day's best round, and Larry Nelson were at 205. Nelson shot a 67.

The group at 206, 10 under par and five behind the scrambling Irwin, was composed of John Jacobs, Charles Coody, Wally Armstrong, Dr. Gil Morgan and Roger Maltbie, the 1975 Rookie of the Year. Armstrong closed up with a 65, Morgan had a 67, Coody 68, Maltbie 70 and Jacobs—who shared the second-round lead with Irwin and Murphy— slipped to a 71.

Palmer, who came so close to victory in this tournament a year ago, was at 208 and Trevino at 207.

Irwin's round was much the same as his effort of Friday—a desperate scramble saved by some brilliant putting. He missed five greens and nine fairways. But he didn't make a bogey.

Murphy stayed on his heels with some equally brilliant work on the greens. He one-putted eight times—including a 30-footer—and happily announced: "I'm holing everything I look at."

He was two shots behind when the national television cameras cut away after 17 holes, but he closed to within one by chipping to five feet for birdie on the final hole.

Gregg, Redman leading pack at Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Peter Gregg and Brian Redman, roaring along at a record-endangering pace, held a sizable lead over two other factory-backed BMW CSLs late Saturday, as the 15th annual 24 Hours of Daytona endurance race passed the one-third mark.

The Gregg-Redman BMW, one of the few machines not to experience at least some mechanical difficulties, was clipping along at an average speed of 111.34 miles per hour, covering 232 laps, 891 miles, on the 3.84-mile Daytona International Speedway road course.

In second place at the one-third milestone was the BMW of John Fitzpatrick and Tom Walkinshaw, two little-heralded Britons, two laps back. Trailing them by another eight laps, having lost nine laps for brake repairs, were NASCAR veteran Benny Parsons and Englishman David Hobbs.

A Porsche Carrera driven by Coloradans Bob Hagestad and Jerry Jolly, surprisingly moved into fourth place with a steady performance. They were followed by another Carrera, piloted by Al Holbert and Frenchman Claude Ballot-Lena, which had been running as high as second before an axle needed replacement.

Other early frontrunners also experienced trouble. The Carrera of Hurley Haywood, who with Gregg won the last two 24 Hours races, and Jim Busby finally moved into the top ten after stopping an incredible three times to replace shattered windshields. The third windshield was scrounged from a Carrera parked in the spectators section.

Ludwig Heimrath of Canada crashed his Carrera into a slower car while running seventh at 200 laps. A trio of Mexico City drivers in another car, Guillermo Rojas, Fred Van Beuren and Andres Contreras, was knocked out of eighth place in a similar smashup.

A hardy contingent of the estimated record crowd of 27,000 kept a vigil through the chilly, 45-degree night. The forecast of ideal weather Sunday was expected to swell the gallery to more than 30,000 for the 3 p.m. finish.

Connors, Borg to meet today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Persistent Jimmy Connors dropped the first set Saturday night but rallied to put away boyhood pal Dick Stockton, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2 and advance to Sunday's final of the $115,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Indoor Tournament.

The 23-year-old Connors, from Los Angeles, meets Sweden's Bjorn Borg, who swept into the championship round Saturday afternoon with a powerful 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Holland's Tom Okker in the other best-of-five semifinal.

The 5-foot-11 Connors, seeking to regain the No. 1 ranking he held two years ago, survived a muscle cramp in his right thigh that had him limping through several games of the second set to oust the game 24-year-old Stockton of Dallas.

The Connors-Borg final made a prophet out of the tournament computer which seeded Connors No.1 and Borg No. 2, at least until the result of the final.

Stockton, who appeared to have recovered from a back condition that handicapped him last season, came on strong in the first set.

After falling behind 2-0 and losing his service in the opening game, Stockton drew the cheers of the 12,361 fans as he broke through Connors in game four to even the set at 2-2. Buoyed by his sudden success against the favored Californian, Stockton broke through again in a 14-point sixth game to lead 4-2.

Stockton then traded service in games seven and eight and won the set in the ninth game with a service ace.

AL offers Seattle a team

NEW YORK (AP) — American League baseball owners resolved Saturday to put a team in Seattle in 1977 if three conditions are met. One of the conditions was the dropping of a $32.5 milion law suit.

The conditions were announced by American League President Lee MacPhail in the presence of Lester Smith, the representative of a group wanting to put baseball back in Seattle, the city whose one-year fling with the game resulted in the law suit.

MacPhail said the other two conditions were that a Seattle franchise go to Smith and his group which includes five other men including show business personality Danny Kaye, and that a satisfactory lease agreement be worked out.

The announcement came in in the early evening about seven hours after a meeting of the American League owners was convened in a midtown hotel.

Shortly after MacPhail's announcement, he and the owners went back into session.

The meeting broke up about a half hour later and MacPhail said, "Everything as well as could be expected.

There were no indications of when the next meeting on expansion would be held.

His first statement at the impromptu news conference was: "We have passed a resolution approving to expand to a 13th club under certain conditions."

The conditions were then read in the presence of Smith, who, in answer to a question of whether the conditions could be met, said: "That's why I came to New York."

The other members of Smith's Seattle group, besides Kaye, were identifed as Walter Schoenfeld, Steven Golub, Jim Walsh and Jim Stilwell, all are Seattle businessmen except Kaye.

The Seattle question turned into a sore for baseball when the 1969 Pilots became the 1970 Milwaukee Brewers. After the move the legal battle quickly followed.

MacPhail, questioned about other expansion plans, said only the Seattle question had been discussed.

A Seattle franchise would give the AL 13 teams and would lead to scheduling problems since one team would always be idle. A solution to the problem would be 13 teams in each the AL and the National League and interleague play. However, it is known that the National League is cool to such a proposal although it has the approval of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Even though baseball apparently is suffering the same growing pains as other major league sports, the expansion movement apparently has not discouraged several groups.

The head of one such group, Frank Offermann, who says he represents "a half dozen or so" Buffalo people showed up to plead his city's case even though he had not been invited.

"We're ready to buy a franchise," said Offerman, whose family used to own the Buffalo minor league franchise. Then he added, "We have a little problem. we have to build a stadium."

While MacPhail and Smith would not comment on the dropping the $32.5 million law suit brought by the city of Seattle, King County and the State of Washington, indications were that the suit would be settled out of court.

On Friday, activity lagged at the trial in Everett, Wash., as rumors circulated that the damage suit might be settled by negotiations to bring an AL expansion team to the Northwest.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs indicated Friday they would watch the weekend talks intently and for the third straight week a Monday session of the trial in Superior Court was postponed.

While the AL discussed its Seattle-solve-the-suit question, baseball in general awaited the outcome of another court case which could have much more far-reaching effects than expansion.

That case was underway in Kansas City where U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver has indicated he could rule by Monday on a decision by an arbitrator that affected the reserve clause.

The arbitrator, Peter Seitz, held last Sept. 23 that pitchers Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles and Dave McNally of Montreal had become free agents by playing out the option year of their contracts and were free to sell their services to the club of their choice.

Huskies dump Cougars

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington center James Edwards scored 19 points to lead the sixth-ranked Huskies to a 75-65 Pacific-8 Conference basketball victory over the Washington State University Cougars in a regionally-televised game Saturday.

Steve Puidokas topped WSU with 20 points but got little support as the Huskies effectively shut off WSU's number one scorer, Ron Davis.

Davis, who entered the game averaging 18 points, was held to three free throws and no field goals in seven tries by Washington's Kim Stewart and Ken Lombard.

The victory boosted Washington into a tie for first place in the Pac-8 race with Oregon St. Both teams have 4-1 records. The Cougars slipped to 3-2.

For the season, the Huskies are 17-1, while the Cougars are 12-4.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — After a tight first half, guard Phil Ford sparked fourth-ranked North Carolina's attack as the Tar Heels scored nine unanswered points midway through the second half and went on to a 79-64 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Clemson Saturday night.

Crucial in the Tar Heels triumph were Ford's 23 points and Tommy LaGarde's 12 rebounds.

CHICAGO (AP) — Earl Tatum scored 22 points to pace second-ranked Marquette to an 85-59 college basketball victory over Loyola of Chicago Saturday night.

Maryland shuts off Dantley, beats Irish

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame basketball Coach Digger Phelps said his offense "doesn't just go to Adrian Dantley," but when the Irish stopped going to the All-American forward Saturday, Maryland shut off their attack and emerged with a 69-63 victory.

"James Tillman did an excellent job on Adrian in the second half," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driessell after the little-used freshman held Dantley to six points over that period.

"Maryland kept its poise at the end of the game, and we missed a lot of shots...a lot of shots," said Phelps. "They got their shots. They played a control game and in the end it beat us."

Phelps, who had slowed the game down when his team led by one with six minutes to go, refused to second-guess his decision.

"We had control going into the stall. When you make the shots in that type of offense, you're a hero, and it worked against UCLA last week. It just didn't work today."

John Lucas and Steve Sheppard combined for 42 points to lead the seventh-ranked Terrapins past the No. 10-ranked Irish.

The Terrapins, 15-3 for the season, broke the game open in the final three minutes, outscoring the Irish 9-2. Sheppard's basket on a baseline drive with 2:10 remaining, gave the Terps a 62-61 advantage which they never relinquished.

Notre Dame came down the floor and missed, and sophomore guard Brad Davis hit on a twisting layup, hiking the advantage to 64-61. Lucas, who had 23 points for the game, hit two more free throws and then a jumper at the buzzer to seal Notre Dame's fourth defeat of the season. The Irish have won 12 games and had a seven-game winning streak going into the game against the Terps.

Dantley, who was held to less than 30 points for the first time in seven games, nonetheless was outstanding in a losing effort. But the Irish failed to support him and the combination of Sheppard, who finished with 19 points, and Lucas, proved too great for the 6-foot-5 All-American.

The two All-Americans—Dantley and Lucas—hooked up in a sensational scoring duel in the first half.

Dantley, proving equally effective inside and out, poured in 22 points, 14 in the last six minutes when the Irish charged back from a 26-20 deficit. The Terrapins led from the start and held leads up to nine points before Notre Dame made a charge late in the first half. Bruce Flowers' tip-in of a missed Dantley free throw gave Notre Dame its first lead at 38-36, and the Irish went into the locker room at intermission ahead 40-38.

Lucas, directing his team's every move at the opposite end, had 16 points in the first half under an assortment of drives and his one-handed, flat-footed set shot.

In the process, he moved into first place on Maryland's all-time scoring list, surpassing Tom McMillan.

Hoosiers win 28th straight

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Top-ranked Indiana, getting 30 points from All-American Scott May, scored almost at will Saturday and smashed Wisconsin 114-61 to set a Big Ten basketball record of 28 straight conference victories.

The undefeated Hoosiers controlled the game from the outset, building a 15-point lead in the first nine minutes, widening the margin to 32 at the half, 62-30, and blowing the Badgers out in the final period.

Center Kent Benson pumped in 23 points for the Hoosiers, while Bobby Wilkerson and Wayne Radford added 14 apiece and freshman Rich Valavicius chipped in 12.

Indiana now is 18-0 overall and 9-0 in the Big Ten. The victory erased the former conference record of 27 consecutive triumphs set 14 years ago by Ohio State.

Wisconsin, led by Brian Colbert's 14 points, suffered its seventh straight defeat and fell to 2-7 in the conference and 8-9 overall.

Indiana's fierce defense limited the Badgers to two field goals and a pair of free throws in the first nine minutes of the game. Meanwhile, Wilkerson and Benson, firing in a variety of inside and outside shots, propelled the Hoosiers to a quick 21-6 lead.

Indiana steadily increased the margin and 10 straight points by May ballooned Indiana's lead to 33 points with two minutes left in the opening period.

Wisconsin committed 34 errors and shot a poor 35 per cent from the field.

Indiana, which shot 57 per cent, made 20 steals, including six by Wilkerson, and 30 assists, including nine by Quinn Buckner.

The victory was Indiana's 48th consecutive regular-season triumph and raised the Hoosiers' Assembly Hall record to 52-2. Wisconsin and Notre Dame are the only teams to have beaten Indiana at home in the past five years.

NBA rookies on target

NEW YORK (AP) — Gus Williams of Golden State may have grabbed the early headlines among National Basketball Association rookies, but the fine all-around play of center Alvan Adams of Phoenix is earning him an ever-increasing body of admirers around the league.

The multi-talented Adams and the cat-quick Williams are the best of this year's crop of NBA freshmen and will most likely go one-on-one for Rookie of the Year honors.

Philadelphia's spectacular George McGinnis, while in his first year in the NBA, is ineligible for the rookie award because of his American Basketball Association service.

Quite a few rookies are making their presence felt as more and more coaches adopt the Golden State style of liberal substitutions, using 10 or more men per game.

These first-year men include Joe Meriwether of Houston, Junior Bridgeman of Milwaukee, John Laskowski and Cliff Pondexter of Chicago, Glenn Hansen and Bill Robinzine of Kansas City, Don Ford of Los Angeles, Tom McMillen of Buffalo, Lloyd Free and Joe Bryant of Philadelphia, John Shumate of Phoenix, Bruce Seals of Seattle — another ex-ABA player — and Lionel Hollins of Portland. And the list grows each week, as more young players start to get their share of playing time.

Phoenix Coach John McLeod, who recruited the 6-foot-9 Adams for Oklahoma before moving to the pros, has rebuilt the Suns around his rookie center, a three-time Player of the Year in the Big Eight who passed up his senior year to rejoin McLeod.

The best part of Adams' game in his passing, an unusual talent for a rookie center and something McLeod has utilized to the fullest. He's put Adams at a high post and designed an offense where players continually cut off him toward the basket. Thus the Suns, a weak perimeter shooting team, can take advantage of Adams' passing talents to get an inordinate number of easy layups.

"He does everything well and he's very intelligent," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman. "He's amazing, and it continues to amaze me how he can be so consistently amazing. He certainly doesn't play like a rookie—it seems like he's been in the league five years."

Adams is averaging 18.7 points and 9.4 rebounds per game, and is fourth in the league with 6.3 assists per game—the only non-guard among the assist leaders. But his statistics don't tell the full story.

"I've never seen anybody who was as much of a threat just as a passer," said Philadelphia General Manager Pat Williams. "He has great court awareness, and the ability to get the ball to the open man."

"He does everything well," said teammate Paul Westphal. 'He's the best-passing big man since Dave Cowens came up to the Celtics."

"His future is goldplated," added Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, a fair pivotman in his own right. "You have to be impressed with his play at both ends of the court."

The soft-spoken Adams, the only rookie chosen for Tuesday's All-Star Game, has taken his early success in stride and figures to improve with time. "Every game is a learning experience for me," he said. "I make mistakes, but with each game I try to cut down the number of mistakes."

While Adams is playing a major role in the rebuilding of a losing team, the flashy, 6-foot-2 Williams has moved into the middle of things with the NBA champion Warriors, who drafted him from Southern Cal on the second round. As the first guard off the bench in Coach Al Attles' shuttle system, he often sees more playing time than some starters.

Writers honor Arnie

CINCINNATI (AP) — Veteran tour pro Arnold Palmer, trick shot artist Paul Hahn and writer Herbert Warren Wind have been named winners of the U.S. Golf Writers Association of America awards for 1975, it was announced Saturday.

Palmer will receive the Charlie Bartlett pro golfer award, in honor of the late Chicago Tribune writer, for "his contributions to the betterment of society." Lee Elder finished second in the voting and Robert de Vicenzo was third.

Hahn, who suffered two heart attacks last year, won the Ben Hogan award, which is given for overcoming a serious injury or ailment. Dean Refram and Al Geiberger were the runnersup.

MISSED BIRDIE — Jane Blalock looks none to happy to have to settle for a par on the fifth hole of the $40,000 LPGA tournament Saturday in Miami, Fla. She's tied for first.

Blalock ties Whitworth

MIAMI (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, irritated by slow play, lost three shots to par on the final three holes Saturday and fell to a tie with Jane Blalock for a 36-hole lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

Miss Whitworth appeared to be on the verge of running away with the $40,000 event when she scored four birdies on the front nine to go six under par and three shots ahead of the field.

But she had a double bogey seven on the 16th hole after she knocked her second shot into the water and then missed a five-foot par putt on 18 for a 71 and 36-hole total 141.

Miss Blalock, meanwhile, had four birdies and a bogey for 69 on the par 72, 5,670-yard Kendall Lakes Golf and Country Club Course. She just missed a nine-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole which would have given her sole possession of the lead.

Four golfers were a shot behind the pacemakers—first-round leader Mary Mills, who had a one-over-par 73; tour rookie Debbie Meisterlin; Pat Bradley and Judy Rankin.

Miss Whitworth, the tour's all-time leading money winner, wouldn't blame her bogey problems on slow play by the trio of Sandy Palmer, JoAnn Washam, and Terry Wilson, but said she was irritated by it.

"I let the pace bother me a little," she said. "We waited from the eighth hole on. I mean we waited for a long time. We were on their back. It was getting colder, getting darker; I was getting stiff sitting around every hole.

"I'm not blaming the bad shots on that, but it was irritating. You can't get any kind of pace going."

She said her double bogey at 16 was caused by a bad forward shot to the water and failure to use a three iron, instead of a four iron, for her next shot. She said she misread her putt on 18 to be straight and it broke left.

Miss Blalock said she knew about Miss Whitworth's strong start when she broke her personal rule never to look at a leader board.

Aussies top U.S.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Jim Hindmarsh scored 12 points on penalty kicks and set up a four-point try on a long run Saturday afternoon to spark the Australian national rugby team to a 24-12 victory over the United States all-stars.

Kip Oxman's four kicks provided all the scoring for the United States.

Australia delayed the start of the game, claiming the ball was too soft. Once the contest began, Australia took command early and controlled the game practically all the way.

Montreal still hopes for July 17 opening

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Montreal's Olympic planners told the inner cabinet of the Olympics Saturday the Summer Games will open in their city July 17 as scheduled.

A delegation from Montreal spent 10 grueling hours with the executive board of the International Olympic Committee, answering questions about their half-built stadium and the swimming pool, which is still no more than a hole in the ground.

An IOC spokesman said at the end of the day the board would spend the weekend studying the Montreal files in depth. The Canadians will face the full IOC — more than 70 members — Monday and go over the whole troubled situation again.

The spokesman said there was no discussion about possible contingency plans for track and field and swimming, the two sports that depend on progress being made on the main stadium complex.

Montreal officials had said previously the stadium will not be completed but it will be possible to hold the Games.

The IOC statement said in part: "The executive board received the organizing committee's working report, which was studied in detail.

"The revised plans affecting particularly the construction of the Olympic park were explained by various officials, and at first sight these plans appear to satisfy all requirements."

U.S. gold hopes slim

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — A pair of teenagers-a new Swedish heart throb and an Austrian daredevil-threaten to turn tradition upside down as the controversial Winter Olympics resume their fight for survival Wednesday on the slopes of the Tyrolian Alps.

The United States' contingent of 115 athletes, meanwhile, is pinning its slim hopes for gold medals in this 12th quadrennial festival of winter sport on four women—speed skaters Sheila Young and Leah Poulus, downhill skier Cindy Nelson and figure skater Dorothy Hamill. Miss Young, 25, of Detroit, has the best chance, being the only American to carry a favorite's role.

Once again, two Communist bloc countries—the Soviet Union and East Germany—are expected to finish one-two in the medal race in these Games staged amid a series of concerns: the fear of terrorist attack, the spectre of commercialism and professionalism and the charges of politically based judging in the sport of figure skating.

But these Games are also simple—Innsbruck has spent $148 million to put on low-key competition, and the Austrians appear ready to pull it off well, a far cry from the incredible problems Montreal has inherited with its $1 billion nightmare called the Summer Games.

The facilities are ready, a thick layer of snow covers the key ski trails and about 1,400 athletes carrying the hopes of 36 nations will march on Wednesday through a ski stadium as the Olympic flame is lit.

The two youngsters who could steal the show are Ingemar Stenmark, a 19-year-old freckled blond Swedish slalom skier who leads the World Cup Alpine standings, and Toni Innauer, a 17-year-old Austrian who could excite the world with his daring ski jumps.

Stenmark is the Bjorn Borg of the ski runs, the new idol of every fraulein in this ski-crazy country. No Scandinavian has ever won a gold medal in Olympic skiing. But Stenmark is rated a strong bet to win both the slalom and the giant slalom, upsetting the traditional favorites from Austria, Switzerland and Italy.

Innauer leads a strong contingent of Austrian jumpers, and tens of thousands of his countrymen will be on the slopes screaming for their young sensation to lead the way to treasured gold.

The 12 days of competition which begin Wednesday could be vital in the history of the Winter Games. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) will be watching to see if the Games have finally cleared their reputation of suspected commercialism.

Opponents of the Winter Olympics have campaigned for years to get them abolished, claiming skiers made money from the sport and were not genuine Olympic competitors.

Four years ago, the late Avery Brundage, then president of the IOC and the most notorious opponent of the Winter Olympics, said he hoped the Games would be given "a decent burial" when they were held in Denver.

Then they suffered another blow. Denver pulled out. Some members of the IOC voted to kill off the Games when that happened. But they decided to hold them in Innsbruck, the successful host city of 1964.

Now the IOC has adopted a new eligibility rule, under which skiers may accept payments for time spent in training and have prize money held in trust for them. Some members of the IOC are still suspicious about the way things will turn out.

Meanwhile, Innsbruck has other worries.

A tight security screen—manned by more than 2,000 helmeted, machine-gun carrying police and backed by 2,500 Austrian soldiers—has been thrown around every competition site, the Olympic Village and the hotel where the IOC is meeting.

This was inevitable after the Arab terrorist attack at the Munich Summer Games in 1972, when 11 Israelis died. But tension in Austria peaked after terrorists kidnaped and held captive oil ministers at a conference of oil producing countries in Vienna six weeks ago.

Speed Skating

Two of America's three gold medals from the 1972 Winter Games were in this sport. And if the United States is to match its Sapporo performance, the strength will have to be in this sport again.

Miss Young carries a co-favorite role in the 500-and 1,000-meter events. She is considered the fastest speed skater in the world for the first 200 meters but will have to defeat Tatjana Averina of the Soviet Union, owner of the world record at 500, 1,000 and 1,500 meters.

Miss Poulus, 24, of Northbrook, Ill., defeated Miss Young a week ago in a 1,000-meter event in Italy and posted a time that makes her a medal threat.

On the men's side, Ard Schenk, sensational triple gold medalist at Sapporo, has retired. It is now up to Sten Stensen, a lieutenant in the Norwegian Army, to challenge the strength of Russia and East Germany in the men's races.

The Soviet Union's Evgeni Koelikof, world record holder for the 500 meters, is rated one of the best gold medal bets of the Games. Two Americans, Peter Mueller, 21, of Madison, Wis., and Dan Carroll, 26, of St. Louis, have medal chances in the sprint races.

Figure Skating

Diane de Leeuw, who lives in Los Angeles but competes for the Dutch, recently added the European championship to her world title and is the No. 1 hope for the West against accomplished skaters from the East, particularly Christine Errath of East Germany.

Miss Hamill, 19, of Riverside, Conn., is ranked No. 2 in the world and stands a chance at the gold medal if she does well in the compulsory events.

John Curry of Great Britain is favored on the men's side, with Terry Kubicka, 19, of Long Beach, Calif., the best U.S. hope, but probably out of the medals race.

Alpine Skiing

In the women's events, Switzerland's Marie-Theres Nadig, double gold medal winner at Sapporo in 1972, will defend her downhill and giant slalom titles. But the favorite is LiseMarie Morerod, a 19-year-old Swiss who attacks courses with a vengeance.

In the downhill, Austrian fans are hoping for success for their new star, Brigitte Totschnig, while Bernadette Zurbriggen of Switzerland and Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany also have good chances.

The American hopes are carried by Miss Nelson, 20, of Lutsen, Minn., who is eighth in the World Cup standings. Her best race is the downhill, but she has been no better than third in it this season.

The three defending gold medalists are in the men's events—Francisco Fernandez Ochoa of Spain in the slalom, Gustavo Thoeni of Italy in the giant slalom and Bernhard Russi of Switzerland in the downhill.

None is favored this time. Stenmark seems the man to beat in both slaloms. And Austrian downhill ace Franz Klammer, winner of five World Cup races this season, is the solid favorite in that event.

There is little chance for a U.S. medal. What chance there is rests with Phil Mahre, 18, of White Pass, Wash., in 27th place in the World Cup. Greg Jones of Tahoe City, Calif., has also done well lately.

Nordic Skiing

Austrians are favored to win the ski jumping events, led by young Innauer. East Germans, led by Jochen Danneberg and Hans-Georg Aschenbach, are their most dangerous rivals.

Jerry Martin, 25, of Minneapolis, the likeliest American challenger, hopes to get into the top 10. Don't count on it.

Hockey

The Soviets, Olympic champions the last three times, are heavy favorites again. The Czechs are expected to be runners-up. The United States and Finland could battle it out for the bronze medal, but the the Finnish team smashed the Americans 9-3 in a game last Wednesday.

First there is a qualifying tournament, this Monday and Tuesday. The U.S. team, a collection of 18 collegians who have played together for five months, has to defeat tough Yugoslavia to get into the top six teams, from which the medal winners emerge.

Hope Classic: 'none finer'

A TOP PROFESSIONAL field of golfers will tee off in the 17th annual Bob Hope Desert Classic which begins Wednesday, with all but two former Classic champs in the field.

Defending champ Johnny Miller returns to the desert links wars, along with all-time golf money winner Jack Nicklaus and five-time Classic champ Arnie Palmer.

On the celebrity side of the world's only five-day, 90-hole event will be a Classic newcomer, actor Fred McMurray, joining the star-studded pro-am portion of the Hope. Others who have confirmed their repeat performance at the Classic are astronaut Eugene Cernan and new New Orleans Saints head coach Hank Stram.

Stars who have announced their appearance include Frank Sinatra, Flip Wilson, Glen Campbell, Evel Kneivel, Ray Bolger, Johnny Bench, Buddy Rogers, Enzo Stuarti and Steve Garvey.

Pros and amateurs will find a new, difficult challenge on the final hole at Indian Wells, host club for the 1976 Classic. The 18th hole has been toughened with the substitution of a lake for a sand trap on the left side of the green.

Players must decide whether to try for the green in two shots, or play safe by lagging the second shot lest they hit water instead of sand. The hole, one of the most picturesque on the desert, is a short, but not-so-easy par 5 (462 yards).

The man who won the 1976 Phoenix Open, Bob Gilder, will be among the former Classic winners Billy Casper (1965, '69), Tommy Jacobs ('64), Doug Sanders ('66), Tom Nieporte ('67), Bob Rosburg ('72) and Hubert Green ('74).

Other pros who have entered the Hope include the following who made the top-60 money list in 1975: John Mahaffey, Bob Murphy (runnerup in the '75 Classic), J.C. Snead, Pat Fitzsimons, Jerry Heard, Roger Maltbie, Tom Shaw, Curtis Sifford, Bill Rogers, Gay Brewer, Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford, George Knudson, Rod Curl, Gary McCord, Chi Chi Rodriquez, Dave Hill, Dave Stockton, Larry Ziegler and Joe Inman Jr.

Also joining the field will be Bruce Yancey, making his first start of the year, Lee Elder, Tony Jacklin, Tommy Aaron and Bob Goalby.

The 17th annual Classic will be played at Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado, Indian Wells and La Quinta Country Clubs.

NBC Sports will televise the finals from 2-3:30 p.m. Saturday, and 1-3 p.m. next Sunday from Indian Wells.

PRETTY ARABIAN Nights harem girls will be caddies for golfers at Indio Municipal Golf Course today for the annual National Date Festival Tournament.

The tournament heralds approach of the 1976 National Date Festival which will be held at Indio Feb. 13 through 22.

Tee offs start at 11 a.m. and continue to 1 p.m.

Tournament fee for 18 holes over the world's longest part-three course if $5.

Winning $141,471 last year for playing golf and finishing eighth among the world's top pros at age 27 would satisfy most of us. But John Mahaffey will be striving to erase some dark memories of 1975 when he competes in the Andy Williams San Diego Open here at Torrey Pines on Feb. 11-15.

Four times a runnerup but never a winner, the Houston shotmaker lost an 18-hole playoff to Lou Graham in the U.S. Open, was second-best at Tucson and Memphis, and tied Garey Player for second in the Kemper Open.

None of these frustrating runner-up finishes was the result of a collapse, however. Moreover, combined with six other payoffs in the first 10, he was compensated for his winless status by the most successful year of his five on the tour.

He did fall apart in the San Diego, however. Leading by a stroke after 70 holes, he double bogied the final two relatively easy holes, winding up way back in sixth.

Mahaffey's record indicates such a collapse is far from typical of this 5-9, 160-pound Houston resident who plays out of his home town course in Kerrville, Texas. In his first full year on tour, 1972, he finished 39th in earnings, then moved up to 12th and 16th, clearing over $100,000 each of the latter two years.

His only lifetime tour win was the Sahara Invitational in 1973. Last year he cashed checks from 21 out of 27 tournaments entered.

The 1969 and 1970 All-American and 1970 NCAA champion from the University of Houston had an outstanding stroke average of 71.0 for 1975. Only six players had lower averages. He also had 13 consecutive rounds of par or better, second best on the tour.

January: an impressive month ends on strength

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put on another impressive show of strength this past week as it completed the best and busiest month in its history.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, reaching new 27-month highs, posted its fourth sharp weekly gain in a row with a 21.33-point rise to 975.28.

New York Stock Exchange volume came to 160.22 million shares, falling just short of the 161.74 million record set the week before.

While that record stood, numerous monthly standards were falling:

—The Dow, with a 122.87 point upsurge, easily surpassed the previous monthly mark of 87.45 set in January 1975. On a percentage basis, this January's 14.4 per cent gain just barely topped the 14.2 figure of a year ago.

—Big Board trading activity, at an estimated 635 million shares, bested the old high of 432.53 million reached in January of last year by more than 200 million shares.

—Daily NYSE volume, which had surpassed 30 million shares only eight times before in exchange history, did it 12 times in 21 sessions this month.

The economic news of the week produced few surprises, and the market had to contend with steady resistance from profit takers nailing down some gains from the market's sharp rise of the past several weeks.

But it maintained its upward momentum amid what analysts described as a spreading feeling that the market had embarked on a new leg of the recovery in prices that began a little more than a year ago.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, the Dow posted losses as Wall Streeters widely voiced the view that the market was due for a pullback.

The declines, however, proved mild—a fact which by itself seemed to draw in additional buyers, and on Thursday the Dow registered its second best rise this year with a 17.40-point jump.

There was a continuation of one important trend fostering the market rally—a decline in interest rates.

On Friday New York's First National City Bank announced a cut in its prime lending rate from 6¾ to 6½ per cent, effective Monday.

It was the third quarter-point cut by Citibank in the last four weeks, and put the basic charge on corporate loans at its lowest level since the spring of 1973.

Many key short term interest rates, meanwhile, dipped below 5 per cent.

Interest rates at levels that low tend to push money out of short term fixed-income securities in search of something with a potential higher return, such as stocks.

They also theoretically encourage economic activity and expansion, and thus provide a favorable climate for a lasting recovery from the recession.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index posted a weekly gain of 1.65 to 100.86, and the NYSE's composite index rose .96 to 53.55.

Citicorp topped the active list for the week, climbing 3½ to 32⅜.

Getty Oil was another notable gainer, up 8½ at 175½. The company raised its estimate of the uranium reserves at an Australian site in which it holds an interest.

Business briefs

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Australia has sold 1.3 million tons of wheat to India and China. Wheat Board Chairman Jack Cass said today.

He said China had taken 700,000 tons and India 600,000 tons, and the deal was worth about $195 million.

Cass said wheat exports this year were expected to be a record nine million tons worth about $1.300 million.

TOKYO (AP) — The Transport Ministry said today that officials from the Japanese and U.S. governments will meet in Honolulu for two days beginning Feb. 5 to discuss the schedule of full-scale aviation talks between the two countries.

Japan is said to be demanding revisions of the current Japan-U.S. aviation pact. Japanese airlines are authorized to fly to only five points in the United States under the current bilateral pact, although U.S. airlines are authorized to fly to Japan from 19 points in the United States.

Dance tryouts called

Dance auditions for a Bicentennial program to be staged in the late spring will be held at the Youth Activities Center, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 11 and 13.

The event is sponsored by the Claremont Bicentennial Performing Arts Committee.

Dances will be based on American folk material. They are choreographed by Nancy Ruyter, UC Riverside dance instructor and director of the Jasma Planina Folk Ensemble.

Men and women from high school age up are invited to take part. No previous experience is necessary.

Reggae program slated

Pitzer College will present an evening of reggae, the Jamaican music introduced to the United States four years ago, in Avery Auditorium Feb. 19. Admission is 75 cents.

Starting at 8 p.m. participants will share fruit, nuts, cheeses and beverages, potluck-style, while listening to taped reggae music and an interview with Jimmy Cliffe, taped in New York.

At 9:30, the movie "Mingus" will be shown followed by "Reggae".

"Mingus," a documentary about the life of composer-arranger Charles Mingus, has been described by the Village Voice as "the first jazz film about jazz."

ARTIST AT WORK — French artist Francoise Gilot, shown here at her easel, will have an exhibit of paintings and lithographs at Gallery 8, Claremont, starting next Sunday. She is a former student of Picasso and Matisse.

Pupil of Picasso shows in Claremont

An exhibition of recent paintings and lithographs by Francoise Gilot, internationally known artist, will open next Sunday at Gallery 8, Harvard and Bonita avenues, Claremont.

Gallery hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. The exhibit continues through March 7.

Miss Gilot began painting in 1942, with Picasso and Matisse as early guides. She is also known as the author of the best seller, "Life with Picasso," and more recently of "Le Regard et Son Masque." She has lectured widely on the 20th Century masters - Matisse, Picasso, Braque, Giocometti and Chagall all of whom were her friends.

Her work is in collections at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Detroit Art Institute, the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, the Musee D'Art Moderne in Paris, and the Pasadena Art Museum.

The artist divides her time between her homes in Paris and La Jolla, where she lives with her husband, Dr. Jonas Salk.

Claremont Playhouse

New theater makes debut

By Joseph H. Firman

Claremont Playhouse, the valley's newest theater, made its debut Friday night in the redecorated auditorium of the old Claremont High School with a sprightly musical, "Butch and the Kid," to a standing ovation in the soldout 650-seat hall.

Alumni of the high school had trouble recognizing the refurbished auditorium, done in bright tangerine and murky brown, with a new thrust stage, air-conditioning, upholstered seats, jazzy carpeting and slightly fabulous lighting and projection systems. From the towering procenium to the champagne served in the lobby, it is a first class theater.

The evening is made up of two productions, "Butch and the Kid," a funny, empty-headed sendup of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," and something called "The American Review" (presumably "revue,") an uneven and interminable olio of acts, stunts, blackouts and production numbers. Either "Butch" or "Americana" would make a satisfactory evening, but the latter, at least, should be shortened (by half) by eliminating most of the campfire skits. Combined the two parts ran three hours.

"Butch" has book by Buddy Youngreen with music by James Prigmore. Like the fragile legend, the music and lyrics are friendly, funny, occasionally witty but not really memorable. My favorites were "We Got Elegance," a melodic display number by the classily clad company; "We Are Outlaws" ("We hold up banks and other pranks") by Butch (Mel O'Donnal) and the Kid (Douglas Shrope); and the raunchy "Remember the Maine," by Fanny and her cathouseful of girls.

Other good numbers are "Heaven Protect the Working Girl," "Saturday Night" (very comical), "New York City," "Over the Hills," and a nice solo by Etta Place (Jillane Brown), "I'm in Love with the Sundance Kid."

Miss Brown displays a pleasant, sensitive soprano, good with Shrope's rich baritone and O'Donnal's precise tenor — they are three excellent singers and personable actors. Dominique Lavoie and Jim Harris give rowdy, slapstick performances as the Pinkerton brothers, and sing delightfully. Rotund Lavoie is particularly refreshing.

Shelly Waldman as Mama Pinkerton is an outstanding singer-cum-comedienne, a delight. Rachel Sorteberg as Annie, Nancy Eddington as Agnes, Denise Barton as Lillian Russell, and Jefferson Crane as Pinkerton pere display good voices and a flair for slapstick comedy.

"The Americana Review" is highlighted by the production number, "When You're Extraordinary;" a hilarious contra-chorus number about marriage; the exciting "You Gotta Ring Them Bells"; the riotous "Where Are Your Children Tonight?" and the thoroughly enchanting "What Do You See?" a toy doll-music box presentation. "Money Makes the World Go Round" is a show-stopper.

Equestrian estates has room for horses or pool

Homes in the Lewis Homes-Claremont Equestrian Estates are winning the favor of home seekers who have never sat on a horse, said Richard Lewis, president.

"Although the 13,000 square foot lots are zoned for keeping horses, many visitors visualize the large yard space as a bountiful setting for a swimming pool, lush garden, family picnics and the feeling of privacy that abundant ground area affords," he added.

"The big lot sites also go well with our picturesque location in the foothills below Mt. Baldy." The site is north of Base Line Road between Mills and Padua Avenue.

The homes themselves emphasize spaciousness with floor plans measuring up to 2,194 square feet of living area, said Lewis. They are designed with three or four bedrooms two or 2½ baths, family rooms and garden kitchens.

Some homes have three car garages and some families have indicated their intentions of using the extra garage space as an "anchorage" for their pleasure boats, he said.

Buyers have their choice of single and two story homes. These have shake roofs with wide, overhanging counters, fireplaces, dressing areas in the master bedroom suites, and refrigerated air conditioning.

The homes are priced from $51,750, with VA, FHA and conventional financing available.

To reach the homes, persons may take the San Bernardino Freeway to Indian Hill Boulevard in Claremont, drive north to Base Line Road, then turn east past Mills Avenue to the sales office. For more information, persons may phone 626-7589.

Homes in Claraboya finished

Construction of the final 15 homes at Claraboya have been completed and an active sales program is underway, said Roni Armstrong, marketing director for Armstrong Development Corp.

"What has made Claraboy's final unit so attractive is that these last homes are set amidst more than 200 homes built here since construction began in 1965.

"Buyers are moving into a neighborhood which they can scrutinize and they can expect their purchase to be an excellent real estate investment as well as a luxurious home," she added.

The three and four bedroom homes are built on minimum half-acre lots and have from 2,219 to 2,581 square feet of living area. These are priced from $75,900 to $92,500 and include landscaping and sprinklers.

The sales office is open daily. Persons may reach it by taking the San Bernardino Freeway to the Indian Hill Boulevard exit in Claremont, drive north to Base Line Avenue, turn left to Mountain Avenue, right to Via Espirito Santos and right to San Angelo Street and the homes. The Wheeler Steffen Garrison Ltd., Inc., is the exclusive sales agent.

The homes feature sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, separate family rooms, wet bars, fireplaces, intercom systems, indoor planters, and spacious master bedroom suites with sunken Roman tubs, private dressing areas and baths, walk-in closets and mirrored wardrobes.

In addition, each home has central refrigerated air conditioning, three car garage and separate laundry area.

Townhomes changed from rent to sale

Recently taken back by the lender, the units have been rented during foreclosure proceedings. These have been refurbished by the lender and are ready for immediate occupancy.

These are priced from $26,995 for the two bedroom, 1½-bathroom plan; $29,995 for the three bedroom; 1½ bathroom plan; and $30,995 for the three bedroom, 2 bathroom plan.

Buyers have a choice of one and two story homes, various exteriors and four interior color schemes.

The homes have air conditioning, insulation, wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies and kitchens with gas ranges, ovens, dishwashers and garbage disposals.

Various plans also feature large family rooms with dining space of large living and dining areas. Most homes have enclosed double garages with laundry areas.

The development also has greenbelts with mature landscaping professionally maintained. A private recreation area has a swimming pool. Costs for upkeep of the grounds, facilities and exteriors of homes is provided through the homeowners association.

The homes may be purchased with five per cent down payments and 8½ per cent interest rates. All the homes offered for sale are ready for immediate occupancy.

Model homes are open daily except Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. To reach the development, persons may take the San Bernardino Freeway to Mountain Avenue in Ontario, drive north to 13th Street past Foothill Boulevard and then west to the entrance.

'Gate' buyers get allowance

The split level plan has two bedrooms and 1,200 square feet of floor space. It's priced from $32,995.

The home features built-in kitchen appliances, vaulted ceilings, fireplace, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, forced air heating and air conditioning, extra storage space, private patio and security dead bolt door locks.

Mountain Gate contains 37 home units. The San Jacinto model homes are sold and only eight of the San Antonio floor plans remain.

With purchase of the existing models, buyers are offered a $1,000 decorating allowance. They may use the bonus to purchase such extras as automatic garage door openers, drapes, trash compactors or apply this toward the closing costs.

The development has a heated swimming pool and jacuzzi and landscaping of native stone, shrubs, mature trees, potted plants and flowers.

Homeowners are charged $38.35 in monthly dues to pay for the upkeep of the pool, grounds, building maintenance, water bills and cable television.

Mountain Gate is located at 13th Street and Mountain Avenue in Upland. The model home is open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk.

JOAN KEARNEY was recently given a sales award by the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors for having the largest single sale over $100,000 during December. She has been with Spaulding Real Estate in Claremont for six years.

FORBIDDEN MARKET — A vintage Buick at a Havana gas station is a rolling symbol of the lengthy embargo by the United States against trade with Cuba. Although direct deals are forbidden, the major three U.S. car makers are shipping some 16,500 vehicles to Cuba from their Argentine factories. Subsidiaries of U.S. firms are doing similar business.

Both sides wait for the day

Resumption of Cuban trade?

NEW YORK (AP) — In a basement cafeteria at the United Nations, the Cuban mission's third secretary recently hosted a low-keyed business luncheon with officers of the Continental Can Co.

The secretary, Hugo Yedra, related Cuba's interest in buying rebuilt and new equipment for a cannery expropriated from the New York firm after Fidel Castro took power in 1959. The businessmen, seeking to offset the $8.9 million loss, expressed interest.

Such a sale is prohibited now under the U.S. trade embargo against Cuba, imposed in 1962. But the Cubans are looking ahead, and so are some American businessmen, even though U.S.-Cuban relations are more strained than usual today because of Cuba's support of a leftist faction in Angola.

Cuba's five-year economic plan, beginning this month, calls for exports of canned fish and fruit juice, but the old Continental plant in Cuba, where the canning is done, is short of parts and is operating at less than half capacity.

The luncheon ended inconclusively, after Yedra told the Americans that Cuba was taking bids on cannery equipment from other capitalist countries so it won't have to wait for Washington to lift the trade ban.

The meeting was typical of others arranged for American businessmen in recent months — at the United Nations, at Cuba's commercial offices in Montreal and Mexico City, at the Czech embassy in Washington which handles Cuban affairs in the United States, and in Havana — by foreign trade ministry officials shopping for American technology, food and industrial goods.

As in the meeting at the United Nations with Continental Can, the Cubans point out that firms in Japan, Western Europe, Canada and Argentina are already selling to them and that the five-year plan can proceed without U.S. help. The purpose of all the shopping, the Americans say they are told, is to help Cuba avoid long-term commitments now to buy goods that will be cheaper or better made once they're available from the United States.

The business discussions — most of them initially arranged by private American consultants with contacts in Havana — started after Secretary of State Henry Kissinger announced last March 1 that the administration was willing to negotiate its differences with Castro so the embargo could end.

These consultants lined up client American firms as the climate for diplomatic negotiations improved. On July 29 the United States went along with a vote in the Organization of American States to lift an OAS trade ban imposed against Cuba in 1964, although the U.S. embargo continues. On Aug. 21, overseas subsidies of American firms were authorized to sell to Cuba subject to U.S. government licensing.

Now the business contacts have gained a momentum of their own. They are reported to be continuing despite President Ford's statement on Dec. 20 that the presence of Cuban troops fighting against American-backed factions in Angola's civil war "destroys any opportunity for improvement of relations."

Although Castro has made it clear that Cuba will continue its military intervention in the African country, two American consultants say their invitations to visit Havana this month are still on.

Officials of these companies say they are frustrated by the embargo, which was imposed by President John Kennedy on Feb. 3, 1962, when U.S. security seemed threatened by a Soviet military buildup on the Caribbean island, 90 miles south of Florida.

American businessmen supported the embargo's original purpose, to strangle the island's fledgling socialist economy, but some changed their minds after the embargo failed to work and prevented them from benefiting in 1974, when record world sugar prices gave Cuba enough extra foreign currency to expand its total trade to $5.2 billion and its commerce with non-Socialist countries from $667 million in 1973 to $1.5 billion in '74.

Congressional critics of the ban on direct trade complain that subsidiary sales don't create American jobs. Rep. John Breaux, a Democrat from a rice growing district in Louisiana, complained loudly last month when subsidiaries of Continental Grain were licensed to sell 100,000 tons of South American and Italian rice to Cuba, despite a rice surplus in the United States.

Breaux and other congressmen gained support in the latter part of 1975 for a bill urging Ford to lift the trade ban. But the drive faltered because Cuba's support of a U.N. resolution condemning Zionism alienated the bill's author, Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y.

Aside from the issues of Angola and the Zionism resolution, there are businessmen who oppose any trade with Cuba until it settles $1.8 billion in U.S. property claims.

This group has been organized for lobbying purposes by Lone Star Industries, which lost a $25-million cement plant in Cuba. It includes the National Association of Manufacturers; Bangor Punta Corp., which lost $53.4 million in sugar properites, and the biggest claimant, Boise-Cascade, whose expropriated electric utility was valued at $267.6 million.

Sixty U.S. companies lost $1 million or more in Cuba after Castro took over. The number of firms seeking trade with Cuba is roughly equal, but lawyer Jerry Tripp, representing Ampex Corp., reports difficulty getting them organized to fight against the embargo. "Trading with the Communists is an issue they don't like to force," he said.

In South Florida, where most Cuban exiles settled, the issue is particularly sensitive. Dow Chemical Co., whose agricultural chemicals are sought by Cuba, has decided it will do business with Castro only on an affirmative vote of Cubans employed in its Latin American unit in Coral Gables. So far, sentiment is negative.

An end of the embargo won't mean a return to the pre-Castro commercial relationship of 1958, when two-way trade totaled more than $1 billion and U.S. companies bought 71 per cent of Cuba's exports (principally sugar, nickel, tobacco, rum and fish), accounted for 64 per cent of its imports and controlled 30 per cent of the island's vital sugar industry.

Today Cuba permits no foreign investment in its centrally-planned economy and requires foreign businessmen to deal through 26 state trade monopolies. The Soviet share of Cuba trade, which is conducted by barter, declined from 51.6 per cent in 1973 to 38.7 per cent in 1974 as Cuba used its sugar exchange earnings to pay cash for Western goods.

Alioto's days in politics over

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joseph Alioto, the multimillionaire son of an immigrant Italian fisherman, leaves eight breathless years as mayor behind him, certain that he has forever marked the city of his birth.

If for no other reason, Alioto's place in San Francisco history is assured by the ponderous shadows that fall on the Embarcadero and elsewhere downtown: 100 high-rise buildings built since 1969.

He says with pride that the high-rises are things of beauty that not incidentally represent thousands of office jobs in companies occupying the buildings and millions of dollars in new city property tax revenue.

Some curse Alioto for these skyline-changing monuments to business. Others bless him for the structures. Or they look elsewhere to condemn or applaud the 59-year-old powerhouse whose mile-a-minute speech seems always in a pell mell race with his quick brain.

Whether they curse him or bless him, few can remain neutral about Alioto, who was succeeded as mayor this month by former state Sen. George Moscone, also a Democrat. They have to concede that in his two terms, he settled more arguments, started more, churned up more fuss and furor than just about any other mayor this city ever saw.

Alioto, prevented by law from running for a third term, was criticized for what his opponents described as a heavy-handed administration, and for appointing fellow Democrats to high posts in the traditionally nonpartisan city government.

At the same time, his critics concede, he improved community relations, took a hand in settling several tough strikes, and commenced effective lobbying in Washington for federal funds and programs. He was elected president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, and served as a spokesman for the nation's cities.

Alioto was top hand of a municipal entity that employs 21,000 persons, owns 5,767 acres of inner-city real estate, and spends about $800 million a year. He decided how much of authorized funds were spent and how many jobs were filled, and was able to fatten his own patronage by creating jobs outside the civil service system.

The Alioto years were a time of change for the city. They included the opening of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system, the loss of substantial port business to Oakland across San Francisco Bay, and crippling municipal strikes, among them last summer's walkout by police and firemen.

But despite declining population and rising property taxes to pay increased government expenses, the city's fiscal health remained good, due in part to the financial acumen of its mayor.

When Alioto first took office, he was a little known politician; a stocky, balding man nearly six feet tall. But he already ranked high on the scale of achievement: internationally known attorney, world traveler, patron of the arts, violinist, big checkbook Democrat, head of the world's largest rice-milling organization, and a lecturer in literature and the philosophy of law.

For years Alioto played with the idea of running for mayor, once saying, "The fact is, I'm bored with making money."

In 1967, he decided his time had come, and he was sworn into his first elected office early the following year after a dazzling 54-day campaign. His support was a coalition of labor and minorities, along with middle-class home-owning Republicans and Democrats.

Alioto, at age 52, gained national prominence after making an eloquent nominating speech for Hubert Humphrey at the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago. Indeed, the confident and witty attorney was mentioned as a possible nominee for vice president, and by September 1969 was gearing up to run for governor.

Twenty-three days later that plan was in ashes. It was the day Look Magazine published an article that accused Alioto of being "enmeshed in a web of alliances" with the Mafia.

Alioto sued for libel. After two lengthy federal trials, the courts declared that Look's allegations were false but didn't award monetary damages on grounds Alioto hadn't proved malice. A federal appeals court eventually granted him a third trial, now pending, on the malice issue.

The power that flowed to Alioto through the city charter reached what his critics felt was its obnoxious pinnacle last August in the strike of policemen and firemen. With 90 per cent of those public safety forces on strike, Alioto dismissed the power of the board of supervisors to set salaries, declared his own emergency powers, and personally negotiated a solution with the strikers that met most of their demands.

He made himself a target for critics who accused him of "cronyism" and when he appointed his cousin, Frank Alioto, to one city commission, the cry of nepotism arose.

The weightier events of Alioto's second term were spiced by the disappearance of his vivacious wife, Angelina, mother of his six children. She turned up after nearly three weeks, declaring that her husband's political interests had caused him to ignore her and that she had sought to teach him a lesson by disappearing for a while.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — We find the following helpful when camping or using our barbecue: Melt old candles, the paraffin off jelly glasses or what have you and pour into empty egg cartons about six by eight inches. Let the wax run all around the inside and then put a piece of charcoal in each of the holders. Tie shut with string. Make several of these at one time and be ready when the kids say "Let's cook out." — SUNNY.

●

DEAR POLLY — I have an easy way to pit fresh cherries: Flatten a paper clip so you have two smooth, rounded ends. Hold the clip in one hand and a cherry in the other, insert the smaller end into the stem hole of the cherry and gently turn the clip, pulling it toward you. — MRS. A.M.

DEAR POLLY — To get rid of the odor after cooking fish I put one-half cup vinegar and a half-cup of water in a clean skillet and let this boil for about five minutes. I then have a fresher-smelling kitchen. — MRS. J.W.J.

DEAR POLLY — For a child's birthday party, instead of buying expensive wrapped ice cream slices I lined a muffin tin with 12 paper muffin cups and placed a scoop of ice cream in each cup. Colored sprinkles were quickly put over the top of each scoop and the muffin tin placed in the freezer for one hour. The paper cups were then removed from the tin and placed in a long cake pan, covered with foil and put back in the freezer. This can be done one or even two days before the party. — MRS. J.W.J.

DEAR POLLY — I did not know how to convert scraps of soap to a useful bar. I boiled them in water, but it did not jell. I cooled the solution, put it in my blender, added water to cover and turned the blender to "liquify" for a few seconds, and then repeated a few times. The result is a whipped cream soap that I put in pretty bowls in the kitchen and bathroom. — BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY — For a stuffy nose I put a few drops of peppermint extract on my pillow. It helps me breathe easier. — MRS. J.W.J.

DEAR POLLY — If my hands perspire and are moist when I am crocheting on my afghan, I powder them with baby powder and the wool slips through my fingers with no trouble at all. — HELEN.

DEAR POLLY — I use a nylon net scrubber to prepare the dishes for the dishwasher. To keep these clean, I pop them into the dishwasher basket for small articles and let them run through the wash cycle with the dishes. — RUTH.

NATURE COLORS

HIPPOPOTAMUSES...

Q. • HIPPOPOTAMUSES ARE THE LARGEST LAND ANIMALS.

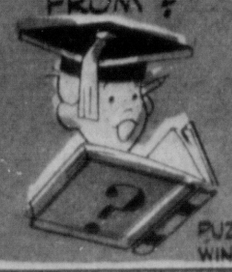
☐ TRUE ☐ FALSE

ANSWER: FALSE. ELEPHANTS ARE THE LARGEST.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MARCIA CHRISTOFFEL OF AURORA, IL, ASKS:

"WHERE DOES SNOW COME FROM?"



SNOW COMES FROM CLOUDS, JUST AS RAIN DOES. BUT SNOW ISN'T FROZEN RAIN. SNOWFLAKES ARE MADE UP OF TINY ICE CRYSTALS THAT FREEZE AROUND A SPECK OF DUST IN THE FRIGID AIR, AND THE ICE COMES FROM MOISTURE FLOATING IN THE CLOUD. BECAUSE A SNOWFLAKE IS A CRYSTAL OF WATER, IT ALWAYS HAS SIX SIDES, THOUGH SOMETIMES THE SNOW CRYSTALS CLING TOGETHER TO FORM A SHAPELESS, WOOLLY TUFT. THE SNOW CRYSTALS REFLECT LIGHT AND MAKE THE SNOW LOOK WHITE.

AWARD WINNING 'CITYWATCHERS' RETURNS FOR NEW SEASON ON KCET

The Port of Los Angeles will be visited by Citywatchers as the KCET series opens a new season Sunday, Feb. 1, at 7:30PM. Co-host Charles Champlin (left) will discuss the role of the Port with Joseph Schapiro, president of National Metals, a company engaged in scrapping ships.

Citywatchers — KCET's venerable Emmy-winning series that explores people, places and events in Southern California — returns for a new season Sunday at 7:30PM — on Channel 28 with a tour of the Port of Los Angeles.

As Producer Price Hicks notes, many Southern Californians don't think of Los Angeles as a port city. However, the Port of Los Angeles at San Pedro is a leading harbor in cargo tonnage on the West Coast, one of the largest man-made harbors in the world, and very competitive with the Long Beach harbor.

Citywatchers will tour the harbor both from a helicopter to get an overall view of the Port facilities and from a harbor boat that travels the harbor channels and basins for a close look at the various tenants and activities. The program visits the fish harbor, home for the largest commercial fishing operation in the U. S.; National Metals, a scrap metal company engaged in scrapping ships, including the cruiser Los Angeles; Distribution and Auto Services Inc. (the consolidated facility of Nissan Motor Co., Ltd.); and Todd Shipyards where ships are repaired, built, converted and drydocked. Among those interviewed will be Fred Crawford, general manager of the Port; Joseph Schapiro, president, National Metals; and Stuart Jones, general manager, Todd Shipyards.

Two controversial issues involving the Port will be examined: a proposal for dredging a supertanker terminal and a proposal to build a liquified natural gas terminal. Environmentalists say there is cause for concern with both plans because there is danger of spills from supertankers and danger of leakage from the liquified natural gas terminal. Pros and cons on those issues will be discussed.

KCET repeats the program Thursday at 8:30PM.

CAST RICH IN TALENT

As long as there has been a Hollywood there have been stories about casting directors — most of them uncomplimentary. In reality, the casting director is one of the hardest working and most unsung participants in any motion picture or television production. A case in point is Universal Studio casting director Geoffrey Fischer, whose job it was to find and sign the more than 250 actors required for "Rich Man, Poor Man," a 12-hour ABC Novel for Television, which begins its nine-week run with special two-hour presentations, Sunday, Feb. 1 and Monday, Feb. 2 both at 9PM, and will continue each Monday night at 10PM, concluding on March 22 with another two-hour presentation at 9PM. (The two opening episodes and the concluding one deal with mature subject matter and parental discretion is advised.)

Fischer was involved with the project for four full years, working with executive producer Harve Bennett, producer Jon Epstein, directors David Greene and Boris Sagal and network executives to find the three "unknown" actors to portray the principal roles and the remarkable guest cast for the story based on Irwin Shaw's best-selling novel. "Finding the three leads was the most difficult task because we needed actors who not only possessed talent but could intellectually and physically handle the 20-year spread which the story requires," Fischer says.

"We were actually interested in Peter Strauss for another project, but the more we saw of him the more we realized how suited he was to play Rudy Jordache, the quiet high school boy who becomes a millionaire politician. Nick Nolte's qualities were not so obvious to us at first but one of the directors, Boris Sagal, liked him and asked us to test him. We had him play a scene with Peter and the chemistry was incredible. We had our two brothers. "In Susan Blakely's case, Harve Bennett saw her in 'Report to the Commissioner' at his neighborhood theatre and saw all the qualities that were needed for Julie Prescott. This is one of the best roles television has ever offered to a woman because the character goes from an innocent high school girl to the alcoholic wife of a politician in a 20-year span."

"In casting the guest stars we tried to find actors who would look comfortable in period clothes and period settings," he said. "There is a look, rhythm and language that actors have in 1975 that would be totally out of place in 1945, when the story begins. We also put Ed Asner, Bill Bixby, George Maharis and Robert Reed in roles that most people would not expect to see them playing. "Material like we had in this project makes our work much easier," Fischer concluded. "We didn't get a single rejection from any of the major stars we approached, many of whom are rarely seen on television. Shakespeare said, 'the play's the thing . . .,' and in the case of 'Rich Man, Poor Man' it helped us get a cast that will be hard to match for years to come."

It begins. Tonight.

More than a best-selling novel put to film, it's the gripping story of our time. And the human drama of two brothers who grappled with its turbulence. And loved its women.

From wealth you can measure to the kind you can't. It's a giant story of love. Lust. Ambition. Greed. It spans three decades. Two wars. Four presidents.

And this is why, for the first time in history, a motion picture will be presented in nine episodes: tonight, tomorrow night, and then for seven consecutive Monday evenings.

Rich Man, Poor Man.

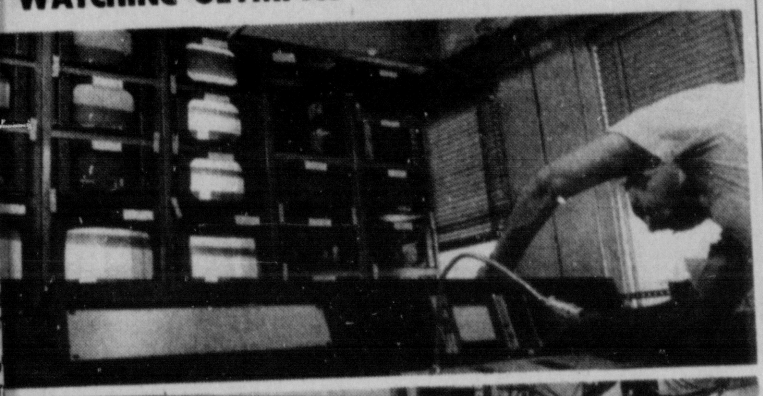
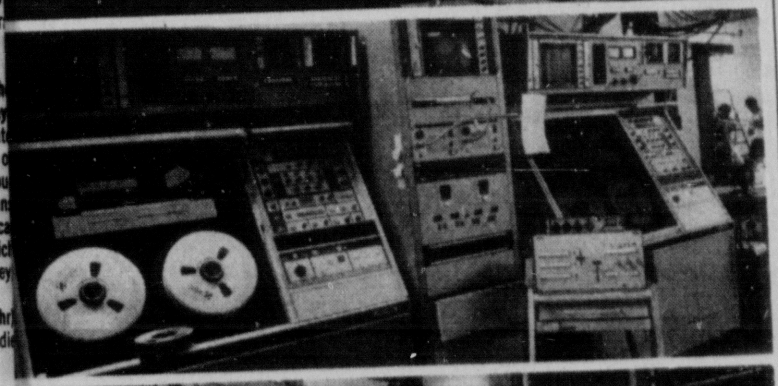
'WATCHING OLYMPICS SIMPLE FOR VIEWERS'





Nearly 45 hours of Winter Olympics television coverage—brought to you February 4 through 15 exclusively by ABC Sports, and, in a literal "twinkling of an eye" from Innsbruck, Austria to your home television set. Hundreds of personnel, 45 video cameras (not counting film crews), taking in, processing and transmitting the Olympic action as thousands of international athletes compete at the eight different sites, or venues.

How can ABC Sports do it? One key is the nerve center complex seen here. A $5 million mobile TV studio complex, built in New York City exclusively for the Winter and Summer Games and shipped dismantled to Innsbruck to serve as the command post for ABC's daily Olympics reports. This monumental undertaking was the brainchild of ABC's outstanding Broadcast Operations & Engineering Department, and it was done this way to provide the most efficient means of coordinating and broadcasting event of Olympian scope.

(Top) an ABC technician is working on the technical director's console in the control room. In the background are just a few of the 28 television screens which will be alive with images during the Games. The top row of monitor screens will show the international pictures provided by the host country's broadcasters. All the rest will be filled with ABC Sports' own exclusive camera coverage as the network's commentators follow the medal competition in events from Alpine skiing to hockey to figure skating.

(Middle) shows a typical videotape cubicle with two tape machines each valued at $150,000. These are a few of the machines which will record the action — and the slo-motion replays — that have made ABC Sports "recognized around the world as the leader in sports television." Above the machines is a section of the miles of cabling which were premeasured and installed in New York to fit cable housings and connectors at Innsbruck and Montreal.

(Bottom) is the Transmission and Master Control area. All of the pictures which come into the nerve center from throughout the Olympic areas — and all that are chosen for transmission via satellite to the United States, will have to pass through this complex and highly-developed circuitry. Just one part of more than a quarter-million pounds of equipment which you'll never see during the 1976 Winter Olympic Games, but without which, you would never see the Games at all.

Are they nickel-and-diming us to death?

There are schoolchildren and working people in this town who lunch on machine-served food every day.

It's just one of the things we'll be looking into on "Junk-Food Junkies." A series of special reports on vending-machine and catering-truck food, and how it affects you and your children.

Watch it on Channel 2 Newsroom, starting tonight, at 5 and 11.

Menostop.

So many people don't believe menopause is a pause. They're convinced it's the end.

You see, if you know what to expect and how to handle it, menopause becomes simply that...a pause. A change. A transition.

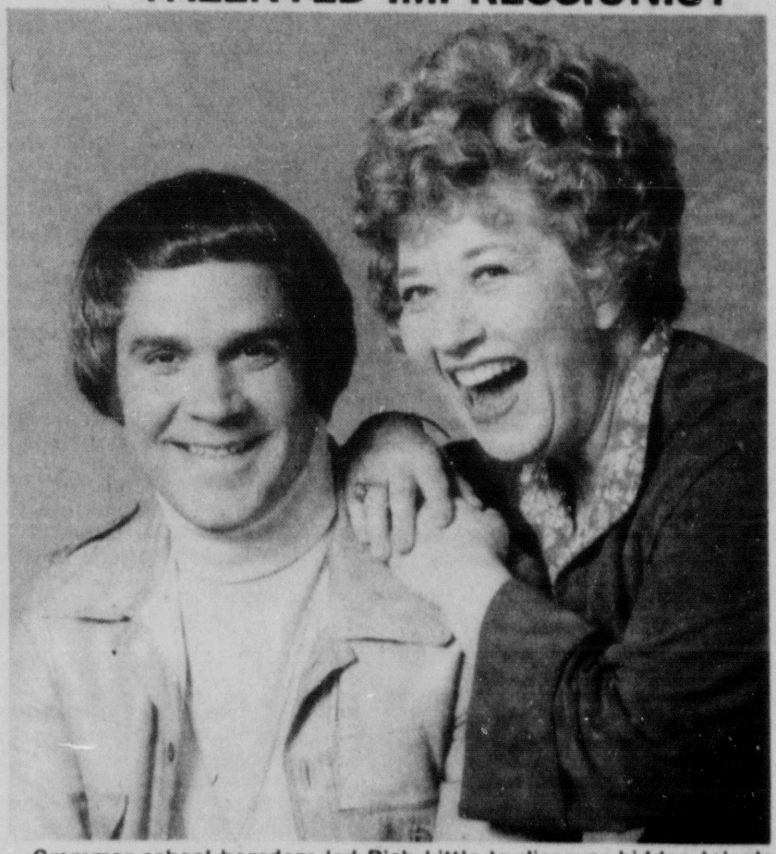
'TALENTED IMPRESSIONIST'



Grammar school boredom led Rich Little to discover hidden talents for impersonations. Now, one of today's most popular and talented impressionist, Little joins the NBC lineup with a comedy-variety hour Mondays from 8-9PM.

Born and raised in Ottawa, Canada, Little began doing impressions at 14, performing for friends at school. In an effort to keep himself occupied, he began studying people — their voice and mannerisms. He would imitate everybody — teachers, family, friends, and local personalities.

"When the teachers would ask me a question, I would respond with an answer, imitating their voice," says Little. "All the kids found it amusing. The teachers couldn't recognize their voice, so they thought I was getting laughs on straight lines — to them I was a natural born commedian.

At 17, Little began working local Shriners and Knights of Columbus dinners for $15 a show. He went on to win a national talent show which led to a guest appearance on "Pick the Stars" a network TV competition. For the next several years, Little concentrated on developing and refining his talents. He acted in Canadian summer stock, landed a position as a disc jockey, hosted a TV talk show in Ottawa, and released his first comedy album, "My Fellow Canadians."

His career was launched in the United States in 1964 when he was called to the attention of Judy Garland who signed him for a guest appearance on her television show. Little, whose repertoire consists of 160-plus caricatures, not only masters the voice characteristics of each of his subjects, he captures their physical features as well, including their leers, shrugs, and walks. "I attempt to literally get into all the characters I do, actually trying to become them for a few minutes. It's more effective to do impressions from the inside looking out, rather than the other way around."

Little will be joined in his series by comedienne Charlotte Rae. As a child, Rae would sneak out of the house for the "amateur hour" at Milwaukee, Wisconsin's Riverside Theatre, because she desperately wanted to be a professional actress.

She made her way to Broadway as the original Mammy Yokum in "Li'l Abner," and the original Mrs. Peachum in "Three Penny Opera." Rae's Broadway credits include S. J. Pereleman's "The Beauty Part," and Murray Shisgal's "The Chinese and Dr. Fish." She also appeared in Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival productions "Romeo and Juliet," and "Henry IV," Part I and Part II.

Rae is familiar to television audiences as Molly the Mailman on Sesame Street. She said that she is enjoying working with Little because she has always been one of his biggest fans: "Rich is so kind, and wonderful. I consider myself very lucky to have an opportunity to work with him."

JACK PALANCE: HE WRITES TOO

It was 4:30PM. when Jack Palance raced from the old Venice Division Police Station toward the waiting limousine. He had just completed his day's work as star of the CBS new action series, Bronk, airing Sunday nights at 10PM and had less than an hour to drive across town to NBC Studios in Burbank for a frequent guest appearance on The Tonight Show.

together, asked Jack if he would play his harmonica on the program. The actor was delighted to oblige — then added "I'd like to read one of my poems too." "Sure," was the answer followed by "if we have time."

As the limousine swerved through rush-hour traffic the movie tough-guy who was chilling as Count Dracula and won an Oscar for giving Alan Ladd a bad time in "Shane," slouched in the back seat writing the poem he planned to read on the show.

The Bronk star has actually penned two novels (one in free verse) and is currently working on a third. "None have been published yet," he says in his usual low-key fashion, obviously preoccupied with his present poem, "but I guess that's my fault. I'm still polishing them. Writing a novel is somewhat akin to having a baby and I'm not ready to send my kids out into the world yet."

When the limousine reaches the corner of Hollywood and Vine, prolific Jack has three pages completed. Only close friends are aware that he has been writing seriously for many years. "I don't want to talk about it. I just want to do it," is how he puts it. His first book, "The Turtle" was written in total free form style. The second, entitled "Elizabeth and the Tall Thin Man," is about "an ordinary man in search of himself, and what happens when he can't find what he's seeking." Now in the works is a novel drawn from his childhood in the impoverished coal mines of eastern Pennsylvania.

"Everytime I see a movie about coal mine towns, it's always unrelentingly grim. But I remember the good times — the humor, the dances, the picnics, the music. Miners liked their kids to be musically inclined and if they weren't, they inclined them. I struggled with the violin as well as the harmonica, which I occasionally play in Bronk." His eyes mellow as he says, "getting impressions of the past in a literary form is both agonizing and exhilarating. I especially remember a Christmas when my parents gave me an old broken bicycle. Putting those parts together was a great adventure. It's still my favorite gift." "The hardest thing about writing is the rejection," he continues. "To pour your guts out on paper then have some bureaucratic publisher tell you it won't sell because it doesn't have enough sex and violence, is devastating beyond belief. Fortunately, being an actor for the last twenty years has toughened me up to take whatever literary blows come my way."

As the limousine approaches Papush is outside waiting to escort Jack in. "Did you bring the harmonica?" he asks. The actor nods affirmative then adds, "and the poem too."

After waiting in the show's well-appointed dressing room while Johnny completes his monologue, Jack is ushered on stage. They chat about Bronk, make light conversation about Jack's cigar smoking, discuss his ranch in Tehachapi, his farm in Pennsylvania, his art collection, his ability to do one-handed push-ups and his harmonica which Johnny invites Jack to play. A few bars of "You Are My Sunshine" are rendered, followed by generous (if not gracious) applause.

"Jack writes poetry also, folks," Johnny tells his audience, "but unfortunately we don't have time for him to read it tonight. But you will come back, won't you Jack?" "Just ask, Johnny," came the actor's reply.

Important message from Art Linkletter

Dear Friend,

Now, you can protect your family with one of the finest values in supplemental hospital protection -- National Home protection. National Home pays out over 50,000,000 dollars every year to families like yours under our group and individual insurance plans.

These days, that's important. Especially when more and more people are going to the hospital every year. Over 35 million Americans are expected to enter hospitals in 1975.* If you're one of them where will you and your family turn?

You and I both know that hospital-medical prices are moving by leaps and bounds to price-tags few of us can afford. They've already doubled since 1968 and show no signs of slowing down.*

That's why National Home wants your protection to serve you in as many ways as possible . . . to provide the protection you need these days for your family and your future.

So take a moment now and learn about all the benefits of one of the most popular insurance plans of this type in America. Then send in the Enrollment Form on the back page with your reduced first month premium.

Your policy will arrive in the mail. If you don't feel completely happy and secure with your protection after you receive it, you can send it back within 10 days for a complete refund . . . and there's no further obligation on your part.

Sincerely,

Art Linkletter

* American Hospital Association

YOU'RE PROTECTED WITH ALL THESE FEATURES . . . AND MORE.

YOU RECEIVE—up to $1,200.00 a month—$40.00 a day for every covered hospital stay.

FIRST DAY PROTECTION—Cash benefits add up from the very first day. There are no deductibles or waiting periods . . . and no limit to the total amount you can receive.

YOU SPEND IT—Benefits are paid direct to you. You decide what medical bills to pay.

PAYS BENEFITS—regardless of any other plan you have, including Medicare, Medi-Cal, and Workmen's Compensation.

RENEWAL AND RATE CHANGE PROVISIONS—Once you have enrolled in this plan from National Home Life Assurance Company, your policy is guaranteed renewable. Your rate can be increased individually only if there is a rate increase on all our policies of this class in your state. It cannot be increased because of how much or how often you receive benefits from us—or because of advanced age. We will issue you only one policy of this class.

DON'T BE CAUGHT SHORT!

Many group insurance plans like Blue Cross or the one you have at work may not pay all the bills. That's why millions of Americans today have some form of additional protection, to give them the benefits they need when they're laid up. Ask anyone you know who's been in the hospital lately how tough it can be to make ends meet.

Many medical plans don't pay for a whole list of things. Outside specialists. Transfusions. Special nurses. Surgery. Medicines. Special equipment. A private room. Ambulance. And much more.

That's why everyone from 16-79 should have this National Home protection.

Your Personalized ID Card

We'll also send you your personalized National Home Policyowner Identification Card. It is your assurance of hospital cash protection and fast personal claims service.

We'll rush your policy to you by mail, and you and your entire covered family will be eligible for all the cash benefits of this valuable insurance plan. You can take 10 days to examine it in the privacy of your home. If you decide not to keep it, send it back. You're under no obligation . . . and we'll promptly refund your money.

65 or over? You collect regardless of Medicare!

Regardless of Medicare or Medi-Cal coverages, thousands of folks like yourself who are 65 and over are receiving full benefits, $1,200.00 a month ($40.00 a day), under Plan A when they're hospitalized. This is cash you can use to keep your finances intact because Medicare, as generous as it is, doesn't pay all the bills. Few people realize that despite Medicare the average couple 65 and over had to pay $830.00 out of their own pockets for health care this year.* That's why folks 65 and over need the additional protection of a supplemental insurance plan from National Home.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR KATHRYN CROSBY

With your large family and busy life, I'm wondering if there was ever a time when you felt really alone?—B.G., Hollywood, Calif.

● Yes. Once I had a guest on my TV program who had written a wonderful book on cancer. It was his first TV show. I questioned him about his book, but he blacked out and clammed up to the point where he couldn't remember a thing. He was shaking with fear and I didn't know what to do. At that point I was probably more scared than he was, because it was up to me to bail him out. I was on the verge of tears when a commercial break rescued me. We both recovered our composure a bit, but it was definitely one of my worst experiences.

FOR SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.)

If no strong Democratic candidate emerges before the national convention, do you think Senator Kennedy will run? —Robert Clark, Montgomery, Ala.

● I have talked to Senator Kennedy about this several times. I really believe that there are no circumstances that would cause him to be a candidate in 1976.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

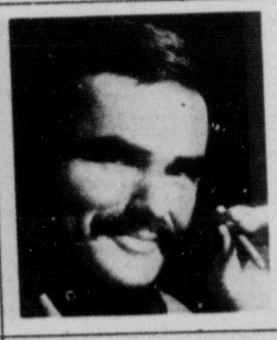
● Figure it out. I have the brain of an eight-year-old hummingbird; the feet of a 91-year-old biped; the figure of a 60-year-old mop; the hands of a 74-year-old librarian; the elbows of a 98-year-old Gypsy who's been reading tea leaves; the attention span of a gnat; the hair of a retired Dalai Lama; the gait of a squirrel, and the heart of a middle-aged gazelle. In short, I'm 142 years away from my Bicentennial.

FOR ROBERTA FLACK, singer

Are you married?—N.S., Cheyenne, Wyo.

● I was once—in 1966 to bass player Stephen Novesel. But it turned sour and we got divorced in 1972. It was great until it stopped being a marriage. While it lasted, Stephen was a wonderful husband. Other men handed their wives tulips, but Stephen brought me roses—and threw them at my feet. But we're still friends and always will be because he's one of those fantastic good-as-gold people.



FOR BURT REYNOLDS

You and Paul Newman are both considered sex symbols. Do you feel that you two have anything in common? —K. Hughes, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● Yes. We both like Joanne Woodward.

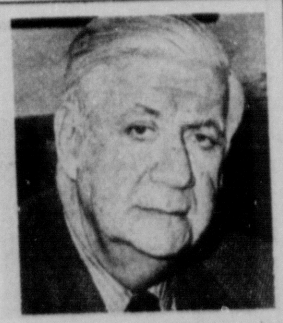
● It's not silly at all. I wish it were. I always have trouble with evening gowns because I can't wear those that are very bare on top. I've got broad shoulders, and anything off the shoulder makes me look even wider! So when I shop, I'm on the lookout for dresses that cut the line (such as jumpers) or have a break at the armpits. That's why I often have long scarves trailing over one shoulder—it creates an optical illusion and makes me look less top heavy.

FOR CHARLES BRONSON

I just saw "Hard Times," and I would like to know if you ever took boxing lessons or had martial arts training? —I. Madanat, Wilmington, Del.

● Nope, I learned how to defend myself the hard and practical way—on the streets of Ehrenfeld, Pa., in coal mining country, where I grew up. (I went down into a mine for the first time when I was 10—working, not visiting.) You had to know how to use your fists because someone else was always ready to use his on you. I had to take care of myself off the streets, too. In my house, I was one of 14 children!



FOR REP. THOMAS P. O'NEILL, JR., Democratic Majority Leader from Massachusetts

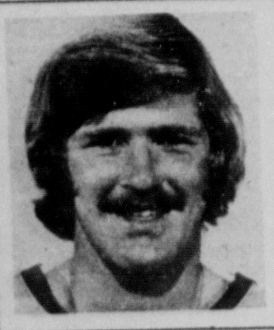
● Richard Nixon resigned as President after the House Judiciary Committee had voted on articles of impeachment but before the full House of Representatives considered them. This means that, legally, he is not prohibited from seeking federal office again. However, he could not be re-elected President since, under the 22nd Amendment, no one can be elected to the Presidency more than twice.



FOR RICK MARTIN, hockey star

● Hockey is a tough sport and the hard body-checking is part of the game, but the dirty playing is not. I've observed that most of the dirty stuff is done by less talented players. And to be honest with you, I don't think anything will be done about the violence until someone gets crippled or killed.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is Frank Sinatra as rude in private life as he is in public? —B.C., Vancouver, Wash.

● Paul Anka, for years his good and close friend, advises: "No. He can be his own worst enemy in such things as dealing with the press, but many things you hear are groundless or are magnified. He's wonderful to his friends, quietly supports charities and is very sensitive. He's one of the few people in show business I can talk to. When you're with Frank, you're completely at ease. At his Caesars Palace 'comeback,' he had a bad throat and was worried and bitterly disappointed. (He's a perfectionist.) I wrote and told him I knew how he felt and that I respected him for trying so hard. When he got my note, he phoned—on the verge of tears. I was the only one who had contacted him. No one else had cared enough. Frank, on the other hand, cares about everyone."

Report from Philip Morris

New 'Enriched Flavor'™ discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT achieves taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

The cigarette is called MERIT. It delivers only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Yet MERIT delivers astonishing flavor.

Key Flavor Ingredients Of Tobacco Isolated

By isolating certain "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have developed a way to pack extra flavor into tobacco without the usual increase in tar.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

The results were conclusive:

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

Produced by Robin Thrush

TV News
- How Unbiased Is It?
- Is It Censored?
- Did It Fall Down on Watergate?
- Has It Become Too Gloomy?

Surveys claim that a big share of the American public derives all its understanding of current events from TV news broadcasts. Can we rely on TV for so much information? How responsible and accurate are the men who report and comment on the news? How much power do they wield? What part do newscasters play in our day-to-day educational awareness? To find out the answers to these tough questions, FAMILY WEEKLY decided to go to the source. We talked with seven of the best-liked, most respected TV newscasters. Our symposium consists of Howard K. Smith (ABC commentator), Bill Beutel (ABC reporter), Dan Rather (CBS anchorman-correspondent), Mike Wallace (CBS correspondent and co-editor of CBS's "60 Minutes"), John Chancellor (NBC anchorman), Tom Brokaw (NBC White House correspondent), Edwin Newman (NBC correspondent).

FAMILY WEEKLY: Do networks tell "all the news that's fit to tell?"

RATHER: We are incapable of doing that. Frankly, there is not enough time to do it. I regret those polls that indicate that most people get most, if not all, of their news from TV. One must read as well. One must read newspapers, magazines and, at least occasionally, a book. But I don't think a person nowadays can be well informed and not watch TV, either. I find some people who consider themselves "intellectual" people, who pride themselves on saying, "I never watch TV." I think that's the mark of an uninformed person, too.

WALLACE: I think any careful reading of our news coverage over the past half dozen years would prove that if a story was worth covering, we did it.

FW: What criticism of TV news do you find the most unjust? The most valid?

CHANCELLOR: The most unjust criticism is that sponsors have power over what we report. The most valid criticism is that we pay too much attention to the news of the day and not enough attention to slower-moving events that may in the long run be more important.

WALLACE: I think the most unjust criticism is that there's a liberal bias in the networks. The most valid is that we follow our sisters of print too slavishly. We don't find enough stories by ourselves.

SMITH: I think most of us are liberal. Most of us are left-of-center Democrats.

"What happened in the case of The New York Times and the Pentagon Papers is that someone walked in and handed the Times the story. That did not require great investigative reporting, in my judgment."
—Dan Rather, CBS News

After all, we were raised during the FDR years or in the long shadow he cast, and we are all college-educated. We are criticized for being too picture-oriented. Again, I agree. We are attracted by pictures; action magnetizes us. Finally, we are accused of never giving the whole story. On TV everything is tight, ad-libbing rarely occurs because it throws us off schedule. In a sense, TV news is a very unsatisfactory form of journalism. But there are limitations in every field—Shakespeare's was a small stage, ours is time.

RATHER: The most unjust criticisms are those claiming that all newscasters are involved in some dark conspiracy of ideology. The criticism that we are superficial is often valid. I think it's vastly overstated, but there are some subjects that we haven't yet learned to deal with in depth. For example, we don't do a very good job of reporting new ideas, but that's because ideas are not easy to define within a visual framework.

BEUTEL: Our critics claim that we're a limited medium. Well, that's essentially true—but then we don't believe we're the complete answer. A newscast is, by definition, a very good headline service.

FW: Do you think there's more censorship in TV than in the printed word?

BROKAW: Censorship is a grossly misunderstood word. Practically, it means government intervention or restriction of the right of the press to determine what is news. Editing is the more appropriate term here. Yes, there is more editing in TV because our time and space limits are so much more severe.

NEWMAN: There are obviously more outlets for printed journalism than for broadcast journalism. There are simply more magazines and newspapers than there are TV networks. This provides the printed word with greater variety and more chance for original reporting. But censorship—I have not run into that.

SMITH: There is no real censorship. Take the Equal Time Law. This is the law which stipulates that we must give equal coverage time to political candidates. Only TV is affected by it, and it means that networks are not allowed to endorse candidates. But I feel this is a good ruling because it's conceivable that newscasters could elect or defeat a candidate. ABC's "Nightly News" program alone has between 10 million and 12 million viewers, so consider what would happen if all the network commentators endorsed the same candidate. Newspapers have much smaller circulations than that, so we leave that editorializing to them.

FW: So much that is newsworthy is of a depressing nature that after a while our perspective gets warped. Should the media make a concerted effort to restore optimism?

BROKAW: We have an obligation to reflect reality, not manufacture optimism. Much of the news is depressing, but if we were to ignore it, it wouldn't go away. By broadcasting details and providing perspective, we at least give the public an opportunity to cope with the news, to make decisions based on knowledge, not ignorance. Besides, every TV news program contains an upbeat story of some kind. Consider the amount of time and money we've spent on covering space flights. Unfortunately, it is human nature to remember the gruesome and forget the wholesome.

WALLACE: Phony optimism would quickly wear out its welcome on the air. Renewed faith and optimism only grow out of the efforts this country and its people make to fulfill our promise of freedom, decency and justice.

CHANCELLOR: I see a lot of cynicism about government at all levels, and it worries me. Journalism is a chronicle of conflict and change. Advocacy of optimism would not be journalism, but propaganda. It would therefore require decision-making machinery on what would be acceptable news and what wouldn't be acceptable. That's what they have in Russia, and it doesn't work.

BROKAW: I think Americans are knowledgeable in all areas except economics, which is not unusual since the subject baffles even the economists.

WALLACE: It's not just the American public that pleads ignorance about eco-

Here is a life insurance policy that can be yours for the asking if you inquire before February 29th. No ifs, ands, or buts! Not only is no physical examination required, but the policy is actually issued to you without a single health question!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS* is an individual life insurance policy that guarantees to accept every man and woman between 50 and 80 who applies during the guaranteed acceptance period—regardless of any other insurance carried.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is underwritten by Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, specialists in serving the specific needs of America's older population. This protection is recommended to their members by two of America's highly respected national nonprofit organizations of the mature: the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

A Protection Breakthrough for Every Older Person!

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS is a distinctive concept of life insurance, achieved as a result of the years of effort Colonial Penn has devoted to meeting the insurance needs of mature people.

The goal was a life insurance policy we can make available to all mature people—a policy whose cost would be reasonable and whose benefits would be worthwhile. With PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS, the Colonial Penn Life Insurance Company has succeeded.

Here's How PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS Can Do This For You:

During the first two years that your policy is in effect, your coverage is reduced. If you should die during the first policy year, the benefit paid to your beneficiary is $100. If death occurs during the second policy year, your beneficiary receives $250. Once two years have passed, you are covered for the full face amount of the policy.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS enables the older person to obtain worthwhile benefits for his insurance dollar—and, at the same time, guarantees acceptance for all applicants—even those who ordinarily wouldn't qualify for life insurance.

PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS provides increasing cash values which begin after the first or second year.

As a matter of fact, after only ten years, you can even stop paying premiums and still receive paid up life insurance coverage of at least one-half the original face amount of your policy.

The Cost? JUST $6.95 A MONTH.

No matter what your age, your sex, or the condition of your health, you pay just $6.95 a month. The amount of coverage you receive is based on your sex and age. However, once you are insured the amount of your insurance will never go down, and your payments will never go up!

Act Now—You Have Nothing to Lose!

To obtain full information on PRIME LIFE 50 PLUS in time to take advantage of this opportunity to become insured, please mail the coupon before February 29th. Between guaranteed acceptance periods, you may be required to meet the company's underwriting requirements in order to obtain this protection.

nomics; I plead guilty to being somewhat ignorant about economics as well!

SMITH: TV is unfortunately not the best medium in which to present economic questions. Numbers just don't come across on film. I can say that 10,000 people suffer from such and such a disease, and people will claim I said 100,000 or a million. Now we have economic experts on TV, but I sometimes feel that the information would be as readily understood coming from those of us who don't claim to be specialists. Our approach is more straightforward.

CHANCELLOR: I think a lot of people don't understand much about the balance of strategic nuclear arms, which is a very complex subject. I wish more people could take an interest in it, because if the "experts" are wrong, we might all get burned up.

NEWMAN: Foreign affairs is my guess. What to do about it is a difficult question since people will take in no more foreign news than they want to.

FW: Do you feel that your opinions have helped shape America?

SMITH: Individually, no newscaster has much influence. But the medium as a whole has enormous impact. Newscasters effect change only by virtue of the fact that they pound out facts day after day. In that sense, you could say that we were instrumental in furthering Civil Rights, or in bringing the Vietnam and Watergate debacles to an end. But ours is a very doubtful form of fame. In the last three weeks, I have been mistaken for both John Chancellor and Harry Reasoner.

BEUTEL: I don't believe that any of us sets out to change the direction of popular thought. No one program tries to, nor could it succeed if it did. But when you take the conglomerate of all network and local information programs—yes, we have a considerable influence.

CHANCELLOR: I hope we don't. I offer very few personal opinions on TV, and when I do offer one, it's often an opinion already held by a lot of other people.

NEWMAN: My assessments of what is news and what is not news have probably had some effect over the years, but I doubt that my opinions have. This is normal.

NEWMAN: Absolutely not. We are not the government, and we are not an alternative government. It is a grave mistake for newspeople to think themselves part of the governing process. The proper attitude is independence, detachment.

RATHER: In a way, yes. I think we face an election every day when the person who has his hand on the knob elects whether to watch CBS, NBC or ABC. He elects whether to listen to Dan Rather or not. And beyond that, he elects every day whether to pay any attention to what Dan Rather says.

CHANCELLOR: There's no comparison. Public officials either administer programs or offer ideas. Our job in journalism is to report on how those programs are administered, nothing more.

FW: TV networks certainly have the money and staff to do investigative reporting, but it was The New York Times that broke the Pentagon Papers and The Washington Post that was responsible for unearthing the truth about Watergate. Why?

BEUTEL: TV is just not good at investigative reporting. I think there are two reasons for this. First, we feel we must have pictures to substantiate a story, and it's hard to be inconspicuous when you're lugging around huge camera equipment. Second, we can't afford to keep reporters on stories for indefinite periods of time—we have an unwritten law of economic utilization.

"I have argued for a long time that we build up unreal expectations about Presidents and so create disappointment in proportion. We inflate the Presidency—which misleads not only the people but the man holding office."
—Edwin Newman, NBC News

WALLACE: We haven't failed in this area because of nerve, but because of lack of initiative. So far, we just haven't devoted the resources, effort or attention that good investigation requires.

RATHER: Let's stop for a minute and take each case on its merits. What happened in the case of The New York Times and the Pentagon Papers is that someone walked in and handed the Times the story. That did not require great investigative reporting, in my judgment. I'll admit, however, that it took a lot of guts for the Times to print it. As for The Washington Post, the Watergate story began as a police-beat story. The Post, in addition to being a national newspaper, is a local paper for Washington. They cover the local police beat, and we don't.

SMITH: Newspapers have much larger staffs than we do. Their reporters are paid rather poorly in comparison with

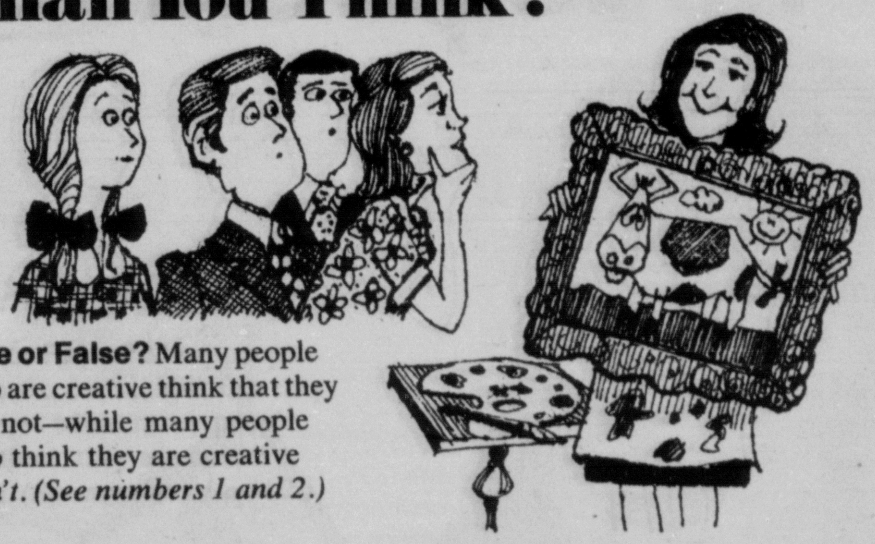
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Are You More Creative Than You Think?



True or False? Many people who are creative think that they are not—while many people who think they are creative aren't. (See numbers 1 and 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Many people who are creative think that they are not.

2. Many people who think they are creative aren't.

3. If you want to develop your latent creative ability, you should stop daydreaming and take positive action.

4. Some hallucinations are perfectly normal and reveal creative imagination.

5. Some people so completely repress their creative side that it only manifests itself when they are asleep.

6. The more creative you are, the less likely you are to be concerned with impressing others or "keeping up with the Joneses."

ANSWERS

1. True. Many people with creative ability never realize their potential and never give it a chance to surface—simply because it has never occurred to them that they might be creative. Also, their creative thoughts might have been suppressed by a lack of encouragement or by mundane, workaday activity. As one authority observes, many people have deep untapped wells of creative power just waiting to be energized and constructively directed.

2. True. Many people confuse being high-strung, temperamental or neurotic with being creative, and they find it easy to convince themselves that they are misunderstood geniuses. While neurotic tendencies may go hand in hand with creativity, usually they don't. And studies indicate that creative people who have such tendencies are successful in spite of their neurosis rather than because of it.

3. False. Studies show that the "inner phenomenon" we call daydreaming is an important imaginative process which markedly increases creativity. It also has been found to serve two other constructive purposes: providing a valuable release from nervous tension and making boredom tolerable.

4. True. According to the studies of Dr. Roland Fischer, Clinical Professor in the Department of Psychiatry at Georgetown University, there are two kinds of hallucinations—the type experienced by paranoid persons, which is a distortion of reality; and the original and innovative hallucinations, which may be experienced by creative people. He cites research showing that 10 percent of the normal population who experience similar phenomena are perfectly capable of differentiating between the real and imaginary. His conclusion: Much of the communication with the unknown, unseen and unheard is communication on a truly creative level and originates in hallucinatory experiences.

5. True—as evidenced by psychological studies conducted by a team of investigators at California State College. They cite, for example, the fascinating case history of a young woman who habitually talked in her sleep, often holding lucid conversations with another person. It was noted that in contrast to her wakeful behavior, her sleep-talking was characterized by unusual, creative aspects. An investigation revealed that due to early childhood conditioning, she had repressed this facet of her personality and "only allowed her creative side to emerge when she was asleep."

6. True—as revealed by creativity research at the National Institute of Mental Health, where it was found that people who made high scores on creativity tests tended to be the least concerned with making a favorable impression on others. They also differed from less creative people in that they were more poised, spontaneous, more adventurous, humorous, rebellious and assertive.

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less— the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and a postage stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material—for any reason—within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

☐ Please send Air Mail. I'm enclosing an extra dollar.

You can twirl away ugly fat in just 14 days

By Twirling Your Gyro-Gym Just 5 Min. A Day, You Can Trim 4 Inches Off Your Waist, Shed 12 Lbs. And Shape Up Forever

by Jack Powers

If you can spare just five minutes a day, they will be the most worthwhile minutes you've spent in your life. The revolutionary new exerciser, Gyro-Gym, lets you twirl your way to a slim, trim, totally fit new body in just 14 days. Gyro-Gym was specifically designed for the overweight, underexercised people, who hate to exercise and dislike dieting even more.

Gyro-Gym is such fun to use, you'll actually find it hard to put down. It's kind of like having a new toy that you can twirl while watching TV. Twirl it to the beat of your kind of music, or use your Gyro-Gym in your back yard and catch some sun as you twirl. You'll quickly see the results of using your Gyro-Gym. In as little as three days, your body will be firmer – you'll have more energy and vitality. One of the immediate effects of your new fitness will be a great improvement in your love life. A flabby body performs sluggishly – without enthusiasm. Your fit, new body will perform with zest and vigor. Your new mental attitude (self-confidence) acts, too, to renew and revitalize your lovelife.

Statistics prove that the right kind of exercise buys years. Using your Gyro-Gym just five minutes a day slows the aging process. Because it works on every inch of your body, Gyro-Gym helps you to live longer and look and feel great.

HOW DOES YOUR GYRO-GYM WORK?

"Centrifugal Force Transfer" (CFT) The twirling water bottles, on the Gyro-Gym, generate centrifugal force. This force is transferred to your body to burn up fat.

It works by using two scientific principles. (The only way exercise can be easy and fun, and still be effective.) Gyro-Gym uses the principles of Advanced Resistance and Centrifugal Force Transfer (CFT). The Advanced Resistance principle works by adding a small amount of water to the bottles the first day and twirling your Gyro-Gym for 5 minutes. The second day you add a little additional water and twirl for 5 minutes. The third day a little more, and so on throughout your fourteen day Gyro-Gym program. As each day passes, you become firmer, slimmer, and healthier. You simply twirl away ugly fat, while you eat (sensibly) the foods you love.

The Centrifugal Force Transfer (CFT) principle begins to operate as you twirl the bottles. (See the photo below.) Centrifugal force is that force that throws you to the side of the roller coaster as it makes a turn and the force that keeps satellites in orbit as they circle the earth.

Instructions, which will accompany your Gyro-Gym, will show you exercises for slimming of the waistline area, toning of the arm, shoulder, neck and face muscles and building and beautifying the bustline (expanding the chest area in men).

When you bend forward at the waist and twirl your Gyro-Gym, the benefits are transferred to the back, hips, buttocks and legs – slimming and firming with every twirl. Because you control the amount of water in the bottles each day, you build your exercise program slowly, personally, and suffer no sore, stiff muscles. Your Gyro-Gym even includes an easy-to-understand instruction booklet.

WHY DOES GYRO-GYM WORK WHILE OTHER METHODS FAIL?

Many reasons. First, unlike other exercise machines, that work only on certain areas of the body, Gyro-Gym works to shape and trim every inch. And, while calisthenic-type exercises are difficult and boring, Gyro-Gym is easy and fun. Unlike diet pills and strenuous dieting that makes you weak and nervous, twirling your Gyro-Gym calms and relaxes you.

You use your Gyro-Gym right in the privacy of your own home. There's no need for extra equipment (not even a door) or special clothing. Wear whatever you want, your pajamas, if you like. Your Gyro-Gym can be stored anywhere, taken anywhere and used wherever you have the little space it takes to twirl.

Gyro-Gym is made of steel and high-impact plastic, that will stand up to heavy use. And it will get it, since every member of your family and probably your friends will want to use it when they see the terrific shape you're in.

"GYRO-GYM CONCENTRATES ON SPECIFIC AREAS

I'm slim on top, but my hips and legs are heavy. I hate to diet because I always lose inches off my bustline. My Gyro-Gym exercise program gave me specific exercises for my legs and hips. I lost 13 lbs., 4 inches off my waist, 3 inches off my hips, but my bustline stayed the same."

Pat Shorthill

"GYRO-GYM CAN SHAPE YOU UP FOR A BETTER JOB

I've always wanted to be a fashion model, but I was too heavy to get a good job. In desperation, I decided to try Gyro-Gym. Wow! What a difference it made in just 14 days. I lost 12 lbs. and trimmed and shaped my entire body. No more trouble getting modeling sessions now!"

Linda Bonnell

"GYRO-GYM CALMS FRAZZLED NERVES

Every time I try to lose weight, I get nervous and weak. I always quit the diet because I know I'm ruining my health. After using my Gyro-Gym for 14 days, I lost 18 lbs. and 5 inches off my waist. But, what's so amazing, is that twirling my Gyro-Gym actually calmed my nerves and increased my endurance."

Dan McClintock

"GYRO-GYM GETS RID OF UNSIGHTLY CELLULITE

I tried the cellulite book, and it worked fairly well for 2 months, but then came back. My Gyro-Gym destroyed all my cellulite after just 14 days of use. And, it's never returned."

Cindy McClintock

"GYRO-GYM IS LIKE HAVING A HEALTH SPA IN YOUR OWN HOME

I was spending hundreds of dollars a year for my health spa membership and more on gasoline driving back and forth. Plus, wanting to keep up with the other women there, I had nearly a hundred dollars in different colored leotards. With Gyro-Gym, I have my own health spa in my own home for only $19.95."

Nancy Bauhof

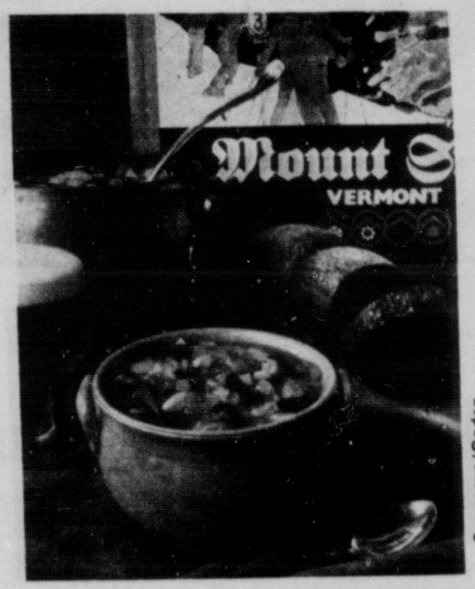
Day Before Payday

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes a thick, stomach-warming soup for cold weather. Marilyn says, "This Peasant Soup is a variation of the famous 'borscht' snowbound Russians have been eating for years. But there's nothing 'foreign' about the taste!"

Thick and Steaming Peasant Soup!



Scocozza/Ogden

Peasant Soup, made with pork, carrots, cabbage and beets, has become a staple at ski resorts like Mount Snow, Vermont.

PEASANT SOUP
A Type of Borscht

- ½ lb. boneless beef brisket*
- 1½ lbs. pork shoulder, bone in
- ½ lb. smoked boneless pork butt
- 5 cans (13¾ oz.-size) beef consommé
- 4 cups chopped onion
- 3 cups diced carrots
- 1 lb. beets, cut in ¼-inch strips
- 1 large clove garlic, crushed
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 qt. shredded cabbage
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomato purée
- 3 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 4 all-beef frankfurters
- 1 can (1 lb.) kidney or navy beans, undrained
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- Salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1 pt. sour cream
- ½ cup chopped parsley

1. Place beef brisket, pork shoulder, pork butt and beef consommé in large 8- to 10-qt. kettle. Heat to boiling, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 1½ hours.
2. Add onion, carrots, beets, garlic, bay leaves, cabbage, tomatoes, tomato purée and vinegar. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer for about an hour.
3. Scoop meat out of soup and cut into small cubes; return meat to soup.
4. Add frankfurters, beans and brown sugar to soup; stir. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer for 30 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste.
5. Ladle into large soup bowls. Garnish with sour cream and parsley. Serve with crusty bread. Makes 7 to 8 qts.

WHEAT 'N' RAISIN CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

- 1½ cups regular margarine or solid all-vegetable shortening
- 1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 4 eggs
- 2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2½ cups unsifted whole wheat flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 tablespoons hot water
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 pkg. (12 ozs.) chocolate bits

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Beat margarine in large bowl until soft. Gradually add sugars, beating until light and fluffy. Add vanilla.
3. Add eggs one at a time, beating well.
4. Blend both kinds of flour and salt on sheet of waxed paper. Gradually add flour mixture to sugar mixture, beating at low speed until well-mixed.
5. Dissolve baking soda in hot water and add to sugar-flour mixture.
6. Stir in nuts, raisins and chocolate bits.
7. Using 1 generous tablespoon of dough for each cookie, place on greased cookie sheet, flattening dough to a 2½-inch circle.
8. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes. Allow to cool. Makes 45 large cookies

What's Smart: There are two types of borscht, one that's served cold, the other hot. Our recipe, a version of the hot, makes a large amount and can be frozen. Borscht is excellent for serving after any cold-weather activity. You can also make it ahead and take it with you on a ski trip.

How many times have you decided to give up smoking?

Nobody these days is telling you not to give up smoking.

But if you've given it up more times than you'd like to remember, the chances are you enjoy it too much to want to give it up at all.

If you're like a lot of smokers these days, it probably isn't smoking that you want to give up. It's some of that 'tar' and nicotine you've been hearing about.

So you tried cigarettes which were low in 'tar' and you found yourself checking every once in a while to see if they were still lit. Which drove you right back to your regular brand.

Now, there is Vantage.

But what really makes Vantage special is our special filter which allows the tobacco flavor to come through.

Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette, but it may well be the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

And that's what makes all the difference.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report SEPT. '75.

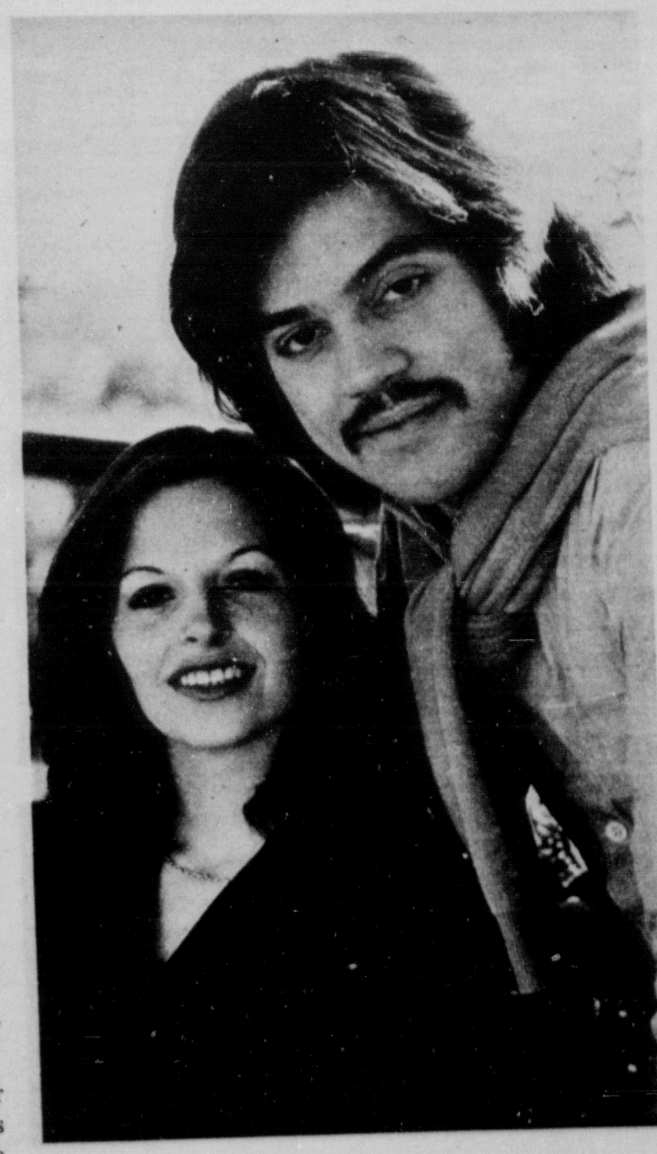
TV's Dazzling Ex-Bachelor on Fame, Wealth—And His Kathy

By Anita Summer



Peter C. Borsari

"Let's face it, first impressions are usually based on beauty. . . . She's gorgeous, and I was bowled over. After that, I was impressed by her class. She's not a dizzy dame. When she talks, it's not to hear the sound of her own voice—she has something to say."

ast October, Freddie Prinze, 21, star of TV's "Chico and the Man," married Kathy Cochran, 21, at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. They met on March 20, 1975, in Jackson ole, Wyo. It's a first marriage for both. Kathy, who isn't in show business, had been working in her parents' western art gallery.

AMILY WEEKLY: How do you feel bout relinquishing your title as "Holly-ood's Most Eligible Bachelor"?

INZE: I've got no regrets. Mind you, the beginning it was a barrel of fun. hen it got to be embarrassing because ite often I was paired off by the press ith girls I'd never even met, let alone ated. Or else it was a casual thing with meone I'd known for years, or an inno-nt friendship (such as with Raquel elch), and the papers reported it as a zing romance. This was going on even ile I was engaged to Kathy. She saw joke and thought it was very funny but I didn't. From the time we met to time we got married, neither of us ted anyone else. So you can see how pid and inaccurate those newspaper ories were.

W: How did your fans take the news of ur marriage?

RINZE: They were surprised, and their utpouring of warmth and good wishes turn took me by surprise. They've ally been great!

W: What does Kathy have that other rls don't? What drew you to her?

RINZE: Her looks. Let's face it, first mpressions are usually based on beauty even though, as we all know, it's "only kin deep!"). She's gorgeous, and I was owled over. After that, I was impressed by her class. She's not a dizzy dame. hen she talks, it's not to hear the sound her own voice—she has something say.

W: Do you think your marriage will urvive the hazards of show business?

RINZE: Yes, because when Kathy and got married, we formed a "partnership." ny marriage that isn't is a "dictatorship." ll decisions, whether they're important trivial are made by both of us. The nly exception to this rule is my career—hat's in the hands of my manager. lthough, I must say, Kathy comes up with some pretty interesting suggestions and good advice now and then.

FW: What kind of relationship do you have with Jack Albertson [who co-stars with Prinze in TV's "Chico and the Man"]?

PRINZE: The greatest. He's my show-business father. He's the biggest tease

As the family goes, so goes the nation—and the world. The kind of mature and responsible people who are needed to make a free society work are the kind who can only be produced by solid family life. All who are concerned for our future as a nation and a race, must do what they can to restore and preserve the family.

One step in this direction surely would be to encourage real communication among family members so that they strengthen their ties of love and respect rather than drift apart. Of course, communication is not the whole answer to family problems. But it is part of the answer. And a good place to start.

We have some very worthwhile advice on family communications. It is given in simple language in our pamphlet: "Person to Person." A free copy is yours for the asking. Mail the coupon below. No one will call.

and the funniest man I know. He's always telling people, "I taught Freddie all he knows. It took me exactly two minutes." When he saw me in Las Vegas, he said, "Freddie, I've seen your act twice. My advice is: save your money." Jack uses all the old jokes in the book, but when he says them, they sound new. To me, he's 20 years old. I hope I'm that way when I'm his age. In fact, he and Fred Astaire are the two classiest men I know. They're ageless!

FW: You must feel pretty good about your accomplishments . . .

PRINZE: Buying a home for my parents in the San Fernando Valley gave me the best feeling. Mom and Dad just retired there. The place has three bedrooms, a den, dining room, kitchen, laundry room, garage (for Dad to putter in), patio, pool and an enormous garden with fruit trees.

FW: Which would you rather be—rich or famous?

PRINZE: Both! Rich because it gives you freedom of choice. When you're rich and they offer you $100,000 to play Vegas and the date coincides with your mother's birthday, you have the luxury of rejecting the engagement. You don't need the money. But I'm not obsessed with luxuries, really. My idea of pampering myself is buying all the records I want, going out to dinner (I hate to cook), and having lots of jeans (my trademarks are jeans and cream-colored shoes). As for the "famous" bit, that's simple. I like to see my name in lights. It's what I've always dreamed of. When somebody stops me for my autograph, I feel eight feet tall.

FW: How do you feel about public recognition?

PRINZE: It places a tremendous responsibility on the performer because he must be very careful about what he says. Your name and word mean something. Joe Citizen likes to listen to Joe Actor, but that can be dangerous if Joe Actor lacks tact or consideration. I don't like entertainers who jump on bandwagons for every cause in the world. With fame, you can do things for people that you can't do without it. But you can also hurt people. A cabbie could probably do just as good a job on a telethon as a celebrity, but unfortunately he never gets the chance to prove it.

FW: Tell us about your family.

PRINZE: Dad was a tool and dye maker, and put in a 12-hour day. Mom worked in a shoe factory. I don't know how she stood it. I worked there one summer, and after a few months, I knew there had to be a better life than that! My brother Eddie, 33, and sister Rita, 27, are both married and live in Puerto Rico with their families. I haven't seen Rita in three years. She doesn't want to leave Puerto Rico and I haven't been able to get down there. She reads about me in magazines and can't believe what she sees in print! "This is my brother!" she says in great disbelief. "He has no talent—except to steal from me." (That's because when I was young, I was always asking her for money.)

"My agent is God. When I have a big problem to solve or a major decision to make, I don't ask anyone for advice. I turn to the Bible for my answer."

FW: What kind of a person are you?

PRINZE: A religious and emotional one. Right now I feel I have an angel on my shoulder. Although I have everything all the other stars do, my agent is God. When I have a big problem to solve or a major decision to make, I don't ask anyone for advice. I turn to the Bible for my answer, and I always find it there. I'm emotional and don't go along with the concept of 'Be a man, don't cry.' Why shouldn't men cry? They have feelings and emotions just as women do. I let it all out. When I came offstage from my Las Vegas debut, I cried. Between sobs I thought to myself in surprise, "They liked me! They really liked me!" Weeping was my way of letting it all out and expressing myself.

FW: Do you like to see yourself on TV?

PRINZE: No. In fact, I hate it. I see a pimple on my cheek, or I decide I should have said that line differently. Watching myself makes me feel inadequate and insecure.

FW: Who were your childhood heroes?

PRINZE: Clark Gable, Humphrey Bogart, John Garfield and Edward G. Robinson. I met the late Edward G. when I was seven. He came to my neighborhood to visit his brother who lived there. I was walking my dog. He got out of the car and I recognized him. I said, "Gee, you're Edward G. Robinson." He said yes. Then he did a little shtick for me. That sort of thing makes a big impression on a kid. In fact, as I look back, I'm sure that's when I got seriously bitten by the show-business bug. FW

TRY THIS NEW PIPE FOR 30 DAYS!

..If you are a pipe smoker, a "Carey Pipe" can end forever your constant search for the most enjoyable smoke of your life.

If you don't agree that it's the best smoke you've ever had, it won't cost you a dime. This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking.

E. A. Carey

Give it 30 days—

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

TV News

ours. So we can't afford to put a man on a story with the possibility that it might bear no results. Actually, with Watergate, we assigned one of Jack Anderson's top assistants to investigate, but he came up with nothing.

FW: A great portion of every newscast is devoted to the Presidency. Might not this be the kind of dangerous policy that led to an "imperial" or "Watergate" type of Presidency?

BROKAW: Since the President is always America's best-known personality and single-most influential individual, the office necessarily commands extraordinary news coverage. There is a potential for abuse, but, as a correspondent assigned to the White House, I can assure you that we are constantly aware of the dangers of becoming little more than mirrors for the President to reflect the image of his choice.

CHANCELLOR: That so much news is generated from the White House is partly because of the historical trend toward more power in the executive branch and partly because Presidents are politicians and politicians like to get on the tube. So, to cover the news, we often have to get it from the President. A President could remedy this by giving more power to Cabinet and senior officials, but I think that's unlikely. History and a complacent Congress are shaping the imperial Presidency, and journalism can't do much about it.

NEWMAN: Yes, I think this is an extremely dangerous policy. I have argued for a long time that we build up unreal expectations about Presidents and so create disappointment in proportion. We inflate the Presidency—which misleads not only the people but the man holding office. If the nation is to be healthy, the White House cannot be the only source of hope and dynamism.

SMITH: Intellectualism is essential. George Hicks, one of the best correspondents of World War II, summed it up when he said, "Reporting war is comparable to sports reporting. It's easy. All you do is tell which side won that day. Peace requires a scholar." When the war was over, George Hicks retired.

BEUTEL: A good newsman is essentially a gossip on a distinguished level. You have to be curious about everything. You have to have a big ego and plenty of guts. The best newscasters have been Renaissance men who are interested in every facet of every issue.

FW: In retrospect on your years of reporting and commenting on the news, do you have any regrets?

WALLACE: My only serious professional regret is that I wish I had understood more quickly the nature of the threat against the press by the Nixon White House. At the time, I thought I knew them and found it difficult to believe that they would try so hard to bring us down. I was wrong.

CHANCELLOR: As a White House correspondent in 1964, I was deeply concerned that Lyndon Johnson might be making fundamental mistakes concerning Vietnam. But I couldn't prove that, so I didn't say it. I wish now that I'd been able to make a provable case against our involvement.

"I was deeply concerned that Lyndon Johnson might be making fundamental mistakes on Vietnam. But I couldn't prove that, so I didn't say it. I wish now that I'd been able to make a provable case against our involvement."
—John Chancellor, NBC News

SMITH: I have regrets after every nightly newscast. I wish that I could have gone into many more subjects at greater length and in greater depth. During my years as a foreign correspondent, I voiced one regrettable opinion—I said the Marshall Plan would never work. I was proved wrong, and I'm glad.

RATHER: I have a lot of regrets. I regret every mistake I ever made, and I've made a fair number of them. I regret the time I've spent away from my family. I regret having made enemies. All of these are things that go along with being a reporter.

FW: As we approach our Bicentennial, what looms as our greatest challenge?

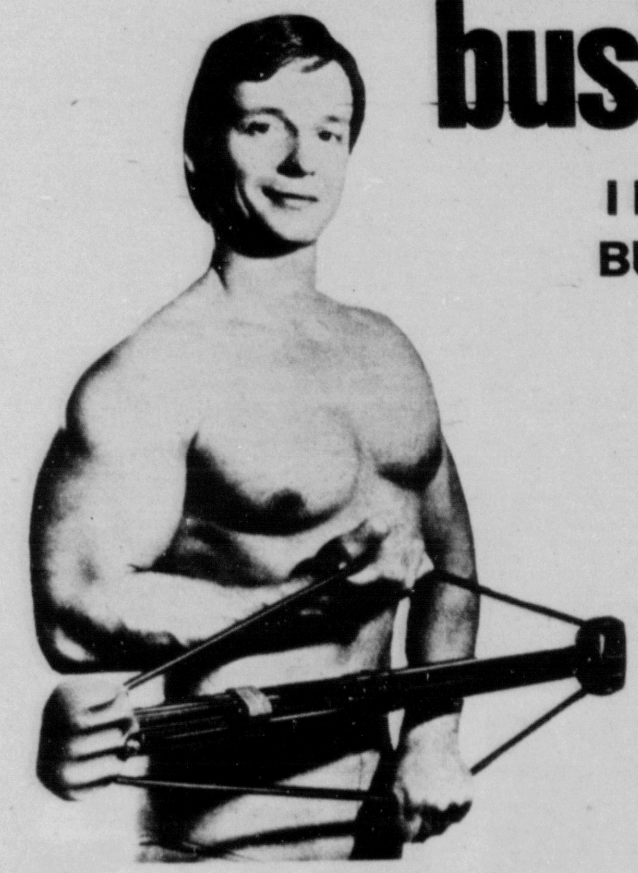
SMITH: Our most immediate challenge is to end the recession and create two billion dollars in wealth. The world's greatest challenge is to curb the population boom.

CHANCELLOR: To restore to the American people a sense of trust in their institutions and a sense of hope for the future.

WALLACE: To make more opportunities available to those Americans who are at the bottom of the economic heap.

BROKAW: As a journalist, I am most concerned about preserving the tradition of a free press which will report the truth about America no matter how harsh that truth might be. FW

Fitness is my business



I RECOMMEND BULLWORKER® BECAUSE IT'S FAST, IT'S EASY AND IT REALLY WORKS!

Aside from keeping many of the stars you see in the movies and on television in top shape, Mike Fretault, at 40, is still one of the most sought-after stunt men in the business.

Twenty years as a fitness coach has taught me one important fact: most men will not stick with a training program long enough for it to do them any good, unless the training is fast, easy and shows results right away.

Bullworker gets a top score on all three counts:

—it's fast: each exercise takes only 7 seconds and the complete workout can be done in about five minutes

—it's easy: any man between 15 and 65 in good general health can perform the full program without getting tired

—you see your results right from the very first day on the built-in Power-meter gauge. After two to three weeks of regular training, most men can expect to measure an extra inch or two of muscle on their shoulders, chest and biceps—and an inch or two less flab around the middle.

And that's just the start: there are specialized exercises for building-up or trimming-down any part of your body you want to. What's more since Bullworker training is progressive, you perform better each time. Yet the training always seems easy since with every workout your strength increases by about 1%—that's an increase of up to 50% in just three months, and I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength. For my money, Bullworker is the most advanced home trainer on the market. I use it and recommend it to any man who wants to get back in top shape fast.

Product of a proud land.

Tobacco. It's as proud a part of the American tradition as the Grand Canyon. At Liggett & Myers, we've made tobacco into a cigarette worthy of that tradition. The rich, mellow, distinctively smooth L&M.

SPIRO AGNEW
"Maybe we all misjudged him"

Rumors that Spiro Agnew is a changed man abound, so FAMILY WEEKLY went to his literary agent, Scott Meredith, for this brash word: "I was never a great fan of Agnew's politics. There was a time when, like many others, I thought he was an insidious character who should be removed from power. But to hear Agnew tell it—he never had any power. He claims he was bored while in office. Watergate softened our criticism of Agnew. He may have been a chameleon opportunist, but at least he wasn't a neo-Nazi like some others. Sure, he has regrets, but having missed both jail and the Presidency by an inch have added another dimension to the man. He was lucky that Nixon didn't trust him enough to give him more power, otherwise he really might have had problems. Today, he's enormously wealthy from recent international oil dealings in which he acts as agent. He's just finished one novel and plans to write one more before his memoirs, and he's led me to believe the latter won't be terribly complimentary toward Mr. Nixon. Agnew has developed a real presence. He's the only politician of recent years whom people run over to and whose hand they kiss in public. Maybe we all misjudged him. Maybe he had something special all along."

DOCTOR AND DOLPHIN
Man's best friend?

Docile, friendly and intelligent are the words most often used to describe man's favorite marine animal, the dolphin. David Taylor, who specializes in marine veterinary work, said: "A man gets spoiled treating dolphins. They're intelligent but kind. I think we're all attracted to dolphins for that reason—we wish our best friends could be like that." Through Naval research, we know that dolphins can communicate, and a new theory has been developed that dolphins can also read each other's minds.

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS
The endless Trapeze

The Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright on the ordeals of life and love: "A man must live through his life's duration with his own little set of fears and angers, suspicions and vanities, and his appetites both spiritual and carnal. Life is built of them, and he is built of Life. The umbilical cord is a long, long rope of blood that has swung him as an aerialist on an all but endless Trapeze. My goal has always been to capture the constantly evanescent quality of existence. But writing is a pursuit of a very evasive quarry, and you never quite catch it. Most of my life has been spent with intimate companions of a complex and difficult nature. It is only recently that I have learned how to accept the bargain by which I mean to treasure the lovely aspects of their natures and to stoically live through their abrasive humors." From "Memoirs," by Tennessee Williams (Doubleday, $8.95)

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

SOFT ON HARDWARE

I dearly love a hardware store,
It has such great variety.
I meet my friends there, more and more,
Both high and low society.

Another, paint or varnish.
One asks for stuff that never fails
At cleaning stains or tarnish.

The ware in hardware stores is hard
And also soft and medium.
I shop for things for house and yard,
Escape there, too, from tedium.

The teacher had asked her pupils who the nine greatest Americans were. All the pupils had turned in their papers except Tommy.

"I'm still undecided," replied Tommy, "about the First Baseman."

"Don't worry," said she, "I won't be long. I just want to hang up on him."

Strong drink is a curse to mankind. It makes you stagger when you walk. It befogs the mind. It makes you argue with your friends. It makes you shoot at your landlord. And it makes you miss him. —Samuel J. Stannard

LITTLE EMILY

$54 each. Or $1 each.

Would you like to own fine editions but hesitate because of their high cost?

Actually, there's no need to spend $50 or more for an elegantly-bound volume of Shakespeare, Kipling or Maupassant.

If you'd like to build a fine home library, we'll start you on your way by sending you the works of all three of these immortal writers in bindings you will cherish and your friends will envy.

And a matched volume containing the works of Kipling. Actually eight books in one. A complete novel and 139 stories, ballads and verses loved the world over, including Mandalay, Gunga Din, The Phantom Rickshaw, and others.

Plus a third volume: the works of de Maupassant. His short stories, complete and unexpurgated. 128 polished gems by the man who made the short story (and especially the surprise ending) an art.

You can have all three deluxe volumes for only $1 each. Simply as an introduction to our Golden Giants of Literature Series.

As they become available, we'll also offer you other books in the Series. The novels and stories of Victor Hugo. The poems of Byron. Ibsen's daring plays. The works of Tolstoi, Poe, Swift, Cellini, Wilde, Browning, Longfellow, Emerson, Dostoevsky and others.

Each volume is clothed in our deluxe antique ecru binding that has the look and feel of a fine leather binding costing over $50—except that it stands up to time far better. Each volume is richly tooled in colors of red and gold, with gilded page tops and a red silk ribbon to mark your place.

Because we print in large quantities and distribute direct to the public, you can add future volumes in the series to your library for just $5.39 each (plus postage and handling).

You don't have to take every volume. You may reject any volume before or even after you receive it. Select only those you really want. Soon they'll build up into a library you'll be proud to own, a library you and your family will turn to again and again.

Send no money now. Just mail the coupon to get Shakespeare, Kipling and de Maupassant for only $1 each. And discover how affordable fine editions can be. Black's Readers Service, Roslyn, New York 11576.

Queen Elizabeth

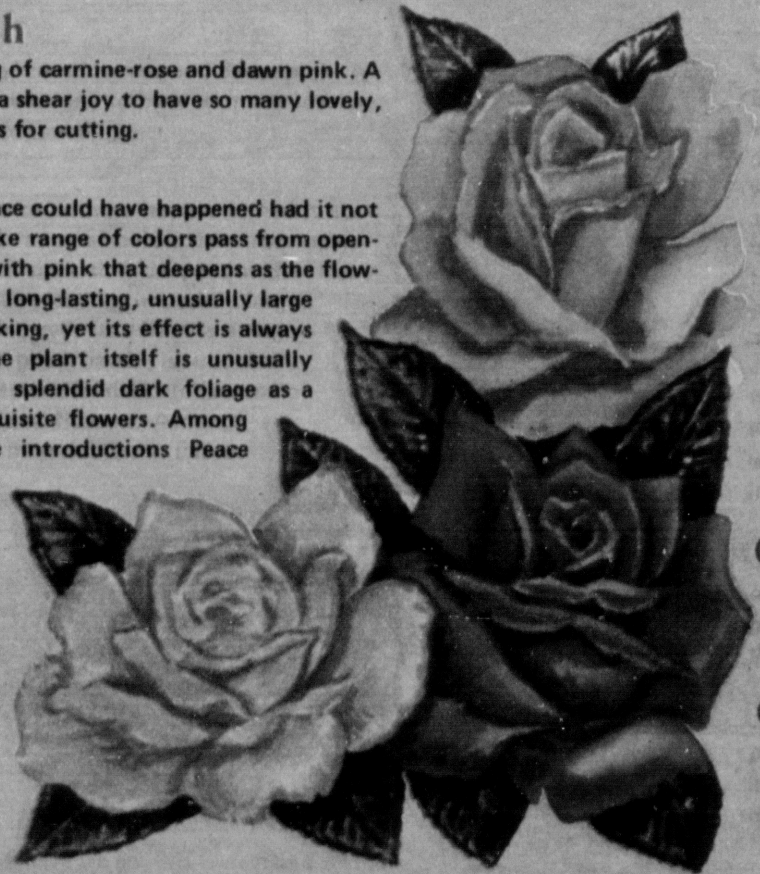
A beautiful, soft blending of carmine-rose and dawn pink. A wonderful fragrance and a shear joy to have so many lovely, long lasting 4 inch blooms for cutting.

Peace

No one could believe Peace could have happened had it not been created. Its dawn-like range of colors pass from opening yellow buds, edged with pink that deepens as the flower unfolds. The bloom is long-lasting, unusually large and constantly fresh-looking, yet its effect is always delicate and lovely. The plant itself is unusually sturdy and robust, with splendid dark foliage as a background for the exquisite flowers. Among the hundreds of rose introductions Peace stands unrivaled.

Crimson Glory

No other red rose has equalled Crimson Glory in beauty and performance. Of all roses, it ranks second only to Peace. The well-formed flowers are an intense deep vivid crimson, shaded ox-blood red. A sturdy and prolific spring-to-fall bloomer.



Climbing Blaze

Blaze is the greatest climbing rose ever developed. Ever-blooming with large brilliant, double-red cupped flowers. BLAZE blooms with a great burst of scarlet in June and again in fall, with some in between. Clusters of flowers come in such profusion they turn the plant into a blaze of glory. Flowers have just a wisp of delicate fragrance. Very hardy and vigorous, demanding practically no care . . . No spraying or feeding. Only pruning is required to keep it in bounds.

Plant BLAZE on fences, posts, trellises and walls. Or achieve a fountain display by growing on a 5 ft. stake.

Climbing Peace

A lovely sight with the huge cream gold and pink flowers. Every bit as large and lovely as those on the bush form.

Cl. Wh. American Beauty
